GOUGLERSVILLE (Berks Co.) — When driving down Main Street in Gouglersville, visitors are often surprised to see a corn crib smack in the middle of town. After closer inspection, even more surprising is to find that a farm stretches for 175 acres behind the row of homes.

It's home for the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen Amysue Eshelman, who said, "All but one of our neighbors think it is really neat to have a farm in a town — and that's because she's afraid of the two wild turkeys who came here and just stayed."

Amysue's parents, Susan and Larry, crop corn, wheat, oats, and hay. In addition to the wild turkeys, the only livestock on the crop farm are Amy's 4-H projects: two steers and 25 breeding ewes and their lambs.

As Lamb and Wool Queen, Amysue speaks out for all breeds of sheep, she is most adamant in her praise for the Oxford breed.

"It's not a common breed, but I just love the coloration on their faces," she said.

Oxford face coloring ranges from dark brown to gray black. According to Amysue, the breed organization has not determined what the exact coloring should be. The Oxford breed is prolific with good maternal instincts. Primarily used for meat, Oxfords also produce a medium grade wool suitable for spinning.

Amysue got her first two sheep when she was eight years old. Now, as an 18-year-old about to enter college, Amysue has built up a flock that she isn't willing to let dwindle.

"I'm very happy that my parents agreed to take care of my sheep while I study dairy and animal science at Penn State's main campus," Amysue said. "I have my favorites — they all have different personalities — friendly and ornery ones."

This past year, Amysue's flock produced 25 lambs. "I only name the ones I keep. I never repeat a name," she said.

She chooses names by watching the antics of the lambs such as Stretch, who earned her name because she stretches endlessly upon awakening. Or, she names the lambs after her friends.

"I always post the names of my sheep at fairs and shows. My friends come to brag to others, 'Oh look, that one was named after me.'"

Amysue spends much of her time with her sheep since she competes in 11 shows. Of the many awards she has earned, the most valued is the plaque for placing

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Hundreds of area livestock producers and others interested in production attended the first of what officials hope to be an annual Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds Tuesday and Wednesday.

In addition to commercial exhibits which filled the new fairgrounds building and displayed the latest in equipment to ensure animal productivity and ease of quality care, the exposition featured a full day of expert speakers who talked about a variety of topics related to livestock production and housing.

Also featured, Farmer-Boy Ag, of Myerstown, constructed a multi-use demonstration building on the fairgrounds site for the exposition that drew hundreds of visitors. The building is to be open to the public during the Lebanon Area Fair, which is scheduled for July 25 through July 31.

The building is then to be sold at public auction 11 a.m. August 1.

Co-sponsored by the exhibitors and Penn State University Extension, the exposition was formed to help better serve producers in Pennsylvania, especially those considering expansion or increased efficiency.

The Lebanon location was chosen because it is easily accessible to the state's strongest concentra-

Dairy Science Club Soars In Competition

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's Dairy Science Club placed second in the chapter competition at the annual meeting of the student affiliate division of the American Dairy Science Association held in Columbus, Ohio, recently.

The club has placed third or higher each of the last 11 years in the outstanding chapter contest and is three-time national champion in that same time period. Chapters are judged on club activities, yearbook design and content, and meeting display and participation.

The club's yearbook, The Dairyman, placed third in the yearbook competition.

Agricultural science major Jean Kummer of Butler County and dairy and animal science major Dwight Stoltzfus of Berks County were editors of this year's award winning annual.

In the paper competition, Miriam Kelly, a sophomore from Tyrone majoring in Dairy and Animal Science, brought home second in the Production division with her paper, "Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy."

Annie Piepenhagen's paper, "Effects of Light Exposure on the Nutrition and Flavor of Milk Quality," placed third. Annie is a junior in food science from Mercer.

Dairy and animal science senior Dave Lentz, of Lebanon, was elected officer-at-large. Ten members represented the Dairy Science Club at the meeting: Beth Cooley, Allenwood; Karen Fessler, Robersonia; Lynette Goodling, Selinsgrove; Miriam Kelly, Dave Lentz, Tom McCauley, Elizabethtown; Terri Packard, Troy; Annie Piepenhagen, Tom Smallback, Cherry Creek, N.Y.; and Dwight Stoltzfus, Morgantown.

Fair Season Begins!

The Kimberton Fair, Chester County, begins on Monday and lasts through Saturday.

Many other fairs open within the next several weeks, including the Lebanon Fair, which begins next Saturday. For a look at some of the highlights of last year's Lebanon Fair, turn to page D2.

Delmarva Broiler-Fryer Market

Tuesday, July 14, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was about moderate. Supplies were adequate to short with availability reduced by hot, humid weather conditions. Live supplies were moderate to light. Weights were desirable to light. Slaughter schedules were cutback at several plants, primarily due to weight losses in the field. However, schedules remained heavy overall. Trade sentiment was steady to fully steady. In the part complex, wings were in strongest demand. Other items were adequate to closely balanced with pricing tied more to a decrease in production than to an active call for supplies.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, July 15, 1992

Trucklot buying interest continued light and limited to immediate needs. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were in close balance and some buyer inquiries for late week went unfilled. Sellers asked higher prices for tomorrow's production or would not quote a price until the market develops. Line run breasts labored under a heat-related market, supplies were tight, some shippers asked higher prices for late week deliveries but some buyers continued cautious. Yellow skin leg quarters cleared to a fair demand but white skin product was a struggle. Wings were short of covering a good demand and prices trended higher.

See Your WL Alfalfa Dealer For Your Fall Alfalfa Seeding Needs.

W-L measures success one grower at a time.

We could show you stacks of research data that demonstrate the benefits of planting W-L alfalfa seed, but the most important barometer of our success is the success of growers like you.

Growers have depended on W-L Research as a provider of superior alfalfa seed for over thirty years, and in that time W-L has developed seed well-known for its value. At W-L, "value" is defined as long-term yield, persistence, and quality. These characteristics of W-L varieties are the cornerstone of our success, and we continue to measure our success as we always have — one grower at a time.

BOWDLERIZED!

Thomas Bowdler meant well. In his opinion, some literature was too impious and indecent to be read in front of children, so he "purified" the works of Shakespeare, Edward Gibbon's History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, and even portions of the Old Testament, removing "those words and expressions which cannot with propriety be read aloud in a family." When his methods were criticized he countered that any words which gave "an impression of obscenity" should not be spoken or printed, and if printed they "ought to be erased." His censorship was so offensive that "bowdlerize" became a term of contempt, synonymous with self-righteous expurgation.

Certitude is not the test of certainty. We have been cocksure of many things that were not so.

— Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Replace a broken suitcase handle with a dog collar looped through the metal rings.

EARTHWISE

With water conservation a big summertime issue, many people opt to wash their cars at home with the garden hose. They figure they're saving water and money. But are they? If there's no shut-off nozzle on your hose, you could be using as much as 150 gallons of water to get your car clean! Even with a shut-off device, you'll still use 5 to 10 gallons more at home than at the local self-serve car wash. So, gather your bucket, sponge, and quarters, and head for the car wash.

BLUEBERRY POSSET

1 quart blueberries
2 cups water
1 cup sugar pinch of salt butter
8 slices thin white bread
whipped cream

Stew berries in water with sugar and salt for 15 minutes. Butter bread slices. Place alternate layers of bread and blueberries in deep, buttered baking dish. Bake at 350° F for 15-20 minutes. Cool and chill. Serve very cold with whipped cream.

Makes 6 servings.

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST:
Sunny and hot, then rainy, sunshine returns in the west.

SOUTHEAST:
Hot and sunny, cloudy coast, then thunder-showers Florida and hot west.

MIDWEST:
Sunny, hot, and humid, then showers and thunderstorms, and milder.

NORTHWEST:

OPINION

Should Have Stayed On The Farm

Should have stayed on the farm, should have listened to my old man. In a popular song of the 1970s, a man leaves farming life and strikes out on his own — all the while thinking he should have listened to his father and stayed on the farm.

Some of the words by Elton John, from his song "Goodbye Yellow Brick Road," provide an apt testimony to what is going on in many farms — the children are leaving the farm in record numbers.

It is sad, when you look at the facts.

According to the demographic office at the U.S. Department of Agriculture, young farm operators are becoming an endangered species. Since 1940, the number of farm operators under age 35 has declined an astonishing 77 percent. Dr. Charles Pautler, chief of the U.S. Census Bureau's agriculture division, said the rising age of the American farm operator might reflect the difficulties facing young people who want to get started in farming.

Lancaster Farming has seen the decline in the number of children taking over the family farm. More and more are choosing to leave because of the harsh realities faced by farmers — a decline in the ability to make a living at many types of farming.

The items are distressing. From a story about the W. Blaine Souder family, a swine operation in Telford, Montgomery County: "Within the past year, about three or four nearby dairy farms 'gave up this winter,' (Blaine Souder) said, pointing around him. 'The one down here did, the one out there did, and the other one . . . dairy farmers just sold out.'" Souder spoke about the importance of the family in the farm operation. Blaine said his daughters also enjoy farming. He said he would pass it down to them if they showed interest. "I think we'd be happy just if it would stay in farming," said Blaine's wife, Linda. ("Despite Development, Other Pressures, Century Farm Thrives," Lancaster Farming, May 25, 1991.)

From a story in South Lebanon: "John Risser is an 18-year-old who has dreams of operating a hog farm near home. However, the possibility of doing so doesn't look promising, he said. There is only so much land available for agriculture in the limestone-rich Lebanon Valley where Risser lives with his father and mother." ("Youths' Woes, Worries Set Aside For Farm Show" Lancaster Farming, January 4, 1992.)

From another story about the GATT agreements: "The drift from the land is accelerating again," said (International Federation of Agricultural Producers President Hans) Kjeldsen. (The story centered on trade surpluses affecting farmers worldwide.) "And this time, it's the young, educated farmers who are leaving." ("Farm Leaders Demand GATT Agreement," Lancaster Farming, June 22, 1991.)

There are many more examples of how complex and disturbing this problem continues to be. At many of the banquets and meetings, in the crowd, you always hear of many children in farm families who have gone into other occupations — after all, to them, a daytime job certainly beats the demands of an overtime, seven-day-a-week job that is farming.

And what of the impact on farming in general? How will the shrinking number of family farms and passing of the farm to conglomerates and to development affect the standard of living for everyone? Who has the answers?

To Rotationally Graze Pastures

As the heat of summer has finally arrived, the rate of pasture growth diminishes. To increase the productivity of pastures, it is advisable to graze them on a rotational basis.

Each section or paddock should be grazed for only 1 to 7 days. The paddock should not be regrazed for another 5 to 6 weeks.

This requires that the cows be given only limited access to the pasture. Meanwhile, they will need to be confined to an exercise or sacrifice lot or housed indoors.

For maximum productivity, pastures species need a chance to build up their root reserves. This can not occur when the new regrowth is being grazed continuously.

It is also important to prevent the grasses and legumes from reaching maturity. Thus, the old growth that remains after grazing should be clipped and excess growth should be harvested.

To learn more about rotational grazing, Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, has planned a field day on July 31 from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The field day will be held at Lindenhof Guernsey Farm, 2 miles south of Kirkwood on Route 472.

There will be exhibits and speakers discussing various aspects of rotational grazing.

To Encourage School Milk Consumption

Penn State Agricultural Economist Blair Smith conducted a survey in 1990 to determine students' attitudes about school milk.

Problems identified were warm milk, dirty cartons, hard-to-open cartons, and lack of choice.

Smith offers the following suggestions on ways to increase milk consumption in schools:

- Accept from the school vendor nothing but the highest quality, best tasting, and freshest milk possible.

- Make certain milk arrives cold and is kept cold until the moment it is served to students.

- Be sure cartons are clean when delivered and they are clean when served to students.

- Determine, periodically, how difficult it is to open the milk cartons.

- Make skim and low fat milk available because many students prefer these products.

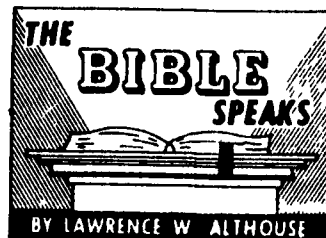

- Promote milk as being good for you and tasting good. If the milk does not meet quality standards, the shipment must be rejected.

Today's successful food marketers are only delivering high quality product and making sure the food service people are handling it correctly.

By monitoring the school milk program, you will stop inferior product from being dumped on children and you will increase milk consumption.

Background Scripture:

Zephaniah 3

Devotional Reading:

Psalms 51:10-19

Often, it is bad enough that we sin, but many of us compound our sin by refusing to accept correction. This was at the heart of Zephaniah's prophecy against Judah: "Woe to her that is rebellious and defiled, the oppressing city? She listens to no voice, she accepts no correction" (3:1,2).

Several decades ago, Richardson Dilworth was running for the office of Governor of Pennsylvania. He had been District Attorney in Philadelphia while I was in college and admired the job he had done under difficult circumstances. In the midst of that gubernatorial campaign, Dilworth asked about a decision he had made several years previous in the midst of a serious strike. Instead of hedging or fudging or brazening out his position, Mr. Dilworth acknowledged that he had been wrong in the decision he had made. "Wrong"? A politician "wrong"? How could that be?

"I WAS WRONG!"

Mr. Dilworth paid dearly for this admission, for one of the sides in the labor dispute—with whom he had originally sided—became irate and vowed that they would prevent him from becoming Governor. And they did. Essentially, he lost because he admitted he had been wrong. I'm afraid he's the only politician I can remember losing for the sake of his honesty. Have you noticed that no one in public life—and private life, too—has ever done anything really "wrong"? Every public official responds to any and all accusations of wrongdoing with the explanation that he or she was misquoted, misunderstood or maligned. How refreshing it would be to hear one of the present presidential candidates say, "Yes, I did do that and it was a mistake, a bad mistake!"

As the old saying goes, "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." If it behooves people in public life to be willing to accept correction and even admit to mistakes and—dare we use the word—sins, what about us? How willing are we to consider that perhaps our actions are not as righteous we might wish to believe?

I AM NOT GOD

Have you ever considered why it is that some people can never accept any correction or reproof? Contrary to what we might think, it is not because they think too highly of themselves, but not highly enough. If you are a secure person, criticism is not devastating. If I feel reasonably good about life and my relationship with God, it does not destroy me for someone to suggest that I have acted unfairly or unjustly in a particular situation. It will not have been my first failure nor my last one. I can live with the knowledge that I am not God. It is only when one's confidence is shaky that correction appears so threatening. In other words, defensiveness and self-righteousness are often signs of vulnerability.

The people against whom Zephaniah's prophecy was chiefly directed are not the kinds of people we might expect to be the subjects of blame: "Her officials within her are roaring lions; her judges are evening wolves that leave nothing til the morning. Her prophets are wanton, faithless men; her priests profane what is sacred, they do violence to the law" (3:3,4). These are not the normal malefactors of society: drunkards, thieves, people of ill repute. God's greatest dissatisfaction is often with those of whom he expects more.

Dwight L. Moody once said that he had had more trouble with Dwight L. Moody than any other person he knew. At least he recognized it. Do I? Do you?

Feather Prof's Footnote: "The quality of a person's life is in direct proportion to their commitment to excellence." —Vincent Lombardi.

CAERNARVON FARMS-BROWN'S-*ANDREW AND LUCILLE STOLTZFUS

Invite You To The Berks County Holstein Club Picnic
July 23- 7:00 P.M.

Caernarvon Farms

Located between Morgantown and Welsh Mountain, is the home of over 300 Registered and Grade Holsteins. The June DHI Rolling Herd Average of 20,580 lbs. milk, 661 lbs. protein, and 762 lbs. fat. on over 100 cows speak well for milk production, but Caernarvon is best known world-wide for the elite genetics they produce and market through Embryo Transfer technology.

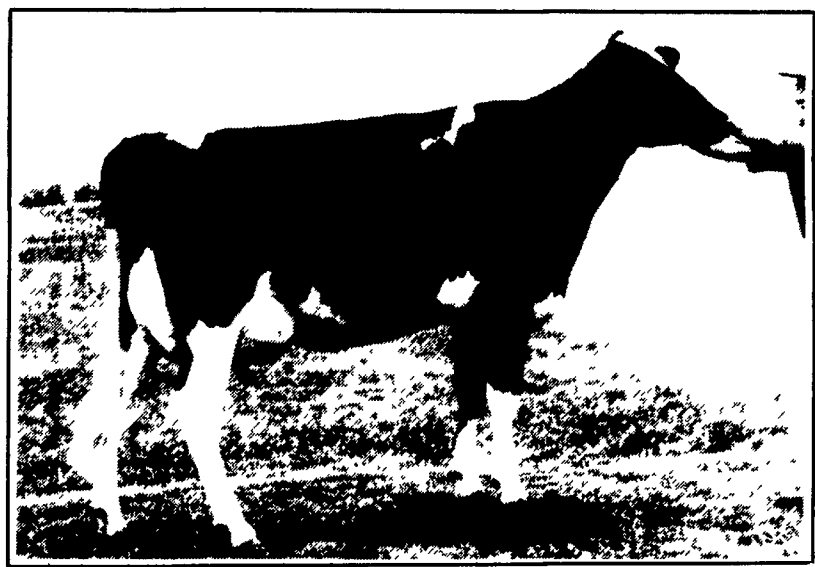

A 1992 Dairy Of Distinction Winner

FEATURING TWO TOP COW FAMILIESJody Family*CAERNARVON LEVI JEANETTE - ET

Very Good - 88 Pts. - Ex Mammary

2 yr. 2 Mo. - 365D 28,034 Milk 905 Fat 860 Protein. Fresh again at 3 yr. 4 mo. this Levi daughter peaked at 114 lbs. at 94 days and is projected to hit 25,000 lbs. milk and 769 lbs. of protein. She is one of several members of the Jody family featured in the upcoming Triple Crown Holstein Sale. Jody has 13 milking daughters/granddaughters in the herd.

Spirit FamilyCAERNARVON STAR SHANA-ET

Very good 86 point Blackstar Daughter - At 2 yr. 2 mo. Shana is projected to make a 305 day record of 21,705 lbs. of milk, 669 lbs. protein and 805 lbs. fat. Fresh since January she peaked at 90 lbs. and is still milking 86 lbs. milk. Andy feels Brown's 30 Prolac Pellets help his heifers peak higher and persist longer than DHI projections.

Andrew says total Milk Protein production is the product his market seeks. A Brown's customer for over 20 years, he feels products like Brown's 30 Prolac Pellets, Brown's 34 Amino Plus feed, and Brown's Cooked Soybeans allow him to maximize the genetic potential of the top cows in the Caernarvon Herd. He has tried other products but always returns to Brown's Feeds and Feeding Programs.

HOG SLAT^(R)

INCORPORATED

Hydraulic Farrowing Crate PREVENTS CRUSHING

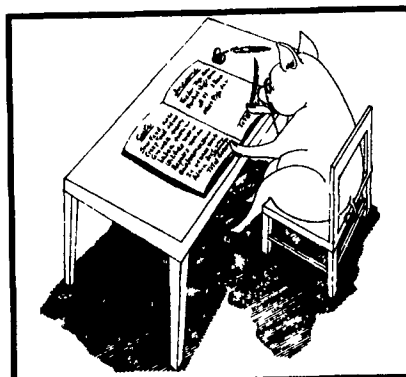

Most Losses Are Due To Crushing

PROCTOR CRATE Installed On HOG SLAT Combination Slat

HOG SLAT Proctor Crate Features A Unique Hydraulic Cylinder Which Allows The Crate's Sides To Expand And Lowers Them Gently To The Floor To Prevent Crushing.

Pig Mortality Can Put A Big Dent In Profits. Tests Confirm That The PROCTOR Crates Will Return The Initial Investment In 3 Years Or Less By Reducing Crushing!

Turn in your old sweep arm auger unloader and put ForceFlo™ unloader's dual action to work for you.

The ForceFlo power sweep auger unloader is a powerful way to handle a Harvestore® brand structure full of high moisture grain. Whenever the discharge auger is operated, the sweep auger also automatically goes to work. This forceful sweeping action is continuously undermining and removing grain from the bottom of the structure. Grain has less of a chance to set up and compact.

Turn in your old sweep arm unloader for ForceFlo's improved performance. Special trade-in deals and low interest financing packages are now in effect. Contact your authorized A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. dealer today for more information.

Now is a good time to trade in your old sweep arm auger unloader and add a new twist to your feeding schedule.

PUMP OUT PIT FAN

Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular.

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans.

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals. Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO₂. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death.

Mainesburg Farmer Pastures For Profit

C.J. HOUGHTALING

MAINESBURG (Tioga Co.) —

Nobody can accuse Bill Chamberlain of not changing with the times. The Mainesburg farmer's herd pasturing program has done a complete turn around within the last five years.

Chamberlain used to pasture his herd after each milking, just long enough to get the stalls cleaned. Incorporating a new pasturing program in the spring of 1991, his registered Holstein herd now spends most of their time in the pasture from April 20 until December 1, with just enough time in the barn for milking. During the winter months they still go outside for an hour or two of exercise each day.

The results? His new method of pasturing has radically cut down on the need for stored feed.

"At one time my herd received stored feed 365 days a year," said Chamberlain. "Now the pastures are doing the (feeding) job as well, only cheaper."

His cows still get high moisture corn and protein supplements, as before. The difference is now is the grazing replaces the need for haylage.

Hay that was previously grown to feed his herd now can be stored for later use or sold — a comforting thought for a farmer in difficult times.

But his program does not hinge solely on increased pasture time. It's the way he pastures that makes a difference. He turned a former hay field into an intense grazing system.

As with most farmers, his pastures once consisted only of land too steep or otherwise undesirable for planting.

One common problem with pasturing in a large area is the livestock can pick and choose their grazing spots. They will nibble the young tender shoots only to leave clumps of older, tougher forage untouched.

The result is an uneven field of limited use to both animals and farmer. Intensive grazing is the remedy.

"The head of Soil Conservation Service (SCS) office told me five years ago that someday I'd be using one of my best hay field as pasture. At the time I said he was crazy."

So what changed Chamberlain's mind? The hay field's proximity to the barn. It was the most convenient field to put the new pasture program to work.

Behind his barn, Chamberlain divided 13 acres into one acre lots. The lots are separated by an electric fence of polywire. High tensile wire surrounds the perimeter of the lots.

"They (the cows) may get through the polywire and on to another lot," said Chamberlain, "but I know they are not going to get through the high tensile wire and on to my neighbors' land."

A lane runs up the middle of the lots, providing a passageway for

The pond is a new addition to the farm. Chamberlain has plans to use it as an irrigation source for his fields in the event future dry spells hinder crop growth.

Tioga County Agent Craig Williams, from the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office in Wellsboro, demonstrates how the nose pump can be beneficial to cows in pastures lacking conventional water sources.

cows going to and from the barn or lot to lot.

Chamberlain puts 45 cows to an acre. Milkers are on the lot for two half days, and heifers and dry cows for two full days.

With limited space in each lot, cows have less of a choice for grazing, so grass doesn't get the chance to grow old and tough. Because the lots are used on a rotating basis, fresh growth is allowed to come on.

Each lot has a chart posted at its gate to keep the grazing dates carefully recorded. This system of pasturing allows Chamberlain to use each acre to its maximum potential.

Caleb Williams, a farmer who works closely with the SCS and cooperative extension offices, agreed that the smaller grazing areas work better.

"The biggest problem with pasturing is the transfer of nutrients from the paddock to the barn. Obviously, the more time cows spend in the pasture, the more beneficial the symbiotic relationship of cows and pasture becomes."

Sometimes an abundance of rain can hurry the lot's growth beyond the tender stage the cows prefer. If that happens, Chamberlain clips it down and a sickle bar mower.

Lack of rain has another effect. The drought last year caused Chamberlain to take his herd off the intense grazing the program for one month, supplementing their diet with the stored feed until the grass began growing again.

Rabies Continues

UNIVERSITY PARK (Dauphin Co.) — A rabies outbreak among raccoons continues to spread across Pennsylvania, but alert homeowners, hikers and others who spend time outdoors can minimize their risk of exposure to the disease, a Penn State specialist said.

"Rabies is a viral disease that affects the nervous system," said Dr. Thomas Drake, extension veterinarian in the College of Agricultural Sciences' Animal Diagnostic Laboratory. "A bite from an infected animal deposits the rabies virus under the skin. The virus then travels through the nerves until it reaches the brain, a process that can take up to six months. Symptoms don't appear until the disease is in its final, fatal stages."

Until recently, rabies outbreaks generally struck fox and skunk populations, with other species infected in much smaller numbers. "The current outbreak of rabies in raccoons began in West Virginia in the late 1970s and spread to south and central Pennsylvania during the 1980s," Drake said. "It's now reaching the southeastern part of the state and the Allegheny plateau."

Between 1981 and 1989, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture confirmed 3,243 cases of rabies in animals. The number of cases peaked at 700 in 1989. In 1991, 363 cases were reported.

According to the state Department of Health, Pennsylvania has had no human cases of rabies since 1985, but human exposure to the rabies virus is always possible. The best way to avoid exposure is to avoid infected animals—but they can be difficult to recognize.

"Unfortunately, rabies has no consistent symptoms," Drake says. "Rabid animals just behave in unusual ways—for instance, nocturnal animals such as raccoons may be active during daylight. Classic symptoms include foaming at the mouth and aggressive behavior, but rabid animals are just as likely to be abnormally docile. Many lose their natural fear and wander about aimlessly."

Following these guidelines can minimize your risk of exposure to rabies:

- Avoid wild animals that act strangely.
- Vaccinate all pets. Pennsylvania law requires vaccination for all dogs and house cats beginning at three months of age.

- Barn cats and other neighborhood animals are more likely to carry rabies. If possible, see that they are inoculated or avoid contact with them.

- Be aware of rabies symptoms in farm animals and consider vaccination in areas with a high number of cases.

- If a pet or livestock animal begins to act abnormally or appears unusually sick, call a veterinarian.

- Keep your property free of material that might attract wild animals. Keep garbage in containers that animals can't open or knock down. Don't leave food out

Official Drink

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk is Pennsylvania's official beverage. And why not? Dairy is the leading segment of agriculture, the number one industry in the state.

Nearly 13,000 dairy farms produce milk from 683,000 cows. That represents an average of 14,500 pounds of milk produced per cow!

In just 20 years, the number of dairy cows has decreased 3 percent, while the production per cow has increased 44 percent.

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, July 18, 1992-A21

for wild animals or stray dogs or cats.

If you or someone you know is bitten or scratched by a potentially rabid animal, take it seriously. "If the bite came from a pet or domestic animal, the animal should be confined and watched closely for several weeks," Drake said. "As a general rule, if the animal doesn't die within 10 days, it wasn't rabid.

"A wild animal should be captured, if possible, and submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Diagnostic Lab at Summerdale for a rabies test," Drake said. "The bite victim should see a physician for care of the wound and recommendations about antirabies treatment."

Mainesburg Farmer

this summer, he may do the same thing.

Another problem with pastures involves water. Sometimes a stream or pond is convenient, but often no water supply is readily available. And cows need water to produce milk.

To get water to the cows on the lots, Chamberlain piped water from the barn to 100 gallon tanks. Each tank is connected to a flotation device similar to that found in an ordinary toilet. When the water level drops in the tank, the float sends the message to the pump that more water is needed.

The tanks are placed beneath the electric wire so that two connecting lots have water at the same time. This way, Chamberlain doesn't have to move the water source each time the livestock switches lots.

To help farmers learn about the best watering and feeding system for animals despite unfavorable pasture conditions or locations, the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service held a fact-finding day June 26 at the Chamberlain farm near Mainesburg.

Craig Williams from the Cooperative Extension Office and Paul Shaffer from the SCS Office, both in Wellsboro, were on hand to answer questions about Chamberlain's intense grazing program and the methods he uses to provide his herd with water in the field.

Two weeks prior, the Cooperative Extension Office helped Chamberlain solve the problem of getting water to his cattle in another pasture across the road from the barn.

In 1988, Chamberlain had transformed a wet spot next to the pasture into a 3,000-gallon holding tank by digging down and lining the hole with cement blocks. Drainage tile help guide the water to the hole.

But how was he going to get the water to the cows? He wasn't anxious about spending a lot of money piping the water as he had done in the field behind the barn.

Cooperative Extension provided the answer. With grant money, it had purchased a special watering system called a nose pump. A plastic tube connects the water source to the pump.

Craig Williams explained how the pump works. "By using the same principle as the old-fashioned hand pumps common in days gone by, no electricity is required. The cow simply moves the pump arm back and forth with her nose and water fills the drinking cup."

Are the cows smart enough to figure out how to use it? "You bet," said Chamberlain. As if on cue, a cow wandered over to the nose pump and demonstrated to the group just that.

To test the nose pump's practicality, cooperative extension is making it available free to farmers on a 30-day trial basis. Plans are to purchase a second nose pump to test on sheep.

But the nose pump has its limitations. Twenty-six feet is the maximum height it can move water uphill. Reluctantly, Chamberlain tried the piping method in a pasture further up the hill.

Using a 1/2 horsepower electric pump, he was able to send water to a 100-gallon tank via 400 feet of plastic pipeline. The same type of flotation device used in the intense grazing lots is used in this tank, also.

As Chamberlain can attest, the extra effort was worth it. "Before we began providing water in the pasture, the cows would come to the barn and immediately begin to drink. But with everyone drinking at once, the flow to each drinking cup was barely a trickle so the cows lost interest in waiting for the water long before they drank the amount necessary for peak milk production. Now they are able to get their fill before coming to the barn."

Although the official results aren't available yet on paper, Chamberlain is convinced the new watering system is helping this herd produce 150 extra pounds of milk per day according to bulk tank readings.

Chamberlain figures that in one month, the additional milk will more than make up the cost of the whole watering system.

Baytan 30 flowable fungicide lowers disease pressure both above and below the soil line. That means a better bottom line for your wheat, barley, oats and rye.

Baytan 30 protects against a broad spectrum of early season seed and seedling diseases — with up to eight weeks of activity against foliar diseases such as rust and powdery mildew. But the benefits of early plant health last much longer. This means your foliar spraying decision can be delayed, and perhaps eliminated.

With Baytan 30, you'll not only see a healthier crop — you'll see more of it at harvest. In 10 years of field trials throughout the country, seed treated with Baytan 30 has shown a yield advantage of 5 bushels an acre.

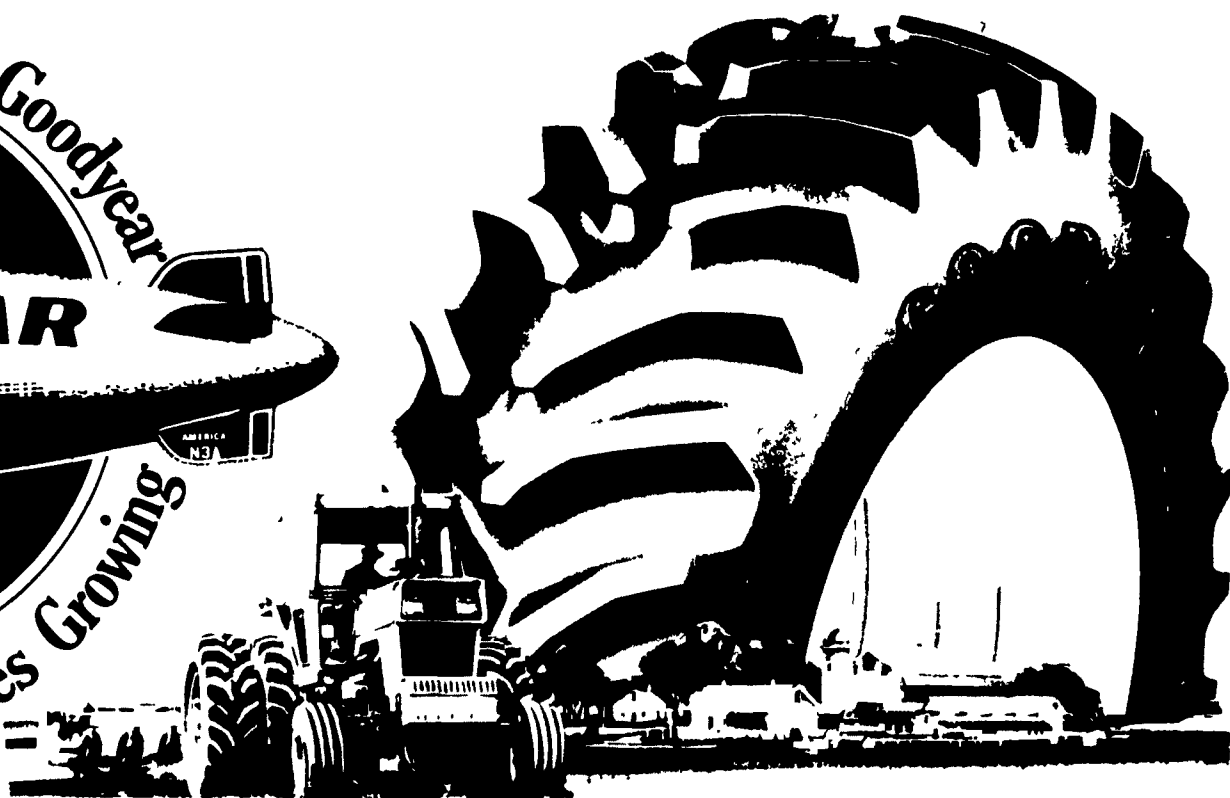

Baytan 30 is available only at Gustafson-certified seed conditioners. For the location nearest you, contact Gustafson at 1-800-638-1404.

Card Grading Offers Alternative Sheep Judging

PITTSBORO, N.C. — Among the many exciting events at the 1992 Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival was a demonstration of card grading, an alternative method of evaluating breeding stock.

The American Minor Breeds
Conservancy sponsored the demonstration to evaluate groups of sheep representing five minor breeds - Cotswold, English Leicester, Clun Forest, Jacob, and Shetlands.

Card grading is an evaluation system designed to measure an animal's breeding potential. It is non-competitive as each animal is measured against standard for the breed rather than other animals at the show or the commercial ideal.
This means that if there are several excellent animals in a group all will be graded as excellent.

Dr. Don Bixby, executive director of AMBC chaired the event.

Other evaluators were David Greene, Cooperative Extension Service sheep specialist for Maryland, and Dr. David Lincicome, sheep and goat breeder and judge.

Each animal is examined by three breed specialists using the breed standard to evaluate each animal. Animals are not compared with pen mates or neighbors.

A verbal or written report is provided by the evaluators and a colored card is attached to the animal or pen which designates its quality as a breeding animal: Blue
- Excellent breeding stock; Red -
Good; Yellow - Acceptable;
White - Unacceptable for breeding.

Unacceptable animals are those which do not conform to the breed standard or are suffering from genetic or physical unsoundness.
These animals are excused from the show and should not be used for breeding or sold as breeding stock.

Greene pointed out that a strong pressure exists among breeders of show stock to select for characteristics favoring success in the show ring. This selection can lead to decreased genetic diversity and even away from soundness and productivity.

The American Minor Breeds Conservancy is an organization of over 4,000 members promoting rare and endangered breeds of livestock and the genetic diversity these breeds represent.

AMBC is promoting card grading, says Bixby, because many judges in the show ring are unfamiliar with rare breeds and therefore evaluate them using the same criteria as for popular commercial breeds.

Plushanski Bull For Testing

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — A young Holstein sire bred by Charles Plushanski, of Kutztown, has been chosen to enter a sire sampling program.

7H4293 Plushanski Findlay-ET, is a Leadman son from one of the breed's highest component cow families. Both his dam and grandam have records of more than 4.1 percent fat and 3.4 percent protein.

The sire was selected by Select Sires for its sampling program based on outstanding pedigree and is one of 185 bulls nationally to enter the program this year.

Empire Farm Days Tradition Continues

STANLEY, N.Y. — As far back as 1933 there has been an agricultural show sponsored by the Empire State Potato Club Inc.

That one was hosted by New York state farmers and was committed to bringing farmers in the Northeast the newest techniques and equipment available to agriculture.

Since then, this annual event has undergone many changes including name, location and size but its sponsor and purpose have remained constant.

Today Empire Farm days has grown to be the largest outdoor, three-day show in the Northeast, with more than 400 exhibitors.

This year's show is scheduled for August 4, 5 & 6.

The event originated as Potato Field Days in 1933. In 1964 the show was called the Potato Field Day and Farm Materials Exhibition and was hosted by Humphreys Farm, Hartford.

In 1965, co-hosts were McCormick Farms and William Gozelski, Gainesville. In 1966, co-hosts were Russell Matthews and Monroe County Department of Parks, Menden.

In 1967 the show had grown to such a magnitude that another name change was required to reflect the scope of the event. Empire Farm Days was born.

Since then, a number of farms have hosted the annual event.

In 1967 Lucian Hills was host; 1968 co-hosts were Smith Coulter, Lincoln Knolls and Harold Rice, Canastota; 1969 Selden Farm, Greigsville; 1970 King Brothers, Lafayette; 1971 John P. Halpin & Sons, Avon; 1972-73 New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, Dryden; 1974-75 Neenan Brothers, Holcomb; 1976-77 John

P. Halpin & Sons, Seneca Castle; 1978-80 N. Palladino & Sons, Pompey; 1981-82 New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell, Dryden; 1983-85 Brock Acres, Holcomb; 1986-87 N. Palladino & Sons, Pompey and 1988-Present Rodman Lott & Sons Farm, Seneca Falls.

Empire Farm Days is also very unique because it has a group of cooperators made up of organizations that have proven to be committed to the same goal of the Empire State Potato Club, Inc.

These cooperators include: American Agriculturist, NYS College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, New York Farm Equipment Dealers' Association, NYS Farm Equipment Club, New York State Electric and Gas Corporation, Rochester Gas and Electric Company and Cornell Cooperative Extension.

CCC Rate 4 1/4 %

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Commodity loans disbursed in July by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation will carry a 4 1/4 percent interest rate, according to Keith Bjerke, executive vice president of the CCC.

The 4 1/4 percent interest rate remains the same as June's 4 1/4 percent and this reflects the interest rate charged CCC by the U.S. Treasury in June.

Hesston harvesters give more forage on less fuel.

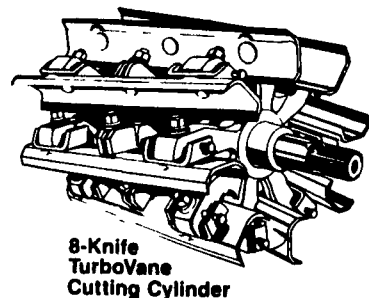

Three Hesston Models...the 7165, 7155 and 7145... offer increased harvesting capacity with the revolutionary 8-Knife TurboVane Cutting Cylinder. This exclusive Hesston design features eight C-2 knives that produce high capacity "scissor-action" cutting that eliminates bunching and carry-over...and gives more output on less fuel!

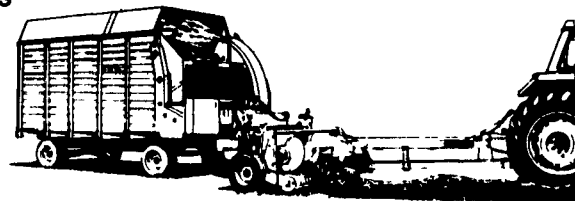

The C-2 knives have two cutting edges that can be reversed for longer service life. And the Auto-Sharp Knife Grinder, standard on the 7155 and 7165, sharpens quickly and easily...anytime and anywhere! It is a self-indexing grinder that sharpens knives with the cylinder running in normal cutting direction.

Straight-Thru Crop-Flo puts more horsepower and fuel into cutting and less into crop handling...eliminates cross augers or spinners that can drain power and waste fuel. And Hesston's new auger base header unit allows you to work more crops on a lower overall investment!

If you want to forage more on less fuel, see your Hesston dealer today about Models 7145, 7155 and 7165...for tractors from 60 to 250 HP!

LVNB Ag Lenders Hold Appreciation Picnic

This 170-pound hog was roasted to perfection by the staff of the Lebanon Valley National Bank ag lending group and friends. It was also eaten in appreciation for the relationship between customers and the banking staff.

Customer appreciation day is annual event for the ag lenders at Lebanon Valley National Bank. This one is held at the Elizabethtown fairgrounds. The staff roasted two hogs and served beans and side dishes for the picnic-style meeting. Customers get a chance to meet and talk with their bankers and discuss all the business that isn't business, and even some of that too.

Rotational Field Day Set

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — A field day on intensive rotational grazing is to be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., August 11, at the Richard Mosemann Dairy Farm in Fulton County, according to Leon Weber, with the Rodale Institute, in Kutztown.

Weber said that the field day is being sponsored in part by Rodale, the Penn State Extension, the Fulton County Conservation District, the county's USDA Soil Conservation Service and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture.

The purpose of the field day is to provide an educational and demonstrative event for anyone interested in intensive rotational grazing, which has been revived in recent years with the application of new technology. The intent is to reduce the cost of feeding cattle and the costs of traditional cultivation of forages.

The goal of intensive rotational grazing is to provide a less time-consuming method of getting high quality forages into the cattle by eliminating the need for most of the traditional crop cultivation and harvesting.

There is a difference between rotational grazing and simply turning out herds to pasture.

Fundamentally, the systems work on establishing small paddocks within a larger field that is planted to variety of forage grasses, legumes, and/or grains.

With the use of portable fencing and watering equipment, cattle are led into the different paddocks to feed, ideally when the plants are prime for grazing. The cattle are allowed to eat until the average height of the forage is trimmed to a certain length. Then the cattle are moved to a different paddock to graze, while the just grazed plot is allowed to recover.

The system has gained the attention of industry researchers and the field day will focus on Mosemann's Warfordsburg-area, 250-acre dairy farm. He has been using rotational grazing on his farm for six years, to date.

Mosemann will discuss management techniques he has learned.

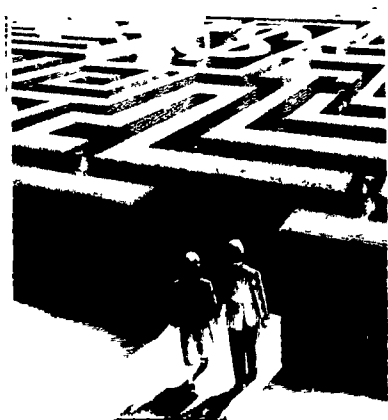

Also, Don Fowler, Fulton County extension agent, is to discuss new and different forage options.

Topics to be covered include grazing pasture, grazing cropland, warm season grasses, brassicas, stream bank protection, watering systems and fencing options.

Preregistration is requested, Weber said. For more information and specific directions to the farm, call Weber at Rodale, at (215) 683-6383.

Governor's School For Ag Sciences In Session

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — College graduates with expertise in agricultural sciences will enjoy a strong employment market through the 1990s, according to a recent USDA report. Positions in marketing, merchandising, and technical areas will be difficult to fill and scientists, engineers, and related specialists will be in great demand.

"There are tremendous opportunities in the agricultural sciences for young people today," said Dr. Marianne Houser, instructor in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Penn State is trying to catch the best and the brightest at an early age to teach them about these career opportunities. This summer, 64 of the state's leading high school students are spending their vacations studying agricultural economics and business, plant and animal science, land use, remote sensing, and computers at the Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences, July 5 to August 8.

The students, who come from both urban and rural areas, were selected from hundreds of applicants for their strong academic credentials and interest in science and technology. Each student has been awarded a full scholarship, which covers tuition, classroom materials, student activities, and room and board in the university's residence halls.

"Governor's School is a once in a lifetime experience," said Houser. "Students are exposed to a wide variety of fields - agricultural economics, and business, animal science, engineering systems, plant science, international agriculture, and managing natural resources and the environment. They learn about methods and techniques of agricultural research, leadership development, and career planning."

Participants also may elect to study entomology, soil and water conservation, remote sensing, and geographic information systems. They work individually with faculty members on independent study projects.

Penn State's extensive teaching and research facilities provide the students with access to classrooms, computers, libraries, and laboratories. Governor's School assistants supervise the students and take part in classes, special events, and field trips.

Governor's School scholars also have the opportunity to meet and interview professionals about career opportunities in industries such as food processing and agricultural communications.

Field trips and activities are planned, including visits to Longwood Botanical Gardens, Hershey Foods, the New Bolton Center at the University of Pennsylvania, the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, and Shaver's Creek Environmental Center.

The Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, the state's intermediate units, and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. For more information contact Marianne Houser or Nancy Walker at (814) 865-7521.

IPM Requires Cooperation, Communication

NEWARK, Del. — As insect pest management programs rely more heavily on biological control agents, pest control can be summarized in the four "P's" — pests, pathogens, parasites and predators, according to Dr. Tommy Allen, chair of the University of Delaware Department of Entomology and Applied Ecology.

"Ever since humans decided to settle down and grow food about 10,000 years ago, there has been a constant battle between humans and insects for the crops," Allen said. "For much of those years, it was problematical who would win the yearly battle. Most of the time, it was the insects."

But in the 1940s, the battle was heavily tipped in favor of the humans. New synthetic chemicals such as DDT gave farmers powerful weapons for pest control. Production and yields soared. The new technology was not without costs, however.

"By the late 1950s farmers and entomologists began to realize that some of these pesticides had a detrimental effect on non-target organisms such as fish, birds, and other wildlife," Allen says. "And target pests built up resistance to the insecticides, thus requiring higher dosages for control. The insects were winning again."

Faced with insect resistance and environmental contamination, entomologists opted for new control strategies. Insect pests had to be managed. This involved a variety of new practices including closely monitoring pest populations and the development of the crop, as well as timing insecticide application for the best effect.

Limiting insecticide applications and using the lowest dose possible helped maximize the effect of natural parasites and predators on the pest population. Entomologists also increased their research efforts to discover and develop biological control organisms including pathogens, parasites, and predators.

"Developing and using biological controls is an arduous task at best," Allen says. "But there have been some successes. Here at the University, Dr. Judith Hough-Goldstein is studying the use of a stink bug, Perillus bioculatus, a natural predator of the Colorado potato beetle. Dr. Clifford Keil has identified and developed a fungus, Pandora gloeospora, that effectively controls flies in mushrooms."

Allen said that Delaware has been highly successful in implementing pest management programs. Due to the efforts of Cooperative Extension pest management specialist Joanne Whalen, many growers now participate in scouting programs, timely application of insecticides and maximizing natural control agents, he said.

"The challenges of modern agriculture are enormous," Allen said. "Researchers, Cooperative Extension personnel and farmers must work together more closely than ever. Communication and cooperation are fundamental if we are to succeed in production agriculture."

Growers who would like more information on pest management programs are invited to contact the Department of Entomology and Applied Ecology at 831-2526.

Dairylea Pays 13th Check

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Dairylea Cooperative Board of Directors recently approved a 5-cent-per-hundredweight cash patronage dividend paid to members on all milk marketed through the cooperative between April 1, 1991, and March 31, 1992.

The allocation marks the end of a year of growth for the 2,500-member milk marketing cooperative.

"Dairylea continues to be financially strong, competitive and a stable market for member milk," said Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford.

This is the fourth consecutive year Dairylea members have received a 13th milk check. In addition to the patronage dividend, members of the Cooperative received more than $13.5 million in premiums during fiscal 1991-92.

According to Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith, Dairylea remains committed to its mission of maximizing returns to members consistent with the development of a sound financial base and effective marketing system.

"Despite low milk prices and an unbalanced supply/demand situation, Dairylea stayed on plan and had a profitable year," Smith said. Pre-tax profits totaled $1.5 million.

Beyond maximizing returns to members, Smith said that Dairylea continued to offer members a variety of innovative, valued and needed services and programs that increase on-farm profitability.

"Our financial services — the member loan program, energy loan program, direct deposit and pre-tax benefit plans for members and their employees — were particularly important to our members. The increased utilization of these services is the proof of their worth," Smith said.

Adding to the cooperative's strength during fiscal 1991-92 were sales of $306.4 million, an increase of 7.5 percent over 1992, and total assets of $42.5 million.

Additionally, the amount of milk marketed grew from 1.98 billion pounds in 1991 to more than 2.2 billion pounds, a volume increase of 13 percent in a milkshed experiencing only a 1 percent increase in production.

Solutions To Corn, Soybean Problems At Crops Expo

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff
BAJR (York Co.)—Like lots of sore thumbs, differences in corn populations can really stand out. Any drive-by inspection of the fields can turn up some really disquieting things, such as planter problems, herbicide injury, or the ever-looming drought stress.

What are some of the ways farmers can counter some of these problems? By attending the 1992 Crops Expo, to be held on Wednesday, Sept. 2, from 9 a.m.-dusk at the York County 4-H Center on Rt. 116 south of Rt. 30.

At the Center, farmers can look at some ways to correct the problems and to ensure a healthier, bountiful crop.

Corn, soy varieties

Crops Expo allows farmers to inspect about 40 corn hybrids (plus exotics) and 28 commercial soybean varieties at the plots. Several acres of land have been allocated to demonstrate the effect of population stresses on different varieties, the effect of variety on plant populations, different types of stresses, and herbicide-injury tolerance in several new varieties of corn.

In one demonstration, two different soybean varieties were planted at different row spacing and different planting dates to examine the interaction between the maturity, row spacing, and planting day.

Different planting densities are shown to affect the standability and health of the soybean crop. "The name of the game with soybeans is to get your row spacing completely filled in with foliage so you trap as much light as you can," said John Rowehl, York County extension agent and coordinator of the Expo. "Some varieties tend to bush out more than others, so if you're working with wide rows, you want to look for something like that."

Other plots show different types of fertilizer treatments, effects of unevenness in corn stands, alfalfa seeding and fungicide treatment results, and other demonstrations.

Herbicide-tolerant

At the herbicide plots, there will be four different herbicide-tolerant variety demonstrations, including two corn and two soybean studies. The demonstrations will show how the varieties respond to some herbicides that would normally kill the susceptible lines, said Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist. Using herbicide-resistant corn or soybeans "can be an advantage in some situations where a farmer has a particular weed problem," he said.

According to Rowehl, Crops Expo "is a cooperative effort between the county agents in this region and the state specialists." The five-county capitol region is hosting the event, sponsored by the agronomy department of Penn State.

Crops Expo, the first of its kind, borrows elements from the older Crop Days, which was held annually at Landisville and other locations. But according to Rowehl, because of the distance to travel or other reasons, it was hard to get people to attend.

The location was also critical. The York extension agent said that the Crops Expo will be able to attract people from surrounding counties. And, for farmers who also hold a separate full-time day job, the plots will be open till dusk for inspection.

Demonstration different

What makes the Crops Expo different from crop days in the past is the lack of the "if-this-is-Tuesday,-it-must-be-Belgium" philosophy that forces attendees along like clockwork. The plots are set up to be inspected at will, with written information that provides for location, name, and other details.

Farmers can take their time and look at different corn varieties and maturities. The Crops Expo does not provide intensive, repeatable studies, but simple demonstrations farmers can use as a guide in selecting seed.

But the main emphasis will be to bring the Expo as close to "hands-on" as possible. On the old Crops Days, said Rowehl, "they put people on a wagon, OK, and they drive you around, and you stop, and there's a guy standing there, and you're sitting on a wagon, and the guy talks to you. He tells you all about things he's doing, what you would expect to see, what they're working on, why they're working on it, and then you go to the next stop. Nobody hardly ever got off and walked around to look and see anything. And this is what we're trying to do — give people a chance to actually walk through and see something."

Rowehl said Penn State wants to try to "put up demonstrations that you actually see visual differences. It's not like they just kind of talk there and at the end of the year they take yield data and they publish it."

Herbicide-tolerant corn varieties will be open for display, according to John Rowehl, York extension agent, at the Expo.

John Rowehl, York extension agent, stands at the center of a corn population wheel, surrounded by what will be 18-foot high tropical corn, to be featured at the Crops Expo.

Summaries available

Rowehl said that there will be an organized schedule of events, but summaries of the demonstrations will be available for all plots.

Food stands will be set up by the York 4-H clubs for those who attend. Commercial exhibitors will also be available, much like the county crops days.

For more information about the Expo, contact Paul Craig at the Dauphin County extension office, (717) 921-8803 or John Rowehl, York extension office, (717) 757-9657.

Sundaes On The Steps Tuesday

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Pennsylvania's dairy industry will return to the State Capitol, for a "Sundaes on the Steps" promotion, Tuesday, July 21, from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The event is part of a statewide promotion, "Pennsylvanians Scream for Ice Cream," with similar events planned in Altoona, Scranton and Erie. This year's event will be like others with sundaes available to the public on a first come, first served basis.

The event has been sponsored for many years by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and area ice cream manufacturers. For the 1992 event, two new promotion partners have joined the event, WNNK-FM and the Central Pennsylvania March of Dimes. The promotional event will be a fundraiser for the March of Dimes, as persons will be asked to donate $.25 per sundae to the March of Dimes.

An additional feature of this year's event will be a celebrity milking contest. WNNK personalities along with other celebrities will be competing in the contest. The cow at the center of the competition, "Roxy," will be provided by Dale Pride Farms, owned by Dale Hostetter and his sons Allen and Ernest, from Annville, Lebanon County.

All sundaes will be complete with plenty of fixings. Hershey Foods will be providing the chocolate and strawberry toppings, Tastysnack Foods will be serving the nuts, and Brookwood Farms will have whipped cream available to top off the sundaes. Area manufacturers who are providing the ice cream include: Green's, Hershey Creamery, Jack and Jill, PenSupreme, and Turkey Hill.

The entire promotion campaign is a tribute to Pennsylvania's large ice cream industry. Pennsylvania's ice cream manufacturers produced 74 million gallons of ice cream in 1991, ranking the state as the second largest producer of ice cream. Ice cream is also being touted as an excellent treat packed with plenty of calcium, protein and riboflavin.

Everyone is encouraged to come to the State Capitol steps on July 21, to enjoy a sundae and provide support to the Central Pennsylvania March of Dimes. Further information about the promotion is available by calling (717) 787-6903.

Animal Housing Expo

tion of livestock producers and because the facilities are more than adequate.

Robert Graves, a professor with PSU Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department, discussed the decision making process involved in deciding to remodel, or build animal housing.

Other speakers were Bob Bassler, engineer and construction manager for the University of Maryland Agricultural Experimentation Station, who presented a method for determining site location and farm layout; a panel of local agricultural lenders discussed their requirements and information needed in order to qualify for a loan; three concurrent seminars were held discussing environmental requirements for dairy, swine and poultry; Ray Lehr, vice president and general manager of the feed marketing division of Pennfield, talked in general terms about the regulations affecting housing; and Leon Ressler, environmental and ag systems agent for PSU Extension, talked about manure management and marketing.

In his talk, Graves said that "Most people overestimate the value of an existing building and undervalue the cost to renovate."

According to Graves, one of the biggest mistakes is to try to make up for poor location by making modifications. In certain instances, no matter what is done will never allow the building to function well, he said.

He said that in his years of work, he has learned that if you have enough money, renovation is possible. However, it may very well be wasting money and also increasing the risk of not providing proper housing.

Graves said it is imperative that building and renovation considerations must be based on the requirements of the animals.

"Just because (a building) exists doesn't make it right to continue to use it," he said. Some buildings are not suitable for raising animals, no matter the personal attachment, or financial expediency, Graves said.

Also, he said that evaluating a building is difficult because tough questions must be asked and an objective review of the building must be made.

For existing buildings, one must ask, "Why is this building available?" he said, citing instances where someone may be using a building for animal production merely because it was constructed years ago and hasn't fallen down.

He said many older designs were not based on scientific research, but on human perception of what animals need. More recent research, unavailable 20 years ago, can make existing buildings obsolete.

Those buildings can also put the producer at a disadvantage because they may be more labor intensive to work with and the livestock may not grow as rapidly or as healthily.

Graves said that producers need to look at a building as though they were going to buy the building, not sell it. He said that if that perspective, the one used when negotiating from a buyers standpoint, is good to use in evaluating a building.

Specific things a prospective builder or renovator must consider before taking action is the layout and functional relationship of the building to other buildings on the farm.

Considerations, such as the accessibility of fresh air, light and water, the amount of space and needs for ease of manure handling, and the accessibility for feed handling, must be made.

Previous investments made in a building must not dictate the decision to renovate or build, Graves said. Also, the ability to observe the animals, catch and restrain them, provide treatment and load them for transport must be considered, he said.

From the left, agricultural lenders Roger Rohrer with Hamilton Bank, Mike Firestone with Lebanon Valley National Bank, and Richard Smith with Keystone Farm Credit, talk to livestock producers about some of the requirements they need in order to provide approved loans, such as nutrient management plans, even though the plans are not legally required for nutrient management. This panel and many other speakers were highlighted during the first Animal Housing Expo at Lebanon Fairgrounds.

Furthermore, the location requirements, the direction of the wind, odors, and future expansion must be considered.

For a cost analysis of the renovating or building, two costs must be considered — the tangible and the intangible.

Graves said that tangible costs include those things which are straight out of pocket costs. The intangible costs include those things such as reduced building performance and reduced animal performance.

As a rule of thumb, he said, calculate the cost of renovation work to be double that for building new.

He said that an example would be repairing a damaged floor or foundation. Renovation is more time-consuming because workers need to work around existing physical aspects of the building, rather than completing them in order as is done when doing new construction.

He said that if the estimated cost of renovation comes to two-thirds and three-quarters the cost of building new, then build a new structure.

Graves also provided a priority list for considering whether to renovate or build new and the last one is structural soundness, although it must be considered.

However, "The first thing to consider," he said, "is location. The second consideration is location and the third consideration is location."

In those considerations, however, Graves said to look at wind direction, access (with fire protection, visitor control, possible expansion, ventilation. Structural consideration is near the bottom of the list.

"A lot of buildings are structurally sound, but we really can't get it to be adequate for raising animals," he said. He also suggested alternative uses for those buildings.

He said that if it's impossible to get even one of the requirements for an ideal building, then scrap the idea.

"The needs of the animal come first," he said.

Bob Bassler, who has laid out and cares for the University of Maryland Research Station, followed up with site selection and also said to take the animals' needs into high account. However, Bassler also presented a computer modeling of a farm to determine building site and rough dimension.

Bassler said to draw out the idea of where a building might go. He said to draw a map roughly to scale, and to include north, the direction of the wind, any water and its flow, the natural drainage of the land, roads, utility lines, and any other special considerations that may be appropriate.

When the map is complete with all items of possible consideration charted out, then Bassler said to draw circles, radiating outward in 100 foot increments, with the farm house enclosed in the first.

From there, its easier to map out possible arrangements of buildings in context with what kind of operation the producer seeks to own and what restrictions of the land apply.

He also said to consider the 100-foot radiating circles as four major zones. In those zones certain things should be built and others should not.

For example, the manure storage should go somewhere within the most distant, or fourth, zone, he said. And depending on wind direction and other aspects of the property, the appropriate place for the pit will become apparent.

Mostly Bassler said to gather as much specific information as possible on the housing, care, feed storage, etc., of the livestock species being considered and make many maps to come up with a number of alternative plans before settling on one. He said to also take time to consider how the farm might actually function under the different plans.

"Somewhere around the fifth to tenth plan you'll start getting closer to the idea and you'll get some really good ideas," Brassler said.

He said to consider the appearance and ease of functionality, noting that people inspecting and visiting the farm have a better attitude about the operation based on appearance.

Also, consider the possibility of change in equipment and machinery, he said, showing a slide of a narrow area built by a farmer through which his current make and model tractor could just fit. A different model tractor would probably not fit.

The panel of agricultural lenders included Roger Rohrer, vice president of ag lending at Hamilton Bank in Lancaster; Micheal Firestone, vice president of ag lending at Lebanon Valley National Bank; and Richard Smith, branch manager for Keystone Farm Credit ACA, in Annville.

All said that in addition to the cash flow and financial requirements, the all require a nutrient management plan, urging any farmer wishing to make a loan to have one created.

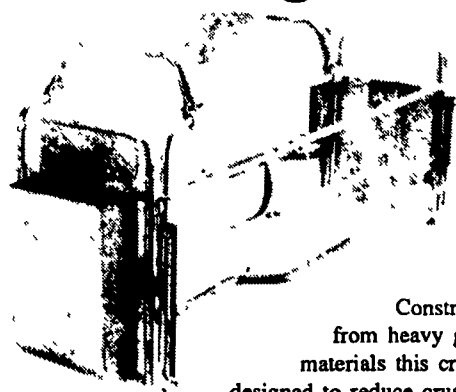

The also said that they all require an inspection of the property for environmental reasons and that the inspection requirement is

Corn Varieties Resist Herbicides Differently

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Not all corn varieties are created equal — and that's doubly true when it comes to how well they tolerate herbicide injury.

That's the message nearly 60 visitors to the annual Weed Tour at the Penn State Southeastern Field Research Laboratory took home with them Monday. The field day and tour covered a variety of plots to examine herbicide resistance (particularly in several sulfonylurea-tolerant corn and soybean varieties) and the effects of several new soon-to-be-released herbicides.

But what was also striking at the weed tour is that different varieties of corn respond differently to new sulfonylurea herbicides. One study, replicated at a York County research site, clearly demonstrated how varieties differ.

According to Bill Curran, Penn State weed specialist who spoke at the weed tour, two corn varieties, a Pioneer Imidazolinone-resistant (IR) 3343 and Garst ICI 8532 (herbicide-tolerant variety) were sprayed with sulfonylurea herbicides such as Classic, Pursuit, and Scepter. In the study, the Pioneer IR variety performed better and was more tolerant to the herbicides than the Garst herbicide-tolerant variety, according to Curran.

More tolerance

"The Pioneer IR variety is resistant or has more tolerance to those sulfonylureas, whereas the Garst hybrid does not," particularly when Classic was used, said the weed specialist.

Farmers and application specialists can use some of the findings to plan for carryover and other concerns in their next planting, according to Curran.

Other studies conducted at the tour included the effects of reduced-Atrazine label uses of several products to be released, including Bicep Lite and Dual II.

Other new herbicides on study include Battillion, an experimental broadleaf product from Monsanto; Broadstrike, a low use broadleaf control from Dow Elanco; Frontier, a grass preemergence herbicide from Sandoz; and ICIA5676, an experimental grass preemergence herbicide from ICI. Many of these products, according to Curran, won't be available for two years or more.

Herbicides scrutinized

Several postemergence trials involving new products such as Permit were conducted, and a new product such as Tough, a post-emergence broadleaf weed control from Agrilens, were studied. Also, common herbicides for post-emergence were scrutinized and the results of the studies were on display.

Several other studies examined sulfonylurea tolerance in several varieties of soybeans. Many of the predominant soybean herbicides are postemergence. But for tolerant seed varieties, one, a Williams variety, is more tolerant to several sulfonylurea herbicides, particularly Pinnacle.

It was a little easier to see the effects of the tolerance at this year's tour than during last year's drought, according to Curran. The Bill Curran, weed specialist at Penn State, shows the effects of herbicide tolerance on two varieties of corn at the Weed Field Day in Landisville.

postemergence studies offered improved results because of better weed pressure. "We always look for lots of weed pressure," he said. "In the post study, there's a lot of foxtail, there's a lot of lambsquarters, there's some velvetleaf, and you'll see it somewhat scattered in the preemergence study, but it's still pretty good."

Curran pointed out the great predominance of foxtail in the area, and said farmers cannot rely on Atrazine by itself to control that persistent weed.

Treat it early

To control foxtail, according to facility manager John Yocum, it is important to treat it early like many of the other weed grasses. Also, the suppression of a weed such as Canada thistle, common in the area, is critical if done early enough in its growth period.

Curran also spoke about several studies involving rye as a cover crop and residue and the effects on corn varieties.

"We saw some pretty negative effects from the large rye and also the rye that was taken off as ryeage," said Curran. "The corn was stunted and was yellow, and you can still see in those plants some height reductions where the rye residues were. We're trying to get a better handle on what sort of negative effects that could additionally come about from rye."

The results of the studies will have long-term benefits, especially the many Atrazine-resistant weeds in the area.

"There's a lot of interest in developing crops that are resistant to herbicides, trying to use products that are effective, to broaden the market," said Curran.

Other studies under way at the facility involve alfalfa variety trials, sweet corn and popcorn variety trials, insecticide studies on Colorado potato beetles, tobacco pesticide studies, wheat studies, and fruit tree studies.

John C. Ite, Hoffman Seeds representative, checks out the postemergence herbicide studies at the Weed Field Day on Monday.

New President Wants Beef Expo At Farm Show Complex

BETH MILLER

Adams Co. Correspondent
McKNIGHTSTOWN (Adams Co.) — Ray Grimes sure picked a busy way to retire.

When he retired from selling fuel oil 21 years ago, he turned around and went into raising beef cattle on his Adams County farm just west of McKnightstown.

Grimes hasn't had much time to relax since then, especially now that he is the new president of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

"Farming is in my blood," Grimes said.

Grimes began his one-year term as association president in March. He worked his way through the ranks, serving as treasurer and vice president before becoming president.

The cattlemen's association works for the best interests of the state breeder's association and various county associations for beef growers. It promotes its members' products and lobbies on issues that are important to cattlemen.

The group also sponsors an annual beef exposition, which was started three years ago and is held at Penn State University in State College.

Grimes has a new idea for the Expo, however. He said he would like to see it moved to the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The move is needed, he said, because the Expo requires more space. More exhibitors also might come to the trade show that is part of the Expo if the event were in Harrisburg, he said.

The Expo is growing in popularity, he said. One of the most popular events is the Junior Show. The Expo includes educational seminars, breed shows, and sales as well.

Grimes said a majority of cattlemen's association members are in favor of the idea of moving the expo to the Farm Show Complex.

Farm show officials haven't approved the proposal yet, but it looks good that they will, he said.

Grimes said he also wants to bring a program the National Cattlemen's Association has started to Pennsylvania.

The Integrated Resources Management Program provides expert analysis of a cattleman's total farm operation and helps farmers improve on the cost of having a cow-to-calf operation, he said.

Grimes and his wife, Mary, raise 250 head of Charolais beef cattle on their South Mountain Farm.

They own more than 200 acres and rent another 500 acres. In addition to raising cattle, they grow Christmas trees.

They purchased the farm in 1966 and bought their first Charolais cow and calf. They planted their first Christmas tree five years later.

Both of the businesses have grown well since then, although droughts over the last several years have not helped the tree operation, Grimes said.

Grimes' hard work is his hobby as well and he likes showing off a little each year when he takes his best cattle to the State Farm Show, the Eastern National, the Shipensburg Fair in Franklin County, the York Fair in York County, and the South Mountain Fair in Adams County.

Forestry Workshop Scheduled

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — An Urban and Community Forestry Workshop, designed to address tree planting and care and retention of trees and forest cover in the nation, was held Tuesday, July 14, at Greensburg Garden and Civic Center. The conference began with registration at 8:30 a.m.

Speakers covered a variety of subjects including site analysis and species selection for community planting, preparing tree maintenance contracts, formation of a shade tree commission, and organizing a volunteer tree improvement project.

Dairylea Asks Casey To Support Ag

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Recognizing the vital importance of research to the success of a farming operation, Dairylea Cooperative recently urged Pennsylvania Gov. Robert Casey to continue funding the agricultural and research efforts of The Pennsylvania State University and the veterinary medicine program at the University of Pennsylvania.

"Dairy farmers — indeed, all farmers — today are facing increasing pressure to compete in the international marketplace," said Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford. Rutherford said that in order for farmers to maximize their efficiencies to enable them to compete effectively, they look to apply the results of research conducted by colleges and universities.

Equally important, said Rutherford, is that the working relationship between a dairy farmer and a veterinarian is crucial to a dairy farm's success. Farmers are expected to manage their herds to produce high quality milk, a responsibility that requires farmers to work closely with their veterinarians. If the Pennsylvania Veterinary Medicine School closes, it would make it much more difficult for Pennsylvania farmers to have access to top-notch veterinary care and research, Rutherford said.

Agriculture remains Pennsylvania's largest industry, Rutherford stressed, and dairy farming is the keystone of that industry. "Dairy farmers deserve, and rely on, support from Penn State and the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary Medicine School," he said.

Dairylea, a Syracuse-based milk marketing cooperative with 2,500 farmer members throughout the Northeast, participates in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Corn, Oat Stocks Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's corn and oat stocks on June 1, totaled 28.2 million bushels and 2.5 million bushels, respectively, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

At the same time last year, corn stocks were 43.1 million bushels and oats stock totaled 4.0 million bushels.

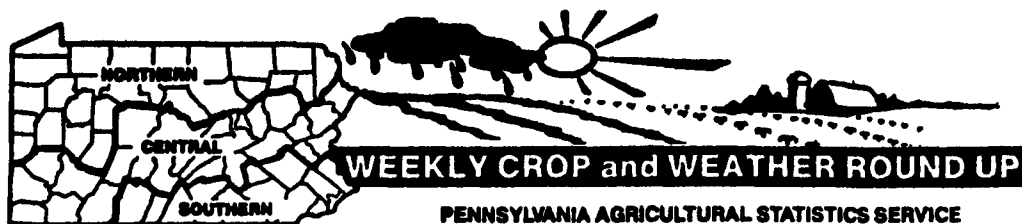

Corn stocks on farms totaled 22.0 million bushels, down 41 percent from 37.0 million in 1991. Oat stocks at 1.85 million bushels were also down 41 percent from the 1991 inventory of 3.10 million bushels.

Off-farm grain stocks were: corn - 6.17 million bushels, up 1 percent from 6.09 million in 1991; oats - 650 thousand bushels, down 31 percent from 948 thousand in 1991; barley - 170 thousand bushels, down 69 percent from 548 thousand in 1991; wheat - 1.93 million bushels, down 44 percent from 3.46 million bushels in 1991; soybeans - 720 thousand, down 13 percent from 828 thousand bushels in 1991.

Nationally, corn stored in all positions on June 1, 1992, is estimated at 2.74 billion bushels, down 8 percent from June 1, 1991. Barley stored in all positions on June 1, 1992, is estimated at 130 million bushels, 4 percent below the stocks of June 1, 1991. Oats stored in all positions on June 1, 1992, totaled 127 million bushels, down 26 percent from June 1, 1991.

Old crop all wheat in all storage positions on June 1, 1992, totaled 472 million bushels, down 45 percent from June 1, 1991.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 12

GOOD WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: Above-average temperatures and below-average precipitation across the commonwealth allowed five days suitable for fieldwork. Activities included spraying, cultivating, top-dressing corn, hauling manure, spreading fertilizer, maintaining machinery, planting, cutting and baling hay, combining, and caring for livestock.

SOIL MOISTURE: By week's end, topsoil moisture was rated short by 47 percent of our respondents, adequate by 50 percent, and surplus by 3 percent. Forty-one percent of our respondents in the northern region rated soil moisture as short and 59 percent rated it adequate. In the central region, 53 percent of our reporters rated soil moisture as short and 47 percent rated it adequate. In the southern region, 42 percent of the respondents rated soil moisture as short, 47 percent as adequate, and 11 percent surplus.

CORN: The corn crop for the state was rated 22 percent excellent, 50 percent good, 22 percent fair, 5 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor.

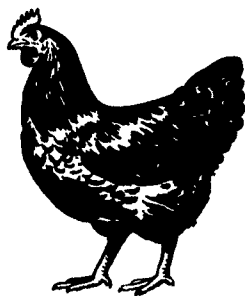

SOYBEANS: Soybean planting was 96 percent complete. That was 3 percentage points below last year but the same as the five-year average.

OATS: The oats progress by the end of the week was rated 70 percent headed or in the process of heading, 25 percent turning yellow, and 5 percent ripe. Last year at this time, 23 percent of the crop was in the process of heading or in headed stage, 46 percent was turning yellow, 21 percent was ripe, and 10 percent was harvested. Oats condition was rated 22 percent excellent, 57 percent good, 17 percent fair, 3 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor.

BARLEY AND WHEAT: Barley was 16 percent in headed stage, 21 percent turning yellow, 20 percent ripe, and 43 percent harvested. At this time last year, 3 percent was yellow, 14 percent ripe, and 83 percent harvested. Wheat was 18 percent in the heading or headed stage, 47 percent turning yellow, 31 percent ripe, and 4 percent harvested. Last year at this time, 10 percent was turning yellow, 33 percent was ripe, and 57 percent harvested. The wheat crop across the state was rated 24 percent excellent, 57 percent good, 15 percent fair, 2 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor.

FRUIT: Twenty-two percent of the commonwealth's peaches were rated below average, 72 percent were rated average, and 6 percent were rated above average. Apples were rated 18 percent below average, 67 percent average, and 15 percent above average.

HAY AND PASTURE: By week's end the first cutting of alfalfa was 98 percent complete. Last year at this time it was 100 percent complete. The second cutting of alfalfa was 33 percent complete. Last year it was 57 percent complete. The quality of hay made was rated good by 42 percent of our reporters, fair by 50 percent, and poor by 8 percent. The quality of feed being obtained from pastures was rated good by 24 percent of our reporters, fair by 47 percent, poor by 21 percent, and very poor by 8 percent.

Somerset Beef Producers Hold Jackpot Show

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — More than 105 animals were in competition at the Somerset Co. Beef Jackpot Show held at the county fairgrounds here.

"particularly high quality," and "very competitive."

Heather Fuls, 11, Berlin, was named Somerset County champion exhibitor. The daughter of Kevin and Karen Fuls, she bought her steer from Klinger Farms in Missouri.

Dan Ferko, 18, Central City, was Somerset County reserve champion exhibitor. Doubling the sweetness for Ferko, his steer was chosen grand champion sale animal from the Club Calf Sale, held last October. It was purchased from Rachael and Greta Mostoller, Boswell.

Other county exhibitor winners were Jerry Ferko, Kevin Stahl, and Lindsey Schmuck. Reserve sale champion was Tim Bishop. Other Club Calf Sale winners were Derrick Crane, Chris Schmuck, and Ben Logan.

"They (steers) are well-fed and well-presented," said Carrothers. "I'm impressed with the kids," he said, stating that their behavior was courteous. He also noted with approval the young ages of some of the kids handling the animals in the five-hour show.

Ryan Luellen, 17, Mooreland, Indiana, right, had the reserve grand champion steer at the Somerset County Beef Jackpot Show. With him is event judge, Kent Carrothers.

The event was held by the Somerset Co. Beef Producers and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

Pa. Lamb And Wool Queen

first in the Pennsylvania Junior Shepherds Contest for the last two years. "It's really tough competition," she said. "And I feel honored to have earned it."

This will be Amysue's last year in 4-H competition. After that, she plans to compete in open classes. "Open shows are much tougher so I wanted to get some top quality sheep," she said. To get those sheep, Amysue traveled to Springfield, Illinois for the National Oxford Show.

"It was so nice to meet the people I read about in sheep magazines," she said. "But the best part was buying three ewes to add to my show string of sheep."

In addition to the three new ewes, Amysue's show string includes 8 to 10 Oxfords from her own flock.

In the past, Amysue sent her excess flock to the stockyards, but this year she plans to sell freezer lamb.

"It's the first time I'm trying this, but I picked up some pointers from other producers so I'm looking forward to it," she said.

Amysue has often participated in Leadline and Make-It-With-Wool contests throughout the years.

"It's a neat promotion for people to see wool outfits modeled," she said.

Amysue picked up her sewing skills from her mother. "My mom taught me through 4-H's U-2 program. Because I live too far away from a sewing club to keep running back and forth to meetings, the U-2 program allowed my mother to serve as a 4-H leader to me," she said.

Amysue has also taken classes to learn to spin wool. Now that she has accumulated many skeins, she plans to find someone to knit her a sweater since she can not knit.

She graduated from Governor Mifflin High School, where mostly urban students attend and no ag classes are offered. School activities included playing clarinet in the band, being a member of the bowling team and stage crew, and playing defense for Powder Puff Football.

Amysue's petite size is deceiving because in football she loves "to run people down and play rough."

She said, "I actually learned to play rough at fairs and at the Farm Show because after the crowd went home we (exhibitors) stayed and played football in the show ring."

Now that she wears the Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool crown, Amysue's duties at the Farm Show and fairs require her hand out ribbons and lamb samples.

To earn the title of queen, Amysue first needed to win the county title — Berks County Lamb and Wool Queen. The county title made her eligible to compete for the state crown. To do so, she needed to write an article about promoting lamb and wool, construct a promotional display, and present a speech to the general assembly at the Pennsylvania Wool Growers Symposium.

She then appeared before a panel of three judges for an interview process.

Amysue enjoys seeing people's reaction when they first taste lamb.

She said, "Many people are surprised how good lamb tastes because during World War II, the soldiers were served lots of mutton, which is tough and tasteless. When they came home, they never wanted to eat it again so a whole generation grew up not eating lamb. Or, they may have tried New Zealand lamb, which has a strong taste — more of a gamey flavor from being raised on the range."

According to Amysue, American lamb has more of a mild flavor because sheep are fed both grass and grain.

"Look for the little seal, American Lamb, when you buy lamb in the store," she tells people as she hands out samples.

She believes the secret to encouraging consumers to purchase more lamb is to give them quick and easy recipes for lamb.

"My favorite is Lamb with Lemon Pepper Seasoning — it's the easiest thing in the world to make," she said.

Here is the recipe:

LEMON PEPPER SEASONING

Sprinkle garlic salt and lemon pepper seasoning on both sides of leg steaks, lamb chops, or desired cut. Grill or broil 4 to 5 minutes per side until cooked to desired doneness. Best done when slightly pink in the middle.

Ice Cream Safari At Erie Zoo

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — If you are an adventurer, then you will want to join the first-ever "Ice Cream Safari," at the Erie Zoo, Thursday, July 23, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The "Safari" is part of a statewide campaign, "Pennsylvanians Scream for Ice Cream," designed to promote the state's large ice cream industry. Additional events are being conducted in Altoona, Scranton and Harrisburg.

Visitors to the event will be required to carry a passport throughout the "Safari" as they sample various flavors and forms of ice cream and other frozen dairy desserts. Five ports are planned on the tour. The first port-of-call will be the Polar Bear Express where people can sample soft serve frozen yogurt. The next stop on the tour will be at "Flamingos" where youngsters can make their own "Tin Can Ice Cream."

To pass through the entrances to the Children's Zoo, the third visit of the "Safari," visitors will have to sample some ice cream novelties. The next port will be a period to relax and observe the process of homemade ice cream churning in the Zoo's Pavilion. The final, and most scrumptious stop, will be at the sundae bar near the Elephant's and Train Station.

The "Safari" is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association/F.O. 36 Agency, and the Erie Zoo. Additional co-sponsors include Dairy Foods of Erie, Meadow Brook Dairy and Joy Cone Company. Area Dairy Princesses and promoters will also be assisting with the promotion.

Everyone is encouraged to come to the Erie Zoo on July 23, to travel through the "Ice Cream Safari," and learn more about the wonders of ice cream. Further information about the promotion is available by calling the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program at (717) 787-6903 or the Erie Zoo at (814) 864-4091.

Farmers May Change Soybean Plans

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Don't try to convince most commercial crop and vegetable farmers east of the Mississippi River of the global warming concept. Temperatures have been far below normal during most of the growing season.

Sweet-corn research by a University of Maryland horticulturist indicates that degree-days at the Wye Research and Education Center were only 65 percent of normal during the period from May 5 through June 30.

As a result, commercial growers involved with a wide spectrum of crops may need to change plans to avoid possible economic disaster this fall in the event of early killing frost.

Local Farmers Get Free Market Space

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — The Reading Terminal Market, located in center city Philadelphia, is one of the country's oldest, continuously operating farmer's markets. Every week 80,000 customers buy food from the market's 75 merchants. Gross sales for merchants exceed $1,000 per square foot.

On Saturday, July 25, the Reading Terminal Market is hosting Farmer's Market Days, to promote farm fresh foods grown and produced by local and regional farmers. Farmers are encouraged to come to the market on that day to sell products.

Farmers will be provided with a minimum selling space measuring 8' x 8', with an 8' long table. Those participating must arrive at the Market by 8 a.m., and use the loading dock entrance on Arch Street near 11th Street. Parking spaces will be provided at a cost of $8. No rent will be charged.

More than 15,000 people are expected to shop at the market that day. Saturday is the market's busiest day. Participants can expect to sell a significant quantity of products.

Farmers must reserve a place to participate. Please call Duane Perry at (215)592-8774 to reserve a space or for more information.

Those who plant soybeans after small grain in a double-crop operation are a prime example, according to representatives of the Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources (MIANR) in the University of Maryland System.

This year's wheat and barley harvest is running about 10 days behind normal, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

So followup planting of soybeans already has been delayed past the July 10 deadline recommended by agents of the Cooperative Extension Service, a part of MIANR.

Paul L. Gunther, director of the Cooperative Extension Service in Queen Anne's County, advises farmers involved with double-cropping on the Delmarva peninsula to plant a soybean variety this year from the middle range of the Group III list instead of a later-maturing Group IV variety that would be planted in a normal year.

Information on suitable varieties for various locations around the state can be found in the 1992 edition of Maryland Soybean Variety Tests (Agronomy Mimeo 32), available free from Cooperative Extension Service offices in all 23 Maryland counties.

Gunther urged farmers to waste no time getting soybeans planted as soon as a wheat field is harvested. He calls to mind the long-standing rule-of-thumb: "Every day that planting is delayed past July 10 means a bushel-per-acre yield loss in the fall."

And he reminded veteran farmers that the shorter maturity height of Group III soybeans being recommended this year is not the cause for concern that it might have been five years ago or more. Short soybeans can still yield well, he noted, and the floating or "flex" heads on modern combines can do a good job of harvesting short plants.

In contrast to hard, dry conditions of recent drought years, most Maryland soils contain sufficient moisture this year to make planting fairly easy.

Gunther recommended adjusting planter depth to achieve good soil-seed contact. On the upper Eastern Shore, this means a depth of about one inch.

Seeds from the Group III variety list should be planted at a rate of two to three seeds per foot of row if drilled in seven-inch row widths. Plant six to seven seeds per foot of row if using 17- to 19-inch row widths.

Gunther heads the 1993 planning committee for the Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference, an annual event held each year in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center at Salisbury. Next year's conference is set for Feb. 10.

Sponsoring organizations include agribusiness organizations and the Cooperative Extension Service at land-grant universities in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

29th All-American Dairy Show Announced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "A tradition of excellence will dominate at our 29th show, not only in the quality of the 2,000 plus cattle, but of the show's hospitality as well," said Obie Snider as he announced the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show dates and judges for 1992.

Snider, president of the PA Dairy & Allied Industries Association, added, "This spectacular dairy event will open on Sept. 21 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. In four days, over more than 2,000 cattle, from six breeds, are to compete in six national shows.

The Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show will kick off the show ring competition on Monday, Sept. 21. In addition to the cattle show, youth from all over the nation will compete in the Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest. This cattle judging contest features 4-H, FFA, and collegiate competition.

On Tuesday, Sept. 22, Brown Swiss breeders will be competing in the Eastern National Brown Swiss Show with Richard Keene, Gilbertsville, N.Y. as judge. Additionally, the Milking Shorthorn Show will be Tuesday with Jim Patterson, Greenville, Ohio, officiating.

The Eastern National Ayrshire

Show is to be held on Wednesday, Sept. 23 with Lowell Lindsey of Guelph, Ontario, officiating. A National Guernsey Show is also to be held Wednesday, with Robert Fitzsimmons, of East Montpelier, Vermont, officiating.

Holstein breeders need to mark their calendar for Thursday, Sept. 24, when the Eastern National Holstein Show is to be judged by Gary Estes of Ozark, Missouri.

Also, on Thursday, the All-American will host the Mid-

Atlantic Regional Jersey Show, with Dennis Patrick of Woodbine, Md., officiating.

In addition to the national shows, dairymen will have the opportunity to purchase some outstanding cattle as the All-American hosts the Invitational Brown Swiss Sale, Pennsylvania Elite Ayrshire Sale and the Eastern National Holstein Sale.

Continuing on the tradition of excellence, the show will culminate with the selection and recognition of the top dairy cow, the naming of the Pennsylvania All-American Supreme Champion, on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 24.

The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and the Pennsylvania Farm Products Show Commission. Call 717-787-2905 for entry forms and additional information.

N.Y., N.J. Market Pays $12.93

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during June 1992 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.93 per hundredweight (27.8 cents per quart); the price of the corresponding month last year was $11.04 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce also stated that the price was $12.36 in May 1992. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan has been suspended for April-November 1992. The plan would have removed 40 cents per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for June. The monies deducted, plus accrued interest, would have been returned in the August through November uniform price calculation.

A total of 12,185 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 970,501,794 pounds of milk during June. This was an increase of 3.9 percent (about 36 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $126,171,279.96. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 356,795,589 pounds of milk for Class I, 36.8 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For June handlers paid $13.88 per hundredweight (29.8 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $12.46 a year ago.

Handlers used 169,032,782 pounds of milk for Class II products, 17.4 percent of the total. Class II products include fluid cream, egg nog, cottage cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $13.07 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For June there was a price differential of 7.1 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Database Helps Ag Students

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Thanks to a new computer file that organizes and describes almost 500 national and international internships, students in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences can search for the internship they feel best suits their personal and academic needs.

"In the past, we'd publicize job availability through counseling sessions, putting notices on bulletin boards or passing out flyers in class," said Dr. James E. Diamond, assistant professor of agricultural extension and coordinator of the college's internship programs.

"We had all this information in big stacks of paper in each of the departments," he said. "Although this system may have seemed effective, it's possible that some students were not sure of all their options in the internship program."

"Now our undergraduates can access computers that feature our new database," he said. "Across the college's 20 undergraduate programs, the database currently contains details on 476 summer internships offered by private corporations and government offices in the U.S. and abroad."

"A wide range of positions are available in research, production and marketing throughout the agricultural industry," he said. "A qualified student may get an internship as an assistant wildlife biologist, a greenskeeper trainee, an animal health technician or a sales data and market research assistant."

"There is even a summer position at Disney World's EPCOT Center, where the intern is responsible for helping to manage about 30 crops for the Kraft General Foods exhibit The Land."

Students can review the internship file on a personal computer in the new Agricultural Sciences and Industry Building's Learning Resource Center. Copies of the file also have been provided to Penn State's agriculture sorority and four fraternities.

"Students just type their academic discipline into the computer, and the program displays all the information for internships they are qualified to apply for," he said.

Besides providing the name and address of each sponsor, Diamond said the database gives students a point of contact, the person's phone number, wage information and a specific job description.

While many of the internships are offered by U.S. companies, there are opportunities worldwide. "I've had students work for agriculture ministries in Haiti and the Republic of Mali," Diamond said.

"This summer, a student from Sugarloaf, majoring in agricultural sciences is working as a scientist's assistant in forages in the Department of Agriculture for Northern Ireland. The U.S. Department of Agriculture and an international association for exchange students are sponsoring this internship program."

Many internship sponsors offer to pay summer interns, but wage agreements vary and are negotiated between students and their summer employers.

In addition to the potential for summer income and the completion of degree requirements, Diamond said an internship gives a student the opportunity to experience a profession before making a career commitment.

"Sometimes, students have their hearts set on a specific career until they spend a summer on the job," he said. "Although they may have done very well, some decide they would be happier in another profession related to their discipline. It's important to be able to have enough information to switch careers before you graduate, rather than work in a job for a few years and then try to change."

Diamond said undergraduates are encouraged to take the internship course during the summer between their junior and senior years.

"This way students have a substantial academic background when they enter the world of work," he said. "At the end of the summer, they sign up for the last year of classes based on their assessment of what they need to know to be successful in their careers."

He adds that many students who excel in summer internships are offered permanent employment after graduation.

"If interns do an excellent job, there's a good chance their employers will be waiting for them as soon as they get their diplomas and walk across the stage," he said.

F.O.4 June Prices Announced

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Rex F. Lothrop announced a producer nonfat milk solids price of $1.11 per pound for June 1992.

The weighted average differential base milk price was $1.36 per hundredweight and the price per pound of butterfat was $.8089.

The standardized base milk price per hundredweight for producer milk with the market average nonfat milk solids content and 3.5 percent butterfat would have been $13.72 and the excess price would have been $12.36. This represents a base price increase of $1.94 per hundredweight from the previous year.

The excess price increased $1.87 from the previous June. The nonfat milk solids price, applicable to handler payments, was $1.1116 per pound for the month.

The gross value of June producer milk adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat was $72.1 million, compared to $58.3 million a year ago.

Mr. Lothrop said that producer receipts totaled 533.8 million pounds during June, an increase of 32.1 million pounds from last June and the average daily delivery of 3,174 pounds per producer increased 102 pounds or 3.3 percent from a year earlier.

Total nonfat milk solids production for the month was 45.8 million pounds, representing an average NFMS test of 8.58 percent.

Class I producer milk totaled 246.4 million pounds and was up 10.1 million pounds, or 4.3 percent from last June. Class I milk accounted for 46.17 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, compared with 47.12 percent in June 1991.

Base milk accounted for 91.56 percent of total producer milk receipts in June compared with 90.85 percent last year.

The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.61 percent, up from 3.51 percent last June.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 216.0 million pounds during June, an increase of 0.8 percent from a year earlier after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Farmer Tax Underused

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Many farmers fail to request a tax rebate on liquid fuels used in agricultural production.

The Pennsylvania Board of Finance and Revenue has asked Penn State Cooperative Extension to inform farm families about this financial opportunity.

According to extension agent Phil Rzewnicki, any person who used liquid fuels in the actual production of agricultural products is eligible.

Claim forms for filing a tax refund must be accompanied by either actual paid receipts, copies of paid receipts or statements from dealers indicating gallons purchased and that state tax has been paid.

Forms must be filed with the Board of Finance and Revenue by Sept. 30.

Forms and assistance in filing claims are available by calling 717-787-3365 or contacting Lynne Vergot, Supervisor, Board of Finance and Revenue, Room 409, Finance Building, Harrisburg, PA 17120.

Hog, Pig Inventory Up

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — There were 930,000 hogs and pigs on Pennsylvania farms on June 1, 1992, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS). This estimated inventory was up 4 percent from the June 1, 1991 inventory of 890,000.

Market hog inventory at 827,000 head was up 5 percent, while breeding stock inventory at 103,000 head was up 3 percent. The March-May 1992 pig crop totaled 340,000 head, 1 percent above the same period a year earlier. There were 41,000 sows farrowed during the quarter, an increase of 3 percent. The average litter rate was 8.30 pigs per litter, compared to 8.40 for the previous year.

Pennsylvania hog farmers intend to have 41,000 sows farrow during the June-August 1992 period, 5 percent above the actual farrowings a year ago. Farrowing intentions for the September-

November quarter are projected at 40,000 sows, 3 percent above the same period last year.

Nationally, the inventory of all hogs and pigs was estimated at 59.3 million head on June 1, 1992, this was 5 percent above a year ago. Breeding hog inventory, at 7.60 million was 1 percent above last year. Market hog inventory, at 51.7 million, was 6 percent above June 1, 1991. The 16 major states, which includes Pennsylvania, account for 91 percent of the U.S. inventory of 54.1 million head.

The U.S. pig crop for March-May 1992 totaled 27.2 million head, 4 percent above 1991. A total of 3.36 million sows farrowed during the March-May quarter, 2 percent above a year earlier. The litter size during this period averaged 8.07, compared to the 7.96 average during March-May of last year. The U.S. December 1991-May 1992 pig crop was 50.4 million head, 6 percent more than last year's crop. Sows farrowing during this six-month period, at 6.26 million head, were 4 percent more than last year. Pigs saved per litter was 8.05, a new record high for the period, compared with 7.92 last year.

U.S. hog producers intend to have 3.14 million sows farrow during the June-August 1992 period, 1 percent above the actual farrowings during the same period a year ago. Farrowing intentions for the September-November 1992 of 3.05 million sows, is 3 percent above the actual farrowings a year earlier.

Primary data used in setting these hog estimates were obtained from a sample of farmers in Pennsylvania and across the U.S. using probability surveys. These surveys included information from about 94,412 operators. Information was collected during the first half of June by mail, telephone and personal interviews.

NFU Wants Hearings On Futures Limits

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union has asked the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) to conduct hearings in rural states to examine the potential effects of a proposal to increase limits on the number of positions commodity futures traders may hold.

At issue is a request by the Chicago Board of Trade to double the number of positions any one trader could hold at one time. In comments submitted to CFTC two weeks ago, NFU said such a change would place control of the commodity futures markets in the hands of a few major investors, while making farmers an insignificant player in a system that was intended to serve producers.

In a letter to CFTC Chairwoman Wendy Gramm, NFU President

Leland Swenson and the NFU Board of Directors commended CFTC for extending a public comment period on the proposal for an additional 45 days. During that time, they said, farmers should have every opportunity to express their views about the proposal.

"Farmers are already skeptical about the futures market. They believe that they are controlled by large institutional investors and are prime for manipulation," Swenson said.

As an example, NFU says that eight billion bushels of corn were raised in 1991, half of which was fed to livestock, and yet over 55 billion bushels of corn were traded on the exchanges.

In its comments, NFU stated that allowing expansion of the current limits would make the markets more volatile, increase the influence of the non-farm sector on farm products, further frustrate producers who don't trust the exchanges and allow increased concentration of economic power.

NFU wrote to members of Congress recently asking that they too hold oversight hearings before any change in position limits is made.

In addition to asking for field hearings, the farm group wants CFTC to do a study on the impact of the increases.

Rug Hooker Creates Art With Color And Wool

LOU ANN GOOD

TERRE HILL (Lancaster Co.)

— "Design is everywhere I look," said Pat Moyer who sketches her own patterns for rug hooking.

Pat's gracious two-story home in Terre Hill reflects the highly artistic talent of this woman who takes a primitive craft and adapts it to contemporary decor.

"Many people associate primitive and country decor with rug hooking and I do those styles," said Pat. "But I think it is also important to develop a style for which this era will be known."

Personally, Pat loves contemporary design. Her artistic eye, picks up the circular forms of a woodpile stacked outside a window, the flamboyant colors of a beach scene, or the muted shades of snow birds.

Pat said that her grandparents were "hookers" or "ruggers" as some call craftspeople who do rug hooking.

Although she doesn't have any of her grandparents' projects, Pat said it is told that her grandparents fed their family during the Depression with profits made from their hooked rugs. Her grandparents' rugs, made in designs such as a Conestoga wagon going past a farm, were collected by the rich.

In the 1960s, Pat learned rug hooking by taking a course offered by a museum.

Soon she decorated the walls and floors of her home and a gift shop that she operated with hooked rugs. Because so many people continued to ask Pat to teach them how to make the rugs, Pat began to offer classes about five years ago. In the classes that Pat teaches, she finds that male students are more adept than females in the beginning, but women usually are more precise in design.

"It's easy to hook a rug," Pat insists, "you just pull up wool through cloth. My grandchildren started rug hooking when they were six years old."

Art form

Despite the simplicity of hooking, Pat said, "Rug hooking is not just a craft. It is an art form because 'hookers' create their own designs and colors."

Finding an appealing design is only the beginning for Pat who dyes wool and from the material cuts strips as fine as one-eighth inch in thickness for use in rug hooking.

"The smaller the strips, the more detail you can give your design," she said.

Pat prefers to stick to 100 percent wools, which she dyes in as

Pat Moyer uses the old art of rug hooking to make a contemporary fashion statement in her home. She is holding one design of a set featuring fruits and flowers, that will be used to cover her kitchen chair seats.

Materials needed

For her own rug hooking Pat uses a Puritan lap frame to keep the piece in position. The beginner may use a simple wooden frame such as one made by Pat's husband.

"It doesn't matter what type of frame you use, but the more taut the backing is kept the easier it is to do," she said.

A rug hook, burling iron, and rug scissors are other items needed for the rug-hooking hobbyist.

"A linen backing is by far a better choice for rug hooking than burlap," Pat said. "Burlap swells and shrinks with the humidity and the edges of the burlap often break although the wool itself looks new."

For the small difference in price between linen and burlap, Pat encourages her students to always use linen as a backing.

Demonstration

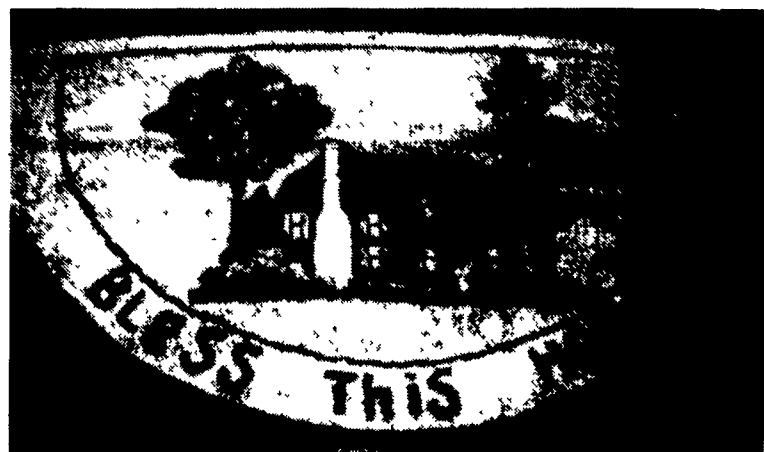

Pat's patterns, kits, and supplies will be on sale during Terre Hill's 85th anniversary celebration on July 25. The first juried arts, crafts, and antique show and sale will be held under a large tent at the Memorial Park from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., rain or shine.

This original design by Pat combines both traditional and contemporary touches.

Pat often takes her Puritan lap frame and her current project to her patio where she can enjoy the flowers and birds while she hooks. It takes about 20 to 24 hours for Pat to hook one square foot in tapestry type rug hooking.

Unlike many fireplace rugs, this one has a design that faces the sitting area.

many as eight different values of one shade, such as grape from dark to light. When a project is hooked with so many shades, the design reflects depth and detail similar to a painting.

"I like dyeing as much as cooking," Pat said. "It's exciting to see the shades that can be made."

Another method Pat uses to get color values is cooking off the color such as on a dark blue wool. For this method, the material is cooked with detergent in order to get lighter shades in the same color tone as the wool.

Tweeds, plaids, and checked wools offer interest when used in rug hooking. These, too, may be dyed to give an entirely new shading process.

Overdyeing complements dull shades.

Pat talks passionately of the many hues of color. "Marrying colors is the relationship in intermixing colors," she said. The wrong colors combined in a project will ruin it as far as eye appeal.

For those who do not have a natural eye for color, Pat has developed a special color wheel that is being printed for sale. She is not aware of any color wheel available that offers as many options as the one she is producing. The wheel allows people to compose triadic and split complement color schemes with ease.

According to Pat, home-dyed wool is colorfast and easy to do. Pat does offer custom dyeing for customers, but she prefers to teach people to do it for themselves.

"I keep my first project to show my students what I did wrong," said Pat.

Those first projects are still in use such as the one by the back door of her home. Although it has never been washed, the light yellow background is still bright and clean despite heavy usage.

"The nice thing about wool is that it cleans itself and wears forever," she said. Her numerous projects placed on the wooden and brick floors throughout her home attest to the longevity and beauty of hooked wool rugs.

She has rug designs adapted from the Victorian era with its shaded flowers. This tapestry type of rug hooking requires narrow strips, but wider strips may be used to imitate the primitive era when simple designs and basic primary colors were used.

"The neat thing about rug hooking is that two people can use the same design but no two projects ever look the same," Pat said.

To demonstrate how color can make a project appear like an entirely different design, Pat has several designs hooked in different color schemes.

Homestead Notes

This morning glory design hooked in shades of blue reflects multi-colored shading that makes it almost seem alive.

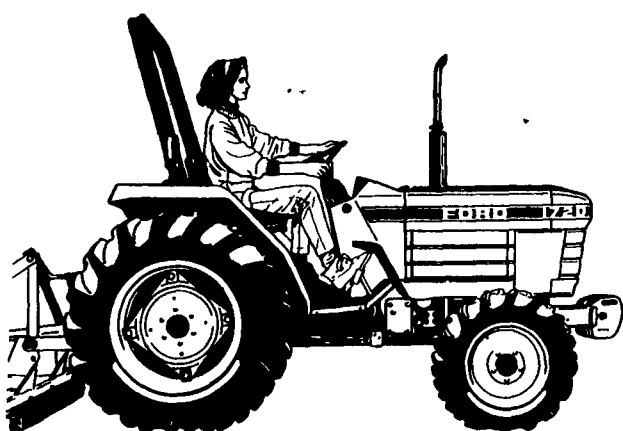

When a project is hooked with many values of the same color, the design reflects depth and detail similar to a painting.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Maybe it sounds weird to some of you folks.

But.... I like to mow the lawn.

I especially like to mow lush, green grass in mid-July. Because if the grass is growing lush and green, so are the crops.

And when the crops are growing well in mid-July, we farmers are just generally in an all-around more relaxed frame of mind. Especially on the heels of a season on no rain, few crops.... and little reason to mow lawn.

Besides, mowing lawn is a perfect excuse to be outside on a lovely afternoon while getting a necessary job done. Lawnmowing is instant, no-waiting, gratification. Swaths of clippings mark each pass, visual evidence of the job a little farther along toward completion.

Mowing allows for analysis of the season's planting results and evaluation of improvements for another year.

*For instance, the three small blueberry bushes planted into the perennial border seem to be doing well. Mowing past them is a reminder to mulch them with some well-rotted sawdust from the dairy barn boxstall bedding pack. Sawdust is acidic, the environment those fledgling bushes need for developing bushes hung with juicy blue berries.

If they thrive, I may just give up trying to fight grass and weeds in the row and plant a couple more bushes. 'Twould be more useful for the space, since The Farmer adores blueberry pie.

On the first pass around the edge of the little pond sits a surprise - or actually three surprises. These baby red-winged blackbirds, barely feathered, have apparently just left the nest. They cling tightly to cattail stalks, afraid of the noise of the mower but terrified of letting go.

Mother and father red-wing hover nearby, screeching at the mower intrusion and making threatening passes over my head. This is a second hatch of these intruders in the wood duck nest-box, of that I'm sure. Several weeks ago, The Farmer scooped from the pond the body of another redwing baby about the size of these. That fledgling missed the target on a trip to the cattail stalks and met a drowning death.

I lop off the final cloverheads along the pond and wish this trio a happier ending.

Corn has poked through the stubble of the triticales-pea field next to the garden, acreage chopped weeks before for silage and second-cropped to a stand of sturdy stalks. The chopper and no-till planter had been kept a safe distance from the garden, leaving a narrow, mower-width strip of thriving weeds and ripening heads of stray triticales.

A double pass with the mower wipes out the weed growth, tosses chopped weed-top mulch halfway across the garden, and leaves a neat path from which to pick the Sugar Snap peas. The youngest strung a length of bale net wrap on which to grow the leggy, edible-podded peas, enabling me for the first time in my life to pick peas from stalks higher than my head.

A little careful mower maneuvering likewise levels to manageable height the stray weeds on the edges of the black silo-cover plastic in which pumpkin and bird-house gourd stalks are thriving. The whirling blades catch a corner of heavy cardboard laid for mulch and with a "thunk" send confetti flying across another section of the vegetable patch.

By the time all is mowed, the swaths of heaviest backyard grass have dried like hay. With a couple more mower passes, the "hay" is blown into rows for easy raking and mulching around the garden plants.

Afterward, there's the satisfaction of enjoying the look of a lawn of smooth, even, perfection. But mowing neatness lasts but briefly, until the scruffy sections rejuvenate the weeds that were clipped and the crabgrass springs back with undaunted new vigor through the blessing of summer rains.

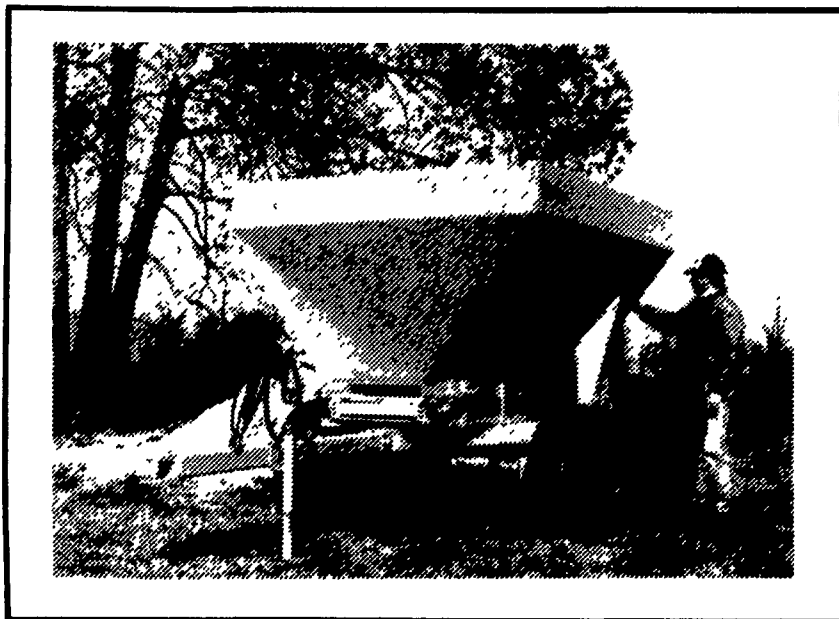

But lawn mowing is a tiny price to pay in exchange for regular rain.

Besides, I like to mow the lawn.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

With summer here, there are a lot of BBQ's and picnics. Some of these picnics last after dark on a patio or in the backyard or around the pool. After everyone is filled with hamburgers, hot dogs and salads, party snacks are sometimes nice to munch on as everyone sits around and talks. Below are some nice party snacks that take only a few minutes to make. The Sugar Glazed Walnuts are also nice to make at home and take as a house gift when you are invited to a picnic. Let them cool and place in a pretty jar with a red ribbon.

SUGAR GLAZED WALNUTS

1/2 cup (1/4 lb.) butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 lb. walnut halves or large pieces (about 4 cups)

In 1 1/2 qt. casserole place butter. Microwave at HIGH 1 minute, or until melted. Stir in brown sugar and cinnamon. Microwave at HIGH 2 minutes. Mix well to combine butter and sugar. Add nuts and mix to coat. Microwave at HIGH 3 to 5 minutes. Spread out onto wax paper and cool slightly. Serve warm or cold. Makes 1 pound.

TOASTED BUTTER PECANS

1 lb. pecan halves (about 4 cups)
1 tablespoon seasoned salt
1/4 cup butter

In 1 1/2 qt. casserole place pecan halves. Sprinkle with seasoned salt. Cut butter into 4 pieces and arrange evenly over top. Microwave at HIGH 5 to 6 minutes. Mix to evenly distribute butter. Serve warm or cold. Makes about 1 pound.

ALMOND FILLED CHEESE BALLS

2 tablespoons soft butter
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded sharp cheese
1/2 cup unsifted all purpose flour
Dash cayenne pepper
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
1 package (3 oz.) hickory smoked, barbecue or cheese flavored almonds

In a small mixing bowl, mix together butter and cheese until smooth. Add flour, pepper and celery seed, blending well, kneading dough with hands if necessary to form a ball. Measure dough by level teaspoonfuls and shape smoothly around each almond to form a ball. Place 9 balls in a circle on each of 4 paper plates. Microwave at HIGH 1 3/4 minutes to 2 1/4 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn after 1 minute. Dough will be slightly puffy and dry when cooked. Remove from dish and cool a few minutes before serving. Repeat, cooking all cheese balls. Makes about 3 dozen cheese balls.

CHEESE PASTRY SNACKS

1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
3/4 cup unsifted all purpose flour
3/4 cup coarsely crushed crisp rice cereal
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/3 cup butter, softened
6 strips cooked bacon, crumbled
2 tablespoons cold water
Paprika

In a large mixing bowl mix together cheese, flour, cereal, walnuts, garlic salt, butter, bacon and water with a fork until a dough forms. Drop 7 level tablespoonfuls in a circle onto each of 3 lightly buttered plates suitable for microwave. (Butter plates only around edges, where dough will be placed.) Sprinkle with paprika. Microwave one plate at a time. Microwave at HIGH 2 3/4 to 3 1/4 minutes. Dough will be lightly puffed when done and will crisp on drying. Remove immediately from plate. Serve hot or cold. Repeat remaining mixture.

QUICHE PASTRY

1 cup unsifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
3 tablespoons cold butter
2 1/2 tablespoons cold water
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

In small mixing bowl stir together flour and salt. With pastry blender, cut in shortening until it has the appearance of cornmeal. Cut in butter until particles form the size of peas. Sprinkle mixture with cold water. Blend lightly with fingers until dough holds together and can be formed into ball. Roll out to fit 9 inch quiche. Brush pastry with mixture of egg yolk and Worcestershire sauce. Microwave at HIGH 4 to 6 minutes, rotating dish 1/2 turn after 2 1/2 minutes. Makes 1 (9 inch) quiche pastry.

CLASSIC QUICHE LORRAINE

6 strips crisp cooked bacon, crumbled
1/2 cup grated Swiss cheese
3 green onions chopped
1 Quiche Pastry
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Dash Cayenne
1 cup milk
1 cup whipping cream
4 eggs

Reserve 2 tablespoons each of bacon and cheese and 1 tablespoon onion. Sprinkle remaining bacon, cheese and onion over bottom of microwaved Quiche Pastry.

In a 1 qt. measure mix flour, salt, nutmeg and cayenne. Gradually stir in milk and cream. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 7 to 8 minutes. Stir every 2 minutes. In a 1 qt. casserole beat eggs. Stir in hot liquid. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 1 to 2 minutes, stirring every 1/2 minute, until thick. Pour into pastry. Top with bacon, cheese, onion, and if desired, paprika. Microwave at MEDIUM HIGH 6 to 8 minutes, rotating dish 1/4 turn every 2 minutes, until almost set. Let stand 5 minutes. Makes 1 (9 inch) quiche or about 6 servings.

Pork Industry's 'Education Watch'

CHICAGO, Ill. — Education Watch, the pork checkoff program to address inaccurate school education information about the industry, was formally launched during a press conference June 6 at World Pork Expo.

"School education is vitally important. It's the training ground for the consumer of the future. The pork industry mandates that its information presented to the public be accurate and we believe that other information sources have this same responsibility," said Lowell Gemar, N.D., chairman of the Meat Board Pork Information Committee.

"For maximum effectiveness, members of the pork industry must be highly involved in Education Watch," Gemar said. He points to key areas that the program is designed to address: human nutrition, vegetarianism, production practices, animal care, and the effect of animal agriculture on the environment.

Gemar characterizes Education Watch as a program to assist educators, students and the pork industry. "The vast majority of teachers truly want to provide accurate and balanced information to their students. We want to help them achieve this objective."

Education Watch relies on producers and other members of the pork industry to alert it to possible cases. Once a producer sends in information, it is assessed by a team of experts to determine if it is inaccurate. If so, a response strategy is developed and implemented.

Possible responses are providing local producers with accurate information to deliver to the educator and working with education material publishers. To submit an alert, industry members need to follow these guidelines:

For Verbal Remarks

1. Print or type what the speaker said, using the actual words if possible.

2. Indicate the date the comments were made, by whom (teacher, guest speaker from local zoo), to whom (third grade class on a field trip), and any cited source of the information. Provide as much detail as possible.

For Written Remarks

1. Obtain a copy, preferably an original. It is very important that the name of the publisher or supplier of the materials be included. For most materials, the publisher's name appears on one of the first pages or on the back.

2. Write down who used the materials, with whom and the date used.

3. If possible, indicate if the material was provided to the educator by a specific organization.

It is important that all alerts include the submitter's name, full address and phone number. Send alerts to: Education Watch, National Live Stock and Meat Board, 444 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The Meat Board conducts demand-building information and research checkoff-funded programs on behalf of the National Pork Board.

Fresh From The Garden Recipes

Your mother was right: Eat your vegetables; they're good for you.

In fact, Mom was joined by two leading authorities — the National Academy of Scientists and the U.S. Surgeon General who now recommend five servings of fresh produce daily.

As an easy guide, select green leafy vegetables like lettuce for folic acid and other B complex vitamins; dark yellow or orange vegetables, like carrots and squash for vitamin A; and tomatoes, cabbage, and peppers for vitamin C.

Fresh vegetables supply minerals like iron, zinc, and potassium, and are an excellent source of dietary fiber.

The American Cancer Society recommends a high fiber diet to protect against colon cancer. In addition, vegetables rich in vitamin C like cabbage and tomatoes can reduce the risk of stomach and esophagus cancer.

Many fresh vegetables also contain pectin, which actually works to lower blood cholesterol levels by trapping fat molecules and moving them through the digestive system before they are absorbed in the bloodstream.

Raw vegetables like carrots and celery also act as detergent foods that sweep over teeth and soft tissues cleansing them of sugar and debris.

Americans now enjoy more than twice as many fresh vegetables as they did 25 years ago. And, there's never been more variety to choose from.

When it comes to vegetables, today's health-conscious consumers live by one simple rule: fresh is best. Try these recipes using fresh vegetables.

ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

4 cups peeled zucchini
1 cup diced onion
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 cup grated cheese
½ cup butter, melted
½ cup fine bread crumbs

On low heat, cook zucchini and onion until tender, use as little water as possible, drain. Add soup and cheese. Melt butter and stir bread crumbs into it. Sprinkle crumbs on top. Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 20 minutes.

WHOLE WHEAT VEGETABLE PIE

2 cups chopped zucchini
2 cups chopped celery
1 cup shredded carrot
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup chopped green pepper
2 cloves garlic, minced
4 tablespoons cooking oil
4 fresh tomatoes, pureed
1 cup cut green beans, cooked
1 cup corn, cooked
1 cup cauliflower, cooked
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 teaspoons dried oregano
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dried basil
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon allspice

2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
In a covered skillet, cook zucchini, celery, carrot, mushrooms, green pepper and garlic in hot oil until tender. Add tomatoes, beans, cauliflower, corn, sugar, and seasonings. Simmer, uncovered for 5 minutes. Keep warm.

Crust:

2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cups all-purpose flour
10 to 14 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups shortening
2 teaspoons salt

Stir together flours and salt. Cut in shortening until pieces are the size of small peas. Gradually add water and form into dough. Divide dough into four parts. Roll out two parts and fit into 2 9-inch pie plates. Spoon filling into pie shells. Sprinkle one cup of shredded cheese on top of each pie. Roll out top crusts. Adjust top crusts, seal edge and crimp. Cut vents into top pastry. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes. Let stand 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

Chinese cabbage is one of the newer vegetables Americans enjoy. Many eat it steamed slightly, seasoned with salt and pepper, and dribbled with brown butter.

REFRIGERATOR COLESLAW

Chop in blender or shred finely:
2 or 3 medium heads of cabbage
2 stalks celery
3 to 4 carrots
1 onion

Sprinkle generously with salt and set aside making dressing. Before adding dressing, squeeze dry.

To make dressing, combine in saucepan:

2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vinegar
¼ teaspoon pepper
1-2 teaspoons celery seed

Bring to a boil. Remove from heat. When cool, add to cabbage. Mix well. Can be made in large amounts and stored in refrigerator or freezer. Store in tightly covered containers.

THE VERSATILE TOMATO

We have had strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, and blueberries this summer. Now it's the season of the BIG berry — the tomato. Botanically, the tomato is a fruit. It also fits under the category. A berry is defined as any fleshy, simple fruit with one or more seeds (not stones) and a skin. By cultivation, the tomato is a vegetable.

Call the tomato whatever you like—vegetable, fruit, or berry, it will taste the same. And taste is at its best right now. Tomatoes might well be called nature's own fast food.

Home-grown, vine-ripened tomatoes contain more vitamins and minerals than those sold during the winter months. Tomatoes are among the most important sources of vitamin C. One medium-sized tomato (three to a pound) will give you 40% of your day's quota for Vitamin C and 20% of your Vitamin A allowance. Tomatoes are also good sources of potassium and iron, but are naturally low in sodium and are virtually free of fat and contain no cholesterol. All the flavor and nutritional value wrapped up in red comes with only about 30 calories a tomato.

The tomato is native to America. It was initially cultivated by Aztecs and Incas as early as 700 A.D. Europeans first saw the tomato when the Conquistadors reached Mexico and Central American in the 16th century. Tomato seeds were taken back to Europe where they quickly found favor in the Mediterranean countries — Spain, Portugal, and Italy. As the tomato traveled north it was veiled in mystery. The French called it "The Apple of Love," the Germans, "The Apple of Paradise." But the British, while admiring its brilliant red color, disclaimed the tomato as a food; they believed it was poisonous. This same fear persisted among colonists in the United States until the early 19th century. The Creoles in New Orleans put their cooking on the map with their tomato-enhanced gumbos and jambalayas in 1812. The people of Maine quickly followed suit, combining fresh tomatoes with their local seafood. By 1850 the tomato was an important produce item in every American city.

When you buy tomatoes, choose those that are smooth and plump—of good color—and fairly well-shaped and firm. You can tell if a tomato is firm by touching it gently—there is no need to press

COLLEGE PARK, MD. — With less than 3 percent of the American population living on farms, it's not surprising that most children today associate food with the grocery store rather than the soil.

To help increase children's understanding of where food comes from, many parents and teachers are getting them involved in growing vegetables at home. Home gardening can be an enjoyable learning experience for children, especially if parents make a few adjustments to normal gardening procedures.

For example, children enjoy gardening on a scaled-down size, hard. If you buy tomatoes that are not fully ripe, keep them at room temperature but out of direct sunlight. If you put them on a window sill in direct sunlight, tomatoes may develop yellow or white blotches (sunburn).

Because of their high water content, raw tomatoes do not freeze well. However, cooked tomato mixtures such as stewed tomatoes, and dishes with tomatoes as an ingredient, such as stews or casseroles, may be frozen. If your garden is producing more tomatoes than you can prepare for the freezer, you can scald, core and skin the tomatoes and cut them in quarters and place in a moisture, vapor-proof container and then freeze. you will be able to use these tomatoes for a variety of cooked sauces, soups, and casseroles successfully in the coming months. Why not enjoy tomatoes frequently while they are in season!

says Denise Sharp, a horticulture specialist at the Home and Garden Information Center of the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources. A small plot is more satisfying than a large landscape — 2 feet by 4 feet for a preschooler and 10 feet by 15 feet for older children.

The plot should be well prepared, limed and fertilized by an adult or by the child with adult assistance. Soil preparation is heavy work and generally cannot be accomplished successfully by young children.

Lay the beds or rows out with small arms in mind. Children's garden beds should not be more than two feet wide. Measure your own child's reach for a more accurate guide.

Involve your child in the process of deciding what vegetables to grow, taking into consideration the looks, taste and growth rates of your selections.

Plants that germinate quickly or are especially colorful are popular with young children. Radishes, lettuce, spinach and other greens, for example, produce quick results in the spring.

Tomatoes, peppers and melons are slower growers that provide interest later in the season.

You can speed the production of slow-growing, long-season vegetables by starting with transplants rather than seeds. This reduces weeding and the time between planting and harvest.

Try growing some root crops. Children get a kick out of discovering a carrot, a potato or some peanuts under the ground.

After seeding or planting your chosen vegetables, mark the rows well. Young children enjoy using picture tags to indicate what is growing where.

If you have a very small yard, or no yard at all, don't despair. Some vegetables can be grown easily in containers. To add to your child's educational experience, Sharp suggests constructing a special planter with three wooden sides and one side of plexiglass. This will allow a close-up view of developing plant roots and root crops. Since the plexiglass can heat plant roots and damage them, she recommends covering this side of the planter with styrofoam or a piece of wood when not "root watching."

Children can continue to enjoy the fruits of their labor after the garden is harvested by helping to prepare and cook the vegetables they've grown for family meals or by giving them as gifts.

Photos, videos or a special garden book of notes, photos, empty seed packets and other gardening mementos will be a source of shared memories for and your child for years to come.

For more information on gardening with children, or other gardening topics, call Extension's Home & Garden Information Center at 1-800-342-2507. Specialists are available to answer questions between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., Monday through Friday. Pre-recorded information on a variety of subjects is accessible via touch-tone phone 24 hours a day.

Cook's Question Corner

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Mary Myers of Green Lane would like a recipe for crunchy hard pretzels that are made from either rice or oat flour since she has a wheat allergy.

QUESTION — Marsha Zomro of Marlton, N.J., requests a recipe for Murphy's Oil Soap, a household cleaner.

QUESTION — Mrs. Norman Burkholder, Denver, requests a recipe for homemade cereal that uses puffed wheat as the main ingredient.

QUESTION — Chris Griffith of Lothian, Md., would like a recipe for Honeymoon Ice Cream. Her mother-in-law bought it years ago from Good Humor ice cream company. She remembers that it was pink-colored, had maraschino cherries and nuts. Does anyone have the recipe or recall the ingredients?

QUESTION — A new Germantown reader would like to have the recipe for a Montgomery pie with a butterscotch bottom instead of the usual lemon bottom.

QUESTION — F.M. of Cambridge, Md., would like a recipe for pumpkin muffins like those served in Bushes Restaurant along Route 5 near Kent Island.

QUESTION — Brenda Breisch of Bloomsburg would like a recipe for a good spice cake that is sprinkled with confectioners' sugar and has a rich flavor.

QUESTION — Brenda Breisch writes that her husband loves to look over the sale bills in this paper, but the poor man never gets the paper first because she's ready, scissors in hand. She would like a recipe for sauerkraut that is made with brown sugar. Her husband recalls that he had tasted it and it was fantastic.

QUESTION — Linda Fauth, Wrightsville, is looking for a recipe for pumpkin butter.

QUESTION — Theresa Young, Lancaster, would like to know how to can hot peppers in oil and in water.

QUESTION — Mrs. Judi Spurling, Limerick, would like a recipe for puffy non-edible cookies that are preserved with a clear finish.

QUESTION — Joseph Rosin, Middletown, Md., would like a recipe for sauerkraut soup, which he thinks is made with the juice of sauerkraut, noodles, and maybe milk.

QUESTION — B. Smith, Jonestown, would like to know how to remove the strong wood odor that is in her wooden picnic basket.

QUESTION — Catherine Wise, York Haven, would like to know where to buy replacement lids for salt shakers in assorted sizes.

QUESTION — Catherine Wise, York Haven, would like a recipe for Darkest Molasses Cake like that served in the late '60s at Penn State Dining Hall.

QUESTION — Pauline Fox, Bangor, is looking for a recipe for Beer Bread that does not use yeast.

QUESTION — Deanna Cunfer, Lehigh, would like a recipe for a cold salad that includes peas, ham, and cheese. She recalls that Millersville University served this type of salad during the '70s.

QUESTION — Mrs. Riehl, Ronks, would like a recipe for canning salsa without oil like the El Paso brand that is medium hot, chunky style.

QUESTION — Gertrude Moore, Drumore, would like a recipe for Forgotten Cookies. She recalls that the cookies are made with egg whites and that the oven is turned off after the cookies are put into it.

QUESTION — Mary E. Clark, 863 Monaca Rd., Monaca, Pa. 15061, would like a recipe for chili sauce, pepper relishes and other relishes to can. She also needs bread recipes. She had good recipes for these, but her home burned and she lost everything. She subscribes to this paper to get recipes.

QUESTION — A Carlisle reader would like to know how to make roasted sunflower seeds.

QUESTION — N. Martin, Newburg, would like a recipe for using canned whole potatoes.

ANSWER — B. M. Stoltzfus, Quarryville, wanted to know how to make sour cream that has a smooth, not watery, texture like the store-bought variety. Thanks to Joan E. Stump, Telford, for sending a recipe. She writes that a starter culture is needed. It can be obtained from several sources. She purchases hers from New England Cheesemaking Supply Co. of Ashfield, Mass. (413) 628-3808. She also writes that most commercial sour creams add additional dry milk powder and rennet to their product to make it thick. You can do the same if the cultured sour cream is not thick enough to suit your taste.

Scratch Sour Cream

Heat 1 quart cream to 170 degrees. Place the pot of pasteurized cream into a sink of cold water to cool to 72 degrees. Pour the cream into a bowl and add one packet sour cream starter culture. Stir and cover. Leave undisturbed in a warm place for 12 to 15 hours, ideally overnight. The cream should have a thick consistency and have a sweet and sour taste. Refrigerate until ready to use.

ANSWER — Mrs. J.F. Lehman, Collegeville, wanted a recipe for tea biscuits. Thanks to Michele Mohler, who sent a recipe. She writes, although the recipe is titled shortcakes, I have found it is especially good served with hot tea and jam.

Shortcakes

- 2 cups biscuit baking mix
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup milk

Combine ingredients to make a soft dough. Turn onto surface dusted with baking mix. Knead quickly 20 times. Pat or roll ½ -inch thick. Cut with 3-inch cookie cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet for 8 to 10 minutes.

ANSWER — I. A. Kirk Sr., Silver Spring, Md., requested a recipe for turtle soup that tastes like that formerly served at McCalister's Restaurant in Philadelphia. Thanks to Josephene Matenus, Dallas, who sent a recipe that she said is from the Commander's Restaurant in New Orleans.

Turtle Soup

- 1 pound turtle meat, chunked
- 1 cup shortening
- 1 cup onion, diced
- 6 cloves garlic, chopped
- 16 ounces tomato sauce
- ¼ cup beef extract
- 4 bay leaves
- 1 cup celery
- 1 cup flour
- 3 quarts water
- 2 teaspoons celery salt
- 12 cloves
- 1 teaspoon thyme
- ½ cup parsley, chopped
- ½ cup Lea and Perrins Sauce
- Salt and pepper to taste

Garnish with:

- 1 cup sherry
- 2 lemons, diced thin
- 2 chopped hard-boiled eggs

Saute turtle in shortening until browned. Add onions, celery, and garlic and cook 10 minutes. Blend in flour and cook 5 minutes, add tomato sauce, water, beef extract, and other ingredients except sherry, lemons, and eggs that are used to garnish. Simmer about 2 hours until meat is very tender.

Garnish with lemon and chopped eggs and add a little sherry to each serving. Yields 1 gallon.

ANSWER — A York reader wanted recipes for wineberries. Thanks to Sara Kresge, Loysville, who writes that wineberries are supposed to have been brought to this country from Germany. Wineberries are related to the cultivated raspberry. Sara often uses them in recipes for red raspberries. She makes jellies and jams from them using printed instructions found in Sure-Jell and Certo pectin boxes.

Berks Society 11

Berks County Society 11 of Farm Women met at the home of Dorothy Batdorf for a "Backwards Night." Members wore their clothes backward and shoes on the opposite feet. They walked in backwards and the meeting was held backwards with refreshments first.

In May, members toured Lebanon Electric. Marlin Hibshman, Rose's husband, one of our members was the tour guide. He had worked there for 20 years. What a tour—lights were everywhere and for any place you wanted to put them.

Afterwards, members stuffed themselves at Pizza Hut.

Recently, members visited the Shape Shoppe in Frystown. Owner Wanda Smith gave a talk on nutrition and the importance of diet in exercise.

Members presented Hollyhock plants to each member of Group 2, which held an anniversary celebration on June 23.

16-ounce can kidney beans, rinsed and drained

4 cups cucumber, sliced ¼ inch

4 cups string beans, cut in 1-inch pieces

4 cups lima beans

2 cups whole corn

4 cups lima beans

2 cups whole corn

4 cups cauliflower florets

2 cups celery, sliced

1 cup green peppers, diced

1 cup red peppers, diced

1 cup yellow peppers, diced

1 cup onion, diced

1½ tablespoons dry mustard

3 cups granulated sugar

6 cups apple cider vinegar

Cook each vegetable separately until tender but not soft. Drain cooked vegetables and mix together. Toss gently so as not to break up pieces.

Mix together mustard, sugar, and vinegar in a 12-quart kettle and bring to a rolling boil.

Add mixed vegetables to vinegar solution and bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Pour mixture into hot jars and seal in water bath.

Bucks-Montgomery Welcomes Ambassadors

NORTH WALES, Pa. — The Bucks-Montgomery Dairy Promotion Committee honored its outgoing dairy princess royalty and welcomed a new crop of dairy ambassadors at a June 13 banquet at Meyers Restaurant in Quakertown.

The banquet marked the end of the year long reign of the 1991-1992 Bucks-Montgomery Dairy Princess Tanya Martin. Martin of Ottsville made numerous appearances during the past year, promoting milk and dairy products at schools, grocery stores, county fairs, community events and farm meeting. In her farewell address, she thanked the committee, her family, and friends for their support in helping her promote the dairy industry.

Martin, a student at Delaware Valley College, will continue her promotion activities as the Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess until Sept. 19. At that time, a new state princess will be crowned at the annual Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation in Harrisburg.

As a token of their appreciation, committee members presented Martin a gift certificate. Gift certificates also were presented to alternate dairy princesses Brenda Wolfgang of Bechtelsville and Heather Derstine of Harleysville. As alternate princesses, Wolfgang and Derstine assisted in dairy promotion activities throughout Bucks and Montgomery counties.

In addition to thanking the dairy princess royalty, the committee introduced four youths who will be serving as dairy ambassador program, open to girls between 13 and 15 years of age, serves as a training ground for the dairy princess title.

Serving as 1992-1993 dairy ambassadors will be Danielle Breaux, the daughter of Al and Nona Breaux of Salfordville; Gail Moyer, the daughter of Nevin and Louise Moyer of Perkasi; Rachel Moyer, the daughter of David and Rosemarie Moyer of Perkasi; and Katie Sterner, the daughter of George and Linda Sterner of Bechtelsville. All four girls are

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Kids Fit Beef For Show Ring

LOU ANN GOOD

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.)

— "When you wash your steer, make sure you get it clean under the briskets and flank," Debra Hess told members of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club.

It was hands-on practice for about 22 members who gathered at Bob and Debra Hess's Mount Joy farm to learn the proper way to clean and fit a steer for the show ring.

With hose, water bucket, and brushes, the Hesses ten-year-old son John demonstrated the proper way to scrub a steer. Rocket and Astro stood patiently in the hot summer sun seemingly enjoying being splashed and hosed with cold water, but John said that he has been kicked plenty of times.

"Some (steers) are touchy at the feet. And, you gotta watch that you don't get water in their ears or they will jump," John said. "You gotta close their ears," he added as he demonstrated how to squeeze the steer's ears together to keep water from going into them.

After John scrubbed the steers, he threw buckets of Laser Sheen over the steers. John mixes the Laser Sheen himself. He said that it's a mixture of vinegar and water to keep bugs out of the steer's hide and helps prevent dandruff.

John spends 4 to 5 hours each day with his steers. "It's a full-time job," he said. "At first the steers ran away from me when I went toward them, but now I got 'em tamed and used to being washed."

John walks his steers about two miles everyday to keep them in shape and get them used to walking with him.

Rocket and Astro are purebred Polled Herefords purchased from Salunga Acres, owned by John's grandparents, C. George and Dorothy Metzler.

"I like red ones (Herefords) because they are real friendly," John said. "One thing I don't want is a black one. They are so stubborn. If you tell them to move, they won't. Once a got kicked in the brim of the hat by one."

John's parents are leaders of the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club that includes members from Elizabethtown, Marietta, Mount Joy, and Manheim. This is the first year, that the club did not sponsor a tour, but instead held the workshop to teach members how to clip and dress the steers for the show ring.

Members watched how leg adhesive sprays are used and hair pulled up to give the steers a classy image. After they got a chance at trying their hand at it, the members worked on showmanship, which included using show sticks.

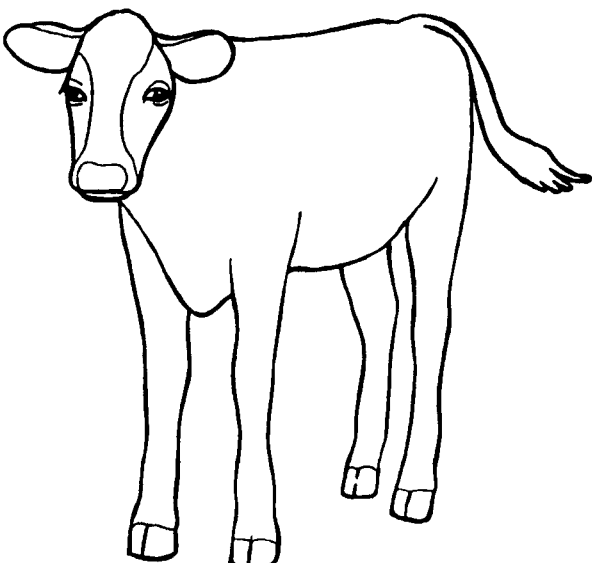

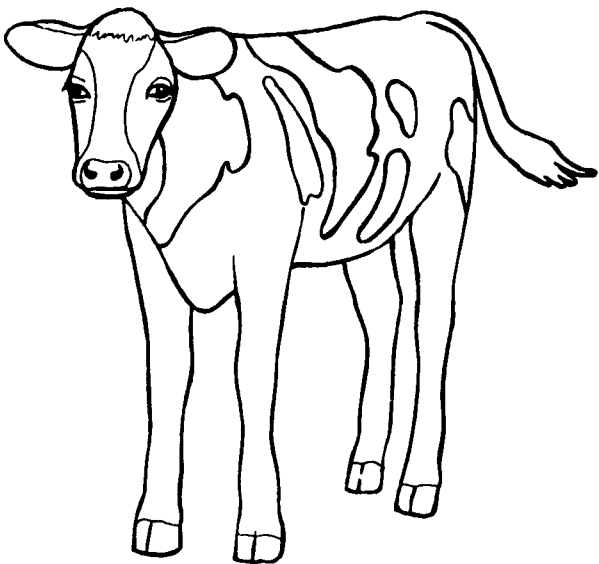

Last year, the first year John showed, he placed third in Junior Showmanship at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. It is unusual for a first year exhibitor to place in showmanship, but John credits his parents for teaching him all that they had learned from the time when they were in 4-H competition. John also had the champion preview steer and the champion 4-H carcass lamb at the Manheim Fair last year. He is also a member of the 4-H judging team.

According to John Hess, a bucketful of Laser Sheen, a mixture of vinegar and water, keeps bugs out of the hide and helps control dandruff in cattle.

Finish drawing this calf so it looks like the one above it. Color both calves.

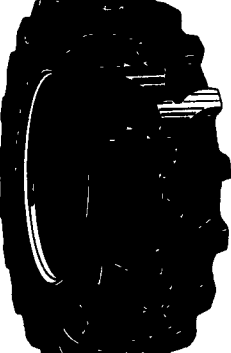

Bob and Debra Hess of Mount Joy lead the Red Rose 4-H Beef Club of which their son John, center, is a member. Another leader, Greg Musser, is not pictured.

When Her Husband Went To The House Joyce Hershey Went To The Barn

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
COCHRANVILLE (Chester Co.) — Who is Joyce Hershey of Chester County?

The answer can't be stated with a one word description. For she fills the role of farmer, politician, editor, tour guide, Bible teacher, speaker, wife, mother, grandmother, artist....

"There isn't enough time to do everything I like to do, but whatever I'm doing — I enjoy it," says this busy woman.

Before her marriage, Joyce, who worked in the office of her father's business, Hooper Farm Machinery, Intercourse, expected to settle down on a farm when she married her husband-to-be Art.

The couple did move on a farm, but their life could hardly be called settled, for Art became a state Representative that thrust Joyce into the public eye.

But it was the farm that shaped the Hersheys' government involvement and even their marriage.

"Art taught me how to drive tractor by riding on the baler wagon while I drove. Whenever I let the clutch out too fast, the wagon jerked and he flew off — repeatedly."

Joyce laughs sympathetically at the memory of Art flying through the air and said, "If a marriage can survive that, it can survive anything."

When the couple first married, they rented a dairy farm in Oxford. Six years later, the couple purchased a 126-acre dairy farm in Cochransville. They started with milking 36 cows, which they soon increased to 50 registered Holsteins.

They raised pigs for several years and sold several cattle overseas. Later, the family purchased an adjoining 40-acre farm and Art's father's 130-acre farm.

The Hersheys have four children. When the children were active in 4-H, the parents served as 4-H leaders of dairy and sewing clubs. Now, the children are grown and on their own. The Hersheys' children include Bev, married to Barry Goodling and living in Illinois; Duane, married to Marilyn Stoltzfus, who farmed in partnership with his father until last year, when he bought out the partnership; Brad, who married Sandy Mower and sells Hooper Farm Machinery in Delaware; and Julie, who graduated this year from Messiah College with a degree in communications/public relations. The Hersheys have six grandchildren with a seventh on the way.

Early in their marriage, both Art and Joyce got involved in the Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA). Art's involvement at the state and executive board level, whetted his appetite for politics and the effects of lobbying.

Art also received rural leadership training at Penn State that was funded by Kellogg's Company. He went for training for four weeks during the winter months and studied rural development and land usage on a trip to Netherlands, Spain, and England.

The leadership training and his work with PFA convinced Art that farmers needed to get more involved in politics, but he did not run for public office until he was defeated when running for state vice president of the PFA. When he returned home, a local politician asked, "Now are you ready to run as state representative?"

With no term to complete in PFA, Art agreed to run. Joyce was hesitant. She liked farming and people, but politics was another story.

Joyce can pinpoint the exact moment she decided to accept a political career as part of her husband's future. It happened when a snow storm caused a stranded motorist to seek refuge at their home. The motorist was a social studies teacher who spent hours discussing politics with Art. The next day, the teacher returned with an appreciation gift for Joyce. It was a sun catcher that said, "Let go and let God."

"I realized that God had a plan. I needed to get out of the way," Joyce said. "I don't know if the man who gave the gift had any idea of my struggle with politics and whether or not he gave it for a purpose, but as soon as I saw it, something clicked," Joyce said.

That was when the Hersheys applied another lesson that working on the farm had taught them. "If two combine their efforts, they get more than twice the amount of work done," Joyce said. The couple found that true in farming and in the political scene as they worked together to campaign for Art.

Joyce accompanied her husband to local meetings. She helped put together brochures and other publicity. The campaign's headquarters were run from the Hershey home. Joyce's cooking skills were often used as she served breakfast to the campaign committee.

Five candidates were running for state Representative during the first campaign. Art was endorsed on the first ballot, won the fall election, and has been state representative for Chester County's 13th District since 1982.

When first elected, Art milked cows on the weekend and fulfilled his duties in Harrisburg during the week.

Joyce jokingly remarks, "I went to the farm and Art went to the House."

The couple's oldest son, Duane, ran the farm in Art's absence, although Art kept in daily contact by phone. Joyce helped with milking, field work, and took charge of the bookwork.

Art considers his agricultural background beneficial as he serves on the conservation committee and is minority vice chairman for the agricultural committee. The ability to be flexible in farming serves Art well as his position causes him to work with many people of diverse influences.

According to the Hersheys, politics and farming both demand long hours and the need to work until the job is finished.

While she was hesitant of political life in the beginning, Joyce now enjoys it and finds it interesting to meet so many good people in politics.

"Like any other job, politics has its frustrating moments," Joyce said. "To give up such a large amount of time as a public servant is difficult."

Art continues to find working in the soil the most beneficial release when dealing with political stress.

#1 in the field

Mower-Conditioner

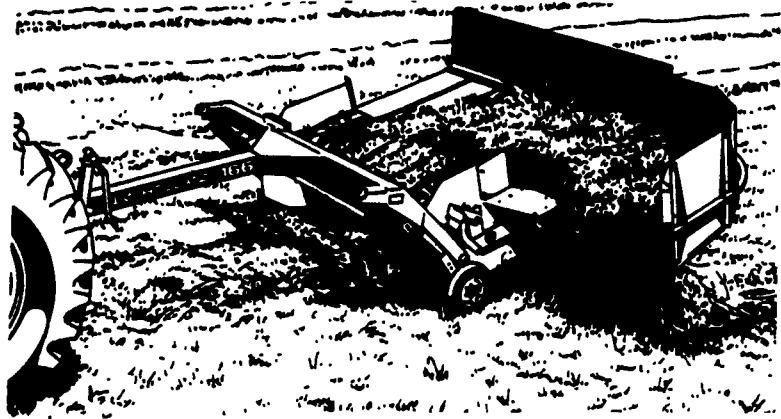

You'll love the wide-cutting performance of the new Model 415 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner. Seven discs make an 11½-foot cut to cover acres fast. And with the New Holland torsion bar roll pressure system, you'll condition thoroughly without plugging. Stop in soon and let us show you the big performance of the new "415".

570 Square Baler

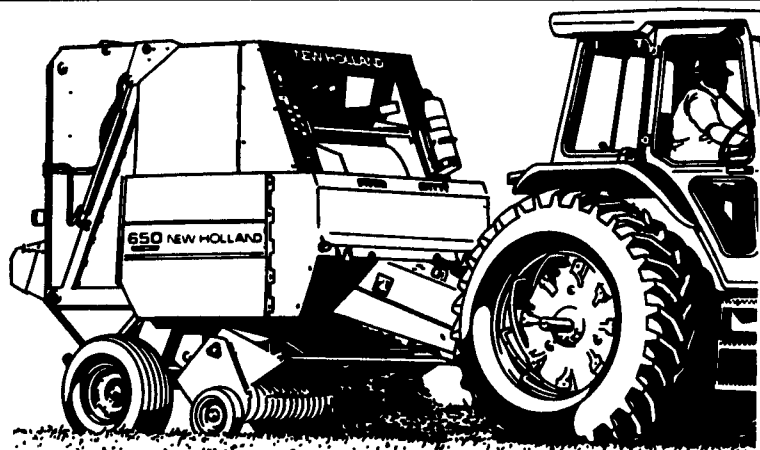

The "570" New Holland square baler from Ford New Holland brings together performance and reliability, along with improved capacity.

- New rotary feeding system
- Faster plunger stroke
- Wider Super-Sweep pickup
- Stronger materials.
- Gear-driven tying mechanisms.

166 Windrow Inverter

The New Holland Model 166 windrow inverter will change the way you may hay — for the better. The Model 166 speeds drying time as it lifts, fluffs and turns windrows without roughing-up the hay. And, keeping more of the protein-rich leaves intact means you get high-quality hay into the bale or silo, fast!

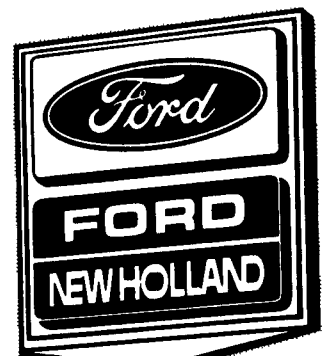

650 Round Baler

The new award-winning design of our wide pickup, available on Model 650 New Holland round baler, lets you handle wider windrows. So you pick up more crop instead of leaving it in the field. And the flared sides mean smoother bale ends for sharper, denser, better-looking bales.

Southeast Region Competes In Fashion Olympics

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
READING (Berks Co.) —

Fashion Olympics blazed with color, talent, and style at the Southeast Regional 4-H Fashion Revue held in Reading on July 13.

County winners from seven counties competed against each other with olympic-style endurance as they met individually before a panel of judges and modeled before an audience of 200. But the most difficult part of the competition was done weeks in advance as the 4-H'ers spent hours stitching, ripping, and pressing outfits made to fit.

From 72 contestants, eight seniors were chosen to advance to state competition. Four senior alternates were named and will advance to state competition if the winners are unable to attend. Eight juniors winners were chosen as regional winners.

For the first time ever, the annual regional Fashion Revue was financed by the Vanity Fair Corporation of Reading. Jim Biehl of the Vanity Fair Merchandising Department taught afternoon workshops on merchandising including buying, display, and set up.

Biehl said fashions for '93 are being purchased now.

"We know what's selling now, but what about next year? There is a lot of guesswork in merchandising," he told the students.

To help them understand the process of buying, display, and set up, Biehl had the students participate in putting together a line of clothing referred to as a color story.

"Color is the first thing you notice when you enter a store," Biehl said. With colors and prints he demonstrated how some color stories flowed together while others clashed.

"In merchandising, you develop a line of clothing that you believe is salable, but don't choose colors because you personally like them — although to some extent, your likes are reflected in your line," he said.

The 4-H'ers helped identify clothing that fit well in the color story and protested colors and styles that they did not think would sell.

Biehl spoke on how some colors that one thinks would work well together do not. Merchandising is changing. In the past, an artist was needed to draw every fabric to show the different colors available. Now computer paper is used and can be printed in seconds to show the different color effects on fabric.

During the evening fashion show, about 200 guests attended. Senior winners named included the following:

Nonee Wagner of Lehigh County. She sewed and modeled a black and white checked, French cut painter's duster with drop shoulders. For extra pizzazz, Nonee added a fire-engine red lining. Her most difficult challenge was matching the angular welt pockets. The duster topped a black tailored sundress with a fitted bodice. Nonee accented the Vogue-patterned dress with a black sunhat.

Lisa Olson, a 13-year-old from Northampton County, fashioned a off-the-shoulder dress with a lined bodice and boning. The dropped waist princess-style flared skirt was accented with a fabric rose and gold shoes.

Beatrix Histand, a senior from Bucks County, designed her own pattern for a jacket that she pieced and hand quilted in a geometric-shaped pattern. The jacket is lined and filled with batting for luxuriant puffiness. Beatrix is majoring in fashion design at an Art and Design school in Los Angeles.

Lisa Geshwindt of Berks County combined two patterns to create a prom dress. The black bodice had a coordination black polka dots on hot pink skirt and shawl. She complemented her dress with a matching purse and fabric rose and bow.

Carleste Hughes of Northampton County chose a checkered black and white patterned jacket, black skirt, and vibrant red blouse to make her fashion statement. Details such as decorative silver buttons and covered buttons highlighted by silver drop earrings accented her garment.

Deanna Barthlow of Lehigh County fashioned a three-piece ensemble out of wool. The slightly flared coat has zippers at the center front, sleeves, and pockets. It features a stand-up collar, a 100 percent polyester lining, and shoulder pads. Fabric from the dress was cut on the bias to trim the edges of the jacket. She machine-quilted the jacket. The semi-fitted dress is made of wool crepe and has side, front, and back seams, back zipper, shoulder pads, and an oval neckline. She used fabric like the dress and jacket to accent a purchased hat. Deanna is Pennsylvania's Clothing and Textile representative for the National 4-H Congress to be held in Chicago.

Erica Lewis of Bucks County stitched a dress with a fitted, dropped waist forming a v in the center of the bodice. The cotton polyester fabric with brightly-colored flowers and the flared skirt and puffy sleeves was a challenging experience for this soon to be ninth grader at Pennridge High School.

Tori Myers of Montgomery County fashioned a fully tailored black and gold brocade jacket and a black fleece skirt. Her gold lame blouse has dropped shoulders and can be worn tucked in or left out as an overblouse. The jacket has bound buttonholes and gold lame piping trim.

The four seniors chosen as alternates are Jodi Bender of Montgomery County, Gwen Ottinger of Montgomery County, Amy Hewitt of Chester County, and Jennifer Dunleavy of Chester County.

In the junior division, the eight winners chosen include the following: Joshua Murray, Northampton County; Rebecca Carroll, Chester County; Rachel Heilman, Lehigh County; Julie Lichtenwalner, Lehigh County; Jessica Haag, Berks County; Laura Peiffer, Schuylkill County; Lisa McDonald, Lehigh County; and Cayce Bean, Montgomery County.

4-H Dairy Bowl Results

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — The South Central 4-H Dairy Bowl Contest was held recently in Carlisle. Seven junior teams and seven senior teams competed. A Franklin County senior team made up of Joel Mills, Beth Meyers, Damon Harwood, and Douglas Helman placed first. Cumberland County B team made up of Matthew Day, Heath Ocker, and John Leib, Jr. placed second. The Cumberland County A team consisting of Betsy Walton, Craig Walton, and Heather Glennon placed third followed by teams from Lebanon and Berks.

In the junior division a team consisting of Erica Davis, Michael Neiman, Janice Youse and Jennifer Neiman from Berks County placed first. York A team placed second with Tanya Thoman, Daphne Doll, Pat Lucabaugh and Jacob Hushon competing. Cumberland B placed third with Sarah Day, Michelle Ocker, and David Day. The Cumberland A team consisting of Ian Dietrich, Tristan Dietrich, and Patrick Snoke placed fourth.

Last year the Hersheys built a house on the home farm when son Duane bought out Art's partnership.

Joyce is a chairperson with the ladies' committee of PFA. She works as a tour guide three days a week by giving tours through the Amish Country. Because she enjoys history, she assists with special events at the Hans Herr House by demonstrating butter making and fireplace cooking.

Recently Joyce enrolled in oil painting classes. She is a Sunday school teacher, and speaks to women's groups on many subjects from politics to Pennsylvania Dutch history to Bible studies.

"I enjoy people and speaking, but I need private time too," Joyce said. Daily private time is often found by sitting by the large spacious windows that open to the woods in the backyard. Here, numerous song birds congregate at several birdfeeders. The scenic beauty of the woods, flowers, and birds rejuvenates Joyce. For long-term relaxation, Joyce enjoys spending time with the grandchildren and traveling.

As chairperson of Agricultural Development Council of Chester County, Joyce is working on a video on agriculture that will be circulated among schools and service clubs for presentations. The money to make this project came from a cookbook that promotes agriculture in Chester County. Joyce edited the cookbook titled The Bounty of Chester County Cookbook, which was published by the Chester County Tricentennial Cookbook Committee. The 252-page cookbook is spiral bound and is printed on heavy paper. Numerous illustrations by J. Smith Futhy depict Chester County's farms.

The cookbook highlights the county's agricultural products and the chapters appear in the order of commodities: Mushrooms, dairy products, eggs, meat, fruits, nuts, vegetables, herbs, and early Chester County agricultural heritage recipes.

Each commodity chapter has recipes for appetizers, soups, salads, main dishes, and desserts.

The cookbook may be purchased for $11, which covers shipping and handling. Send a check plus your name and address to Joyce Hershey, Box 191, R.D. 1, Cochranville, PA 19330.

Here is a recipe that Joyce enjoys that is printed in the cookbook.

COCHRANVILLE CREAMED MUSHROOMS

Melt in a large saucepan:

½ pound butter

Wash, drain, slice, and add to hot butter:

3 pounds fresh mushrooms

Sometimes I think that I should own a stationery store as I send so many cards. We have a rather large immediate family—at least so it seemed at a recent high school reunion. One of my husband's classmates offered a book that she had published to whoever had the largest family. And, it turned out that we had two more than the nearest competitor.

It is an expensive hard-back book which tells the life stories of forty-four first cousins. It has an interesting review of the lives of a Lancaster County Mennonite family. The book contains many pictures and even a few recipes. There are 498 pages so I know that Cover, stirring occasionally, and allow to cook for 1 to 2 minutes.

Add:

2 cups milk

1 can evaporated milk

Blend together 10 tablespoons flour

2 cups milk

Add to mushrooms, stirring constantly until thickened.

Add:

2 teaspoons salt

For added flavor, set pan in another pan of hot water for 1 hour or more. Turn heat very low.

Serves 6 to 8.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

it will be winter before I find time to sit down and really appreciate it.

So far this year I've picked 130 some quart of sugar peas. Some were sold and some were frozen. We certainly have an ample supply for next year.

Both our blueberries and raspberries are bearing now. I was surprised to hear my husband tell someone that the six-foot-high bushes of blueberries are at least twenty years old. Each spring I trim them and remove heavy limbs that must be sawed off.

We were given some yellow raspberry bushes by a friend but only a few survived. They seem to have gotten a virus the same as a large planting of black raspberries on the farm. I suppose they must be destroyed and we will have to start over with new plants. One never knows what to expect from year to year. The weather has a big influence on the abundance of certain crops. Spring this year has given us lots of moisture.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs

More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Attract Butterflies To Your Garden

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — One of the most beautiful displays in your garden doesn't have to have roots, leaves or flowers. You can attract butterflies all summer long by creating a habitat for them, says an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Much of the habitat of the world's 165,000 known species of butterflies and moths has been destroyed by deforesting and urbanization, even in Pennsylvania. "By planting flowers for them to feed from, you're helping them survive," says Dr. Margaret Brittingham, assistant professor of wildlife resources.

To attract butterflies, plant large, conspicuous clumps of flowers, and choose a variety so that flowering is continuous from May through August. "A good garden design is one with large shrubs in back, a fence or arbor planted with flowering vines, and lower growing flowers in front," says Brittingham.

"Butterflies especially like milkweed, dogbane, and butterfly bush," says Brittingham. Milkweed blooms in midsummer and comes in shades of orange and yellow as well as light pink. Dogbane blooms around the same time, and the foliage and flowers resemble milkweed. Butterfly bush blooms in midsummer and comes in shades of white, purple and pink.

Other plants that draw butterflies are cosmos (annual, mid- to late summer), heliotrope (mid summer), marigold (annual, mid- to late summer), zinnia (annual, mid- to late summer), Queen Anne's lace (mid- to late summer), asters (mid- to late summer), Joe Pye weed (mid- to late summer) and goldenrod (late summer).

The most common native butterflies in Pennsylvania are the black swallowtail, the tiger swallowtail, the monarch and the viceroy.

Black swallowtails have dark wings with two rows of yellow spots near the edges. Tiger swallowtails are larger and have bright yellow wings with broad black bands at the edges. Some have wings almost completely black. Both butterflies have "tails" at the lower outside corner of their hind wings.

Monarchs and viceroys look much alike, with brownish-orange patches framed in velvety black. Viceroys are smaller, not as bright orange and have black lines across their hind wings. "Monarchs carry a poison that makes birds sick," says Brittingham. "Birds quickly learn to avoid monarchs, and the look-alike viceroys benefit from this too."

"Your butterfly garden also might attract ruby-throated hummingbirds, orioles and scarlet tanagers," says Brittingham. "There also is an attractive moth called the hummingbird moth, which looks and flies like a hummingbird," says Brittingham.

Flowers that draw birds as well as butterflies are phlox (early to midsummer) butterfly bush (mid- to late summer), impatiens (annual, mid- to late summer) and bergamot (mid- to late summer).

HAPPENINGS

Outstanding Ag Student

Jesse Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller of Blue Ball, was recently named winner of the 1992 Dekalb Agriculture Accomplishment award.

The award, sponsored nationwide by Dekalb Plant Genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leadership, and supervised agricultural program. Presenting the award at graduation was Cliff Day, FFA Adviser.

Jesse attends Garden Spot High School, where he has been vice president for two years and has been active on several committees. His agricultural program consists of breeding sheep and work experience at ABC Groff. Following graduation, Jesse plans to work at ABC Groff, Inc. before going to college.

As this year's winner, Jesse

receives a pin and certificate, and his name will be inscribed on a special plaque displayed in the ag science department classroom. The Dekalb award is presented at nearly 3,000 schools annually.

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — On Saturday, July 25, the Reading Terminal Market is hosting Farmer's Market Days; a day at the market when farmers from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland will bring their bountiful summer harvest to farm fresh foods to the market for you to purchase.

The Market will be filled with the sweet smells of fresh produce and fruits grown by farmers from around the region. You will not be able to find the variety and breadth of farm fresh products at any roadside stand—only at the Reading Terminal Market!

Pick from white and yellow sweet corn, fresh snap beans, lima beans, beets broccoli, cabbage, cantaloupe, carrots, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, lettuce, all kinds of salad greens, peppers, summer squash, tomatoes, watermelon, farm fresh eggs, jams and preserves, early fruits such as peaches and plums, honey and fresh baked goods.

Meet the Producers! The growers will be at the market selling you the food they grow themselves!

If you are a grower or a local farmer and would like to sell your products at the market you can reserve a free table for that day by calling Duane Perry at (215)592-8774.

Save the Date, July 25, mark it on your calendar. Bring your friends and relatives and stock up with the freshest variety of farm grown produce you've ever seen. Only from the Reading Terminal Market - the nation's oldest, continuously operating farmer's market!

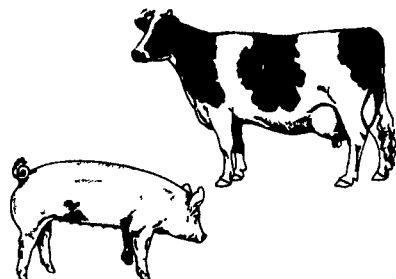

Customers purchase fresh produce at the Reading Terminal Market.

HAPPENINGS

Boots and Saddles

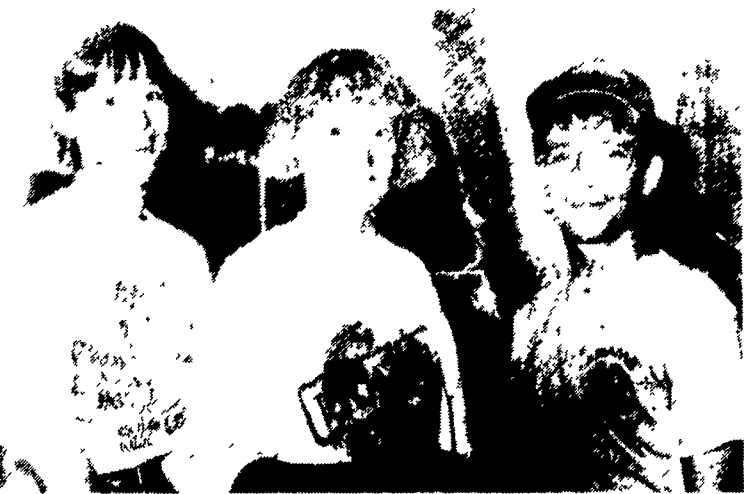

The Boots and Saddles 4-H Club held their July meeting at the home of president Eileen Holm, Manheim, where 30 members attended.

This busy month holds a trip to the University of Pennsylvania New Bolton Center, county round-up roller skating party and getting the club scrapbook and individual projects ready for the 4-H fair at the Lampeter Fairgrounds on August 13-14.

A demonstration was given by Robert Shuster-Edelson on "Who's Leading Who," covering the proper and improper ways to lead horses and the safety factors involved.

Samara Shuster-Edelson and Kelly Sullivan gave a demonstration entitled "What Did You Say?", covering little know breeds of horse such as Camarque, Caspias, Java, and others.

Adams County 4-H Senate president Abe Bucher, right, welcomes Kalsa Huhtala, center, from Finland, and Helen Bone, left, from Australia to Adams County. Huhtala and Bone are spending four weeks in Adams County as part of their six-month stay in Pennsylvania through the International 4-H Youth Exchange.

Tanya Martin, the 1991-1992 Bucks-Montgomery Dairy Princess and Pennsylvania Alternate, presents a basket of dairy goodies to Cindy and Mike Lewis of Sellersville and their newborn son Jonathan. Dairy products to promote June Dairy Month are given to the first baby born in the two-county area during the month of June. Ironically, Mrs. Lewis was the 1978 Bucks County Alternate Dairy Princess, who grew up on her parent's (Kenneth and Patricia Worthington) farm in Doylestown.

GEHL

Blowers To Fill Tall Orders

If you need a high-capacity forage blower to fill your tallest silos, Gehl blowers will help get your silo-filling done in short order.

- Three models give you a choice of 540 or 1,000 rpm operation.
- Twin spinners rifle material into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph.
- Twin-sided fan disc with paddles on both sides shoots the crop up the pipe in a nearly continuous flow.
- Split rim sheets feature a replaceable inner liner for longer life and lower maintenance costs.
- Many convenience features include swing-away blower outlet, air vents, adjustable left tire, right tire guard, wide hopper, removeable tunnel covers and dual water inlets.

Pack It In!

Pack more hay into each bale with Gehl variable chamber round balers.

- Total Density Control (TDC®) - Lets you custom-build bales according to changing crop and moisture conditions for maximum nutrient value.
- Two models - Makes bales 3 feet, 9 inches wide and up to 5 feet in diameter, or 5 feet wide and up to 6 feet in diameter.
- Quick-wrap option - Speeds your baling operation and helps preserve hay quality.
- Constant velocity driveline - For smooth operation.
- Electric dual twine wrap - With manual or auto control.
- Low horsepower requirement - Lets you bale with a tractor as small as 40 horsepower

Adams County 4-H'ers Attend National Citizenship Program

Two Adams County 4-H teens will be attending a week-long conference, 4-H Citizenship Washington Focus (CWF), at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md.

The 4-H teens are Abe Bucher, New Oxford and Mark Clowney, Gettysburg.

The National 4-H Center, located just outside Washington, D.C., is the perfect place for the 4-H members to stay while learning about citizenship, our democratic form of government, and current issues facing the federal government. The theme for this year's CWF conference is "A People's Power."

Adams County 4-H teens and 41 other teens from Pennsylvania will join members from five other states to use our nation's capitol as a classroom for a week. Meetings with congressmen and senators, along with visits to federal agencies, historical buildings, and cultural centers allow the 4-H teens to participate as they learn. This is the traditional "learn by doing" 4-H trademark.

Between visits to Washington, the 4-H teens will attend discussion and lecture workshops on what they experienced. They also will explore ways to make use of the concepts for themselves and for their communities at home.

Meat Judging Contest

Adams County 4-H members competed at a meat judging contest held in York County. The contest consisted of identification of 30 retail cuts of meat, beef carcass class, pork carcass class, porterhouse steak class, ham class, plus reasons on the ham and beef carcass classes.

The Adams County Senior Team placed second. Team members were Dan Ludwig, Gettysburg; Beau Ramsburg, Gettysburg; Travis Green, Gettysburg; and Megan Wessel, Hanover. Dan was third high individual and Travis was fifth. Beau was third high individual on reasons and Dan was sixth.

The Adams County Junior Team placed second. Team members were Kim Funt, Arendtsville; Eugene Hunt, East Berlin; and Mark Wessel, Hanover. Mark was second high individual and Kim was fourth. Mark was second high individual on meat identification and Kim was fourth.

The two teams are coached by Joan Grim and Dan O'Brien with assistance from Mary Hunt and Sue Wessel. Both teams will compete at State 4-H Achievement Days at Penn State University August 4-6. The winning team at Penn State will have the opportunity to represent Pennsylvania at the national contest this fall.

4-H Beef Club

Franklin County 4-H Beef Club held their annual Spring Preview Show recently at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

Fifty-five head of 4-H steers were shown under the watchful eye of Judge John Hausner of The Plains, Va. Judge Hausner remarked on the fine quality of animals at the show.

Randy Mullinex of Howard County, Md. walked his 1,140 pound crossbred Angus-Chi steer to the honor of grand champion. Heather Fuls of Somerset County won the reserve honors with a 1,000 pound crossbred steer.

Recently, 4-H Horse Judging Teams came from Adams, York, Franklin, Perry, and Cumberland counties to compete in the District VI Horse Judging Clinic held at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

Halter classes judged were hunter horse, hunter pony, stock-type, and Arab gelding. The performance classes were hunter horse, hunter pony, and Western pleasure. Classes came from members of the Gettysburg and Abbottstown 4-H Horse Clubs.

The Members of the Adams County Junior Horse Judging

Team are Brandi Cook, Shannon Brady, and Tanya Erford. Senior Team is Trish Erford, Brandy Haines, Rich Williams, and Heidi Dahlhammer. The York County Senior Team is Jessica Breese, Jenn Hoffman, Amy Gerberich, and Katie Kolb, and Laura Smith is York County's junior individual.

In the junior division, the Adams County team was high team. Brandi Cook was the second high individual, Shannon Brady was the third high individual, and Tanya Erford came in fourth. Shannon Brady had the high highest performance score in the junior division. Laura Smith from York County placed fifth in individual competition.

York County was the high team and Adams was the second place team in the Senior division. Jessica Breese from York County was high individual and had the highest conformation score. Amy Gerberich, also from York County, had the highest reason score, and Trish Erford, from Adams County, won third place in individual competition and had the highest performance score.

The District VI 4-H Horse Judging Clinic was held on June 6 at the South Mountain Fairgrounds. Adams, York, Franklin, Perry, and Cumberland county 4-H'ers competed in judging performance and conformation classes. The clinic was organized by the Adams County Extension Office and the Abbottstown and Gettysburg 4-H Horse Clubs.

York County 4-H Judging Contests Livestock

York County recently conducted their annual 4-H livestock judging contest at Kushner's Warrington Green Farm in Wellsville on Tuesday, July 7. Thirty-nine senior and thirty-four junior members participated in the contest including members from Chester, Lehigh, Berks, Dauphin, Lancaster, Lebanon, and York counties.

Members judged two classes each of beef, sheep, and swine and senior members presented three sets of oral reasons. In the senior competition, York County team members Matt Sellers, Thomasville; Jason Rankin, Abbottstown; and Kim Frantz, Seven Valleys, captured the top team award with 1,134 points.

Chester County had the second place senior team with their 1,038-point score. Team members included Shannon Templin, Matt Howe, and Matt McAllister. Lancaster County won the third place senior team award with 1,035 points.

In the senior individual competition, the top 10 individuals were Matt Sellers, York, first; Jason Rankin, second; and Matt McAllister, Chester, third.

Lancaster County captured the top junior team award with a 776-point score. Jessica Stoltzfus, Regina Landis and Travis Donough were members of the winning team. The York County team of Matt Trostle, Jason Frantz, and Jennifer Flinchbaugh was second with a 725-point score. Chester County's junior team was third with 724 points, Lebanon was fourth with 712 points, and Berks County was fifth with 688 points.

Jessica Stoltzfus won the high individual junior award with a 278-point score. Other junior winners included John Howe, Chester, second and Matt Trostle, York, third.

Beef official for the contest was Jamie Kohr Cash. Linda Spahr was the sheep official, and Larry Arnold officiated the swine classes.

Meats Judging and Identification Contest

Godfrey Brothers Meats in Loganville hosted the 1992 York County meats judging and identification contest on Wednesday, July 8.

Twelve junior members and 13 senior members from Adams, Lancaster, and York counties participated in the contest. Members judged four classes and identified 30 retail meat cuts according to species, primal cut, retail name, type of cut, and cookery method. Seniors presented two sets of oral reasons.

In the senior meats competition, Lancaster County won the top team award with a 1,458-point score. Team members included Angie Erb, Dwain Livengood, and Tim Craig. Adams County won the second place team award with 1,383 points, and York County placed third with 1,313 points.

In senior individual competition, Dwain Livengood won the high individual award with a 512-point score. Dwain was first in reason's scores and third in meat identification. Cindy Dehoff was second in the overall contest and placed first in identification and fifth in reasons. Other senior individual placings included Dan Ludwig, Adams, third.

The York County junior team of Mike Burrell, Shanna Daugherty, and Mindy Albright won the first place junior team award with a 1,064-point score. Adams County placed second with a 918-point score. Mike Burrell won both the high individual overall award and the identification first place award.

Other individual placings were Mark Wessell, Adams, second and Shanna Daugherty, York, third.

York County sponsors both an annual 4-H livestock and meats judging contest to help members prepare for State 4-H Achievement Days August 4-6 at Penn State University.

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?

PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Pork Prose

Kenneth B. Kephart

Penn State Extension Swine Specialist

TWELVE PSEUDOREFLECTIONS

What follows are a few facts and lot of opinions (my own) on the pseudorabies (PRV) problem in the commonwealth.

1. We now have 116 herds in 12 counties (Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Perry, Susquehanna, Snyder, and York) infected with PRV. It's fair to say the problem is getting worse, not better.

2. It's mostly in eastern Pennsylvania. Will it reach Western Pennsylvania? Some say sooner than later.

3. It's caused by a Herpes virus that almost always costs an infected herd some money. Sometimes a little, sometimes a lot. But many times, were it not for a positive blood test, the disease would go unnoticed.

4. Infection is most easily spread through direct contact with contaminated saliva. But reports suggest that pigs may pick it up in the air from neighboring farms at least a mile away.

5. Routine cull-sow blood sampling (now enforced by law) is turning up some positives. Perhaps we could learn a lot more by testing farms within a small radius of an infected herd.

6. Turnaround time for PRV testing at the state lab is much too slow.

7. Eradication efforts are sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council and the Livestock Conservation Institute. The program is funded in part by the USDA and individual states. But the real cleanup burden is shouldered by the producers who have the infected herds.

8. The lessons of the Pennsylvania PRV program of the early 1980s (eradication by depopulation) — it didn't work. It cost producers a lot of money who happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time, but cooperated anyway. It left a taste in the mouths of Lancaster County producers that has lingered for at least 10 years. It may yet for another 10.

8. Biggest current risk in Pennsylvania? Perhaps the positive pigs in finishing barns — difficult and expensive to vaccinate.

9. Biggest chance of reducing spread in Pennsylvania? Get everyone vaccinating.

10. Biggest chance of making the program work? Get the whole industry to share in the cost of cleanup. Would it be wrong to use checkoff funds for this program?

11. One piece of technology that would launch us ahead faster than a gene-deleted vaccine? A vaccine that we could put in the water.

12. The PRV committee wants your opinions — a select group of producers will be contacted in the near future to seek their advice on how the program should proceed.

OUR KUBOTAS HAVE A GREAT TRACK RECORD

On farms, dairies, vineyards, and in orchards, Kubota's compact mid-size tractors are leading the way in lugging power, versatility, fuel efficiency, and dependability.

Kubota's L-Series tractors are available in 20-49 PTO horsepower with a powerful direct injection diesel engine. Choose the transmission best for your application; from a mechanical or hydraulic shuttle transmission, to Kubota's innovative glide shift transmission (GST) which requires no clutching through its 8 forward and 8 reverse gears. And now Kubota offers you even more reliability with the new "Ever Clutch"—a first-of-its-kind wet clutch designed to work long and hard without mechanical failure.

Kubota's M-Series tractors can help you tackle your larger tasks efficiently and economically. Wet disc brakes, hydraulic draft, power steering, and direct fuel injection are all standard equipment on these 42-91 PTO horsepower models giving you the power and maneuverability you need to get the job done. Choose an optional shuttle shift transmission, or 2 or 4-wheel drive, for added versatility. And, the extra large fuel tank capacity will keep you going longer without refueling.

Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1,000 dealers

FAIR DAYS

Premium List For Allentown Fair Exhibits
Allentown Fair Premium Lists, which explain exhibit entry procedures for this year's fair from September 1-7, are available at the fair office.

Requirements, deadlines, and fees for entry in all departments including animals, agriculture, domestics and fine arts are listed.

In addition to the traditional fair judging categories, the Premium List describes eight corporate-sponsored culinary competitions. Listed as "Special Contests" under the Home Products section, these contests offer prizes valued from $10 to $450 in cash and/or gifts and, in some instances, the opportunity to compete at a national level.

Unlike the other items in Ag Hall that are judged without spectators before the fair opens, the special contest entries are judged as are the livestock throughout fair week.

Premium lists can be picked up at the fair office behind the Ritz Bar-B-Q on the fairgrounds weekdays between 9 a.m.-5 p.m. They are also available at the fair ticket office on Saturdays from 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Maryland Fair In Search Of Exhibitors

The 111th Maryland State Fair, which will offer a variety of livestock, arts and crafts and 4-H exhibits, opens Saturday, August 29 and runs through Monday, September 7 at the Timonium Fairgrounds. The Fairgrounds open at 8 a.m. for livestock and horse shows, demonstration halls open at 10 a.m., and the Midway opens at 11 a.m. on weekends and 12 noon on weekdays.

Anyone who would like to enter their favorite quilt, horse, cake, giant pumpkin, rabbit, flower, steer, etc., in this year's Maryland State Fair may obtain the rules, regulations, and required forms from the Maryland State Fair Administration Office, P.O. Box 188, Timonium, MD 21093-0188.

Franklin Co. Fair Queen

Entries are now being accepted from any single Franklin County girl between the ages of 16 and 20 who is interested in entering the fair queen contest at the 1992 Franklin County Fair.

Contestants will be interviewed regarding her personal life, school, employment, hobbies, and plans. Each contestant must also answer an impromptu question and give a two-minute speech on what they believe are the advantages to having a county fair, such as the Franklin County Fair, and how or what they think the fair gives back to the community.

Anyone wishing to participate or needing more information should contact Denise Kessler, fair queen contest chair, 3309 Horst Lane, Chambersburg, PA 17201, (717) 263-9226 (between 8 a.m.-4 p.m.) or at (717) 264-4415 (after 4 p.m.).

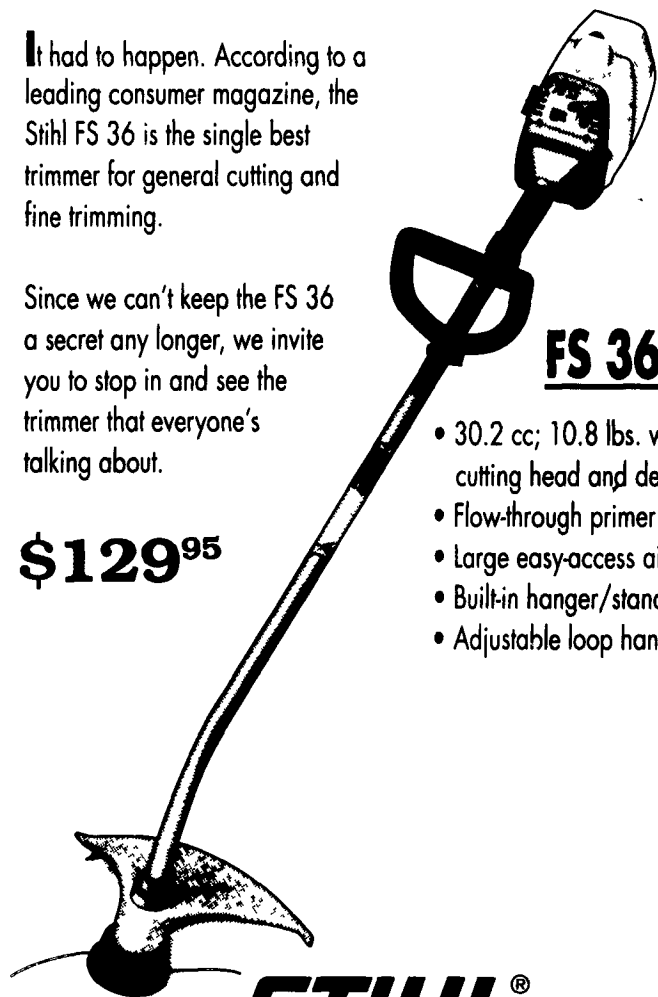

Contestants must send two black and white photographs along with the completed application no later than August 1.

BUILDING BETTER BONES

Dr. Carol V. Gay
Molecular and Cell Biology
Poultry Science

Throughout our lives we are constantly building — adding a room to our houses, building a new pole barn, building a go-cart with the kids, or building a better life for ourselves.

But we may neglect to think about building processes within ourselves and our livestock. Most of all, we may tend to think of bones as strong, stonelike, unchanging structures. Yet bone is continually changing and is susceptible to disease and nutritional deficiencies.

Adults, whether human or avian, have some 200 bones which provide protection, support, and a source of calcium for physiological functions. Ninety-nine percent of the body's calcium is in the bones.

Bone is comprised of a network of interlocking protein fibers, interspersed with tiny crystals of calcium and phosphorus. The crystals are long and thin or sometimes are thin plates. The crystals are oriented parallel to the protein fibers and both crystals and fibers are lined up in the direction of forces created by moving.

For example, in the long bones of the leg, the angle of orientation is along the length of the bone. The force generated by walking or running is mainly down the shaft of the bone.

This arrangement of crystals and fibers provides strong structures much like that achieved by placing reinforcing rods in a column of concrete.

In a healthy individual, bone is continually being replaced. Old bone is removed in minuscule amounts throughout the skeleton and new bone is formed to replace it. It is estimated that in adult humans 10 to 30 percent of bone is replaced each year.

Obviously, the removal-replacement cycle must be exactly balanced for bone mass to be maintained. The need for good dietary habits to replace both the protein and crystalline components of bones is a must.

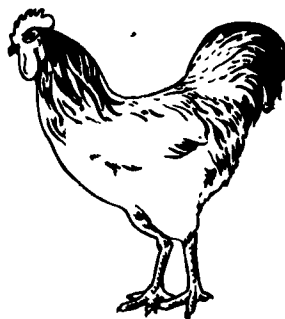

We all know that children and young adults should be encouraged to include sufficient amounts of calcium in their diets. And I have tried to show why adults of all ages also need to maintain an adequate intake of building materials. There are many dietary sources of quality protein, and phosphorus is readily available in most foods. Less easy to obtain is calcium, which should be ingested at a rate of about 1 gram per day for normal individuals.

Laying hens have perhaps the most remarkable skeleton of any animal. Their structural bones are formed and reformed much like other vertebrates, including humans. However, to meet the demands of calcifying an eggshell day after day, extra bone forms inside the marrow cavity in avian bones. This bone, called medullary bone, remodels rapidly every day.

Each eggshell contains 2-2.5 grams of calcium. A good layer will produce 300 or more eggs per year. Therefore, a hen will use a quantity of calcium for yearly egg production that is greater than her entire skeleton by 30-fold or more.

A hen consumes approximately 25 percent more feed on egg-producing days than on days when it does not. Researchers have found that the calcium level in feed needs to be 3.5 percent or more in order for calcium to be supplied directly from intestinal absorption. When the level drops below 2 percent, medullary bone provides 30-40 percent of the shell calcium.

On calcium-free diets, bone provides all the calcium for the shell. Under this condition, medullary bone rapidly disappears, soft-shelled eggs are laid, and the hen goes out of production in a few days.

System Helps Solve Bottom Unloader Problems

FORT ATKINSON, Wis. — The Jamesway line of silo unloaders has for some time included a top unload, bottom discharge unloader the company calls "Big Jim."

The unit has successfully handled big silo distribution and unloading jobs since its introduction in 1958, as an alternate to bottom unloaders.

In recent years, owners of steel silos who were looking for a less expensive, more reliable way to handle their bottom unloading jobs began exploring the idea of replacing their high-maintenance and low-capacity bottom unloaders with Big Jim unloaders. The initial Big Jim installations in steel silos have been successful.

On the basis of those first installations in steel silos, Jamesway engineers have made refinements with the Big Jim system that enable it to perform even better for steel silo owners. The new suspension system, for instance, eliminates the need for a standard Big Jim tripod above the silo roof and reduces the number of support cables. The new suspension system also maintains the structural integrity of the silo. Access doors are installed every 10 feet in the ladder and safety cage area, maintaining the silo's original appearance. The unit features an on-board cable hoist. The control panel handles fill, feed, and conveyor operation. A remote control and ammeter monitor Big Jim at the filling location. A quick change-over on-board control lets you convert from filling to feeding in minutes.

Jamesway engineers claim better quality high moisture haylage with a Big Jim filling/distribution operation and better feed value from Big Jim big-volume bottom unloading. In addition to being a less-costly unit, Big Jim has demonstrated long years of service with low maintenance and high reliability.

For complete details, see your Jamesway Dealer or write for literature to J-Star Industries, Inc., 801 Janesville Avenue, Fort Atkinson, WI 53538, (414) 563-5521.

Cultivator For Ridge-Tilling

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — The new Krause 4700 Series high residue cultivator was designed for today's higher residue cropping systems including ridge till, according to Charlie Hooper, CB Hooper & Sons Inc., Intercourse, Pa.

Sixteen-inch double "V" coulters placed just ahead of the low profile adjustable sweep shank pull residue apart as they roll through it. One coulters grips the residue while the other cuts it. Residue then moves uninterrupted past the sweep shank without plugging. This design feature allows cultivator operation in wetter and softer field conditions.

Effective weed kill is accomplished by the low profile adjustable sweep at shallower depths while leaving most of the residue on or near the surface.

The 4700 Series offers quick and easy coulters and sweep depth adjustments. These adjustments allow the operator to quickly set the 4700 for optimum performance in varying soil and residue conditions without using tools.

A wide range of options are available for the 4700 Series, including:

- Flip-up adjustable ridging blades.

- Independent adjustable angle disc shields.

- Titled cutaway disc blades for both wide and narrow row models.

- Anhydrous and/or liquid fertilizer attachments.

The 4700 Series cultivators are offered in 4-, 6-, and 8-row rigid bar models and 6-, 8-, 12-, and 16-row flat fold models (12-row flat fold shown in the transport position).

For more information on Krause 4700 Series high residue cultivators, stop in and visit C B Hooper & Son Inc.

New Products Introduced

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In 1990, 43 new fluid milk products were introduced across the United States.

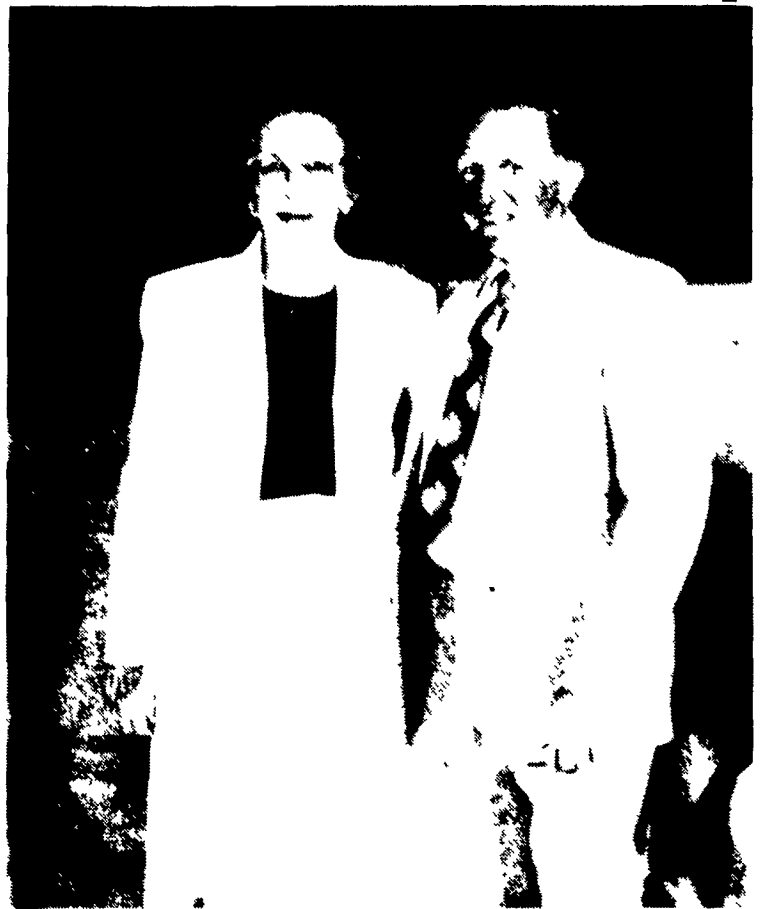

These new products offer consumers more variety in flavor, calorie content, and more. In some areas, a carbonated milk product has even been introduced to the public.

Manufacturers also offer lactose-reduced products, vitamin fortified milks, and milks with sweet acidophilus to improve digestion.

C.J. Wonsidler Wins Trip

ATLANTA, Ga. — Charles J. Wonsidler of C. J. Wonsidler Bros., Quakertown, won an all-expense paid trip to Naples, Fla., compliments of AGCO Corporation, the parent company for Deutz-Allis.

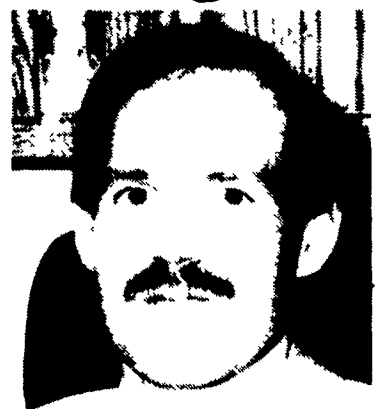

Wonsidler was one of the company's top performers in farm equipment and parts sales during 1991. Of the more than 700 Deutz-Allis dealers in North America Wonsidler was included in the elite group of only 62 dealers winning the trip.

PennWest Names Branch Manager

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Douglas Huston has recently been named a branch manager for Penn West Farm Credit, ACA (Agriculture Credit Association). He is responsible for credit and operations in the Somerset and Curryville branches with a loan volume of $45 million and a staff of nine employees.

Huston, a Penn State graduate, has been with Penn West for 13 years. Most recently he has served as executive loan officer responsible for servicing the largest loans within the Somerset and Curryville branches.

Becomes President Of White-New Idea

COLDWATER, Ohio — Rodney Cooper has been appointed president of White-New Idea, according to Bobby Middlebrooks, senior vice president of Allied Products Corporation, the parent company of White-New Idea.

A graduate of Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, Cooper started his career with White-New Idea in 1974 as a territory manager. His experience with the company includes several sales management positions, including region manager. Rod served as director of part operations in Coldwater, Ohio, as well as his most recent position as vice president of sales and marketing.

Cooper replaces Charles Lunger, who has been interim president of White-New Idea since August 1991. Lunger is returning to Allied's offices in Chicago to resume his full-time responsibilities as chief operating officer.

Best Values in New Equipment

MAXXUM. Setting new standards for mid-range tractors.

Power, comfort, convenience, durability — no matter how you judge them, MAXXUM tractors are in a class by themselves. You can see it in the way they perform.

The MAXXUM line includes three mid-range tractors designed to deliver the muscle you need to work the field along with the versatility you expect to lift and load around the farm. Choose from 77, 86 and 94 PTO horsepower (57, 64 and 70 kW).

Durable, proven engines power these rugged tractors. You can depend on these diesels to deliver years of trouble-free use. More than 250,000 are in use around the world.

Innovative transmissions are at the heart of every tractor. Optional powershift and creeper transmissions add to the versatility. A standard forward-reverse shuttle shift makes MAXXUM tractor perfect for loader work.

Ask for an on-farm demonstration. Unequalled versatility matched with uncompromised performance. That's what puts MAXXUM tractors in a class by themselves. Ask your dealer to bring one out for an on-farm demonstration, so you can prove it to yourself.

Editor's Note: For the past six years, Penn State Associate Professor of Reproductive Physiology Daniel R. Deave and Professor of Reproductive Physiology Gary J. Killian have participated in the Governor's School of Agricultural Sciences. They talk of their experiences with gifted high school students in this article.

Programs such as the Governor's School of Agricultural Sciences help to attract some of the best and brightest high school students from across the commonwealth to the field of animal agriculture. For five weeks every summer, tenth and eleventh grade students from a variety of backgrounds not just farming visit University Park to participate in hands-on laboratory and classroom lectures in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Approximately 75 percent of the students are from urban areas. This urban-rural mix provides an excellent opportunity for these budding scientists to exchange ideas and obtain viewpoints from a different perspective. They are selected competitively from a large group that applies for the program annually. The student's academic record is an important selection criterion, as well as his or her expressed interest in learning about science in agriculture.

Students in the Governor's School participate in a variety of activities during their visit to the university, beginning with the required core of courses in animal science, food science, plant science, agricultural economics, and agricultural engineering. This formal classroom work provides all of them with a common experience and allows them to begin to grasp the wide range of fields that comprise modern agriculture. In addition to core courses, they may select smaller and more focused elective courses. Each student also must conduct an independent research project, working closely with a faculty or graduate student mentor.

We participated in this program from 1985-1991, both as core course instructors and mentors for students. In a gamete physiology class, activities ranged from students palpating the reproductive tract of a cow to studying the process of in vitro fertilization. In reproductive endocrinology, they learned the anatomy of the female reproductive system, including the brain and how the secretion of hormones critical to the process of reproduction are controlled. Year after year, students listed these experiences as unique and positive experiences they would remember for a long time.

Daniel Deaver

Gary Killian

These classes provided students with a hands-on look at technologies being applied in the field of reproductive biology. We emphasized that to use these technologies successfully, an animal scientist must integrate principles of chemistry, biology, physics, mathematics, and animal agriculture.

But they're not the only ones who benefit. Faculty and graduate students alike find the Governor's School experience rewarding. Although working with high school students requires an adjustment in approach from the typical university classroom situation, the enthusiasm the students show for the subject matter is truly gratifying.

For example, students attend the core courses in four to five groups. The first group usually passes along a description and their own reactions of the activities they've just completed. The attitude of the remaining sections is clearly influenced by the perception of their peers, giving the instructors a feeling of personal satisfaction when incoming students arrive already excited about their day's assignment.

The 1992 Governor's School is under way through July 31. Associate Professor of Animal Science Daniel Hagan is teaching core curriculum courses in reproductive biology this year, and Professor of Animal Science Lowell Wilson is offering coursework in animal welfare.

For additional information about the Governor's School of Agricultural Science, sponsored by the Department of Education and the State's Intermediate Units, contact Marianne Houser in the College of Agricultural Science's Office of Resident Education, 101 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814)865-7521.

Delaware Research Seeks Insect Control

NEWARK, Del. — In the animal world, scent is a common way to attract a mate. Now, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension personnel are taking the chemistry of scent and using it in their arsenal against insect pests.

Clearwing borers, day-flying moths that damage fruit and shade trees as well as shrubs, are the focus of this exploratory project led by Dr. Dewey M. Caron, Extension entomologist.

Pheromones, the chemical scent produced by female insects to attract a mate, are impregnated on a piece of sticky tape placed inside a cardboard trap.

Caron stresses the importance of knowing when adult moths are present. The window of time is very short for effectively controlling these borers, he says. Once the eggs hatch and the larvae go beneath the bark of host trees or shrubs, insecticides are not effective for control.

In general, insecticides are applied 10 days after the males are captured because eggs hatch about 10 days after the adults emerge.

The project is adding to the data on members of this insect group, including peach tree, rhododendron, oak, dogwood and lilac/ash borers, that plague Delaware. General recommendations for when adults are expected to appear are not always useful because emergence can be affected by many variables.

"Depending on environmental conditions, such as wet or cool weather, the adults may emerge late," Caron said. "This season, for example, plant development was slower than normal and the moths appeared later than expected."

Pa. Crop Management Association Meets

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Directors of the Pennsylvania Crop Management Association met here recently under the direction of newly elected president John Ligo, vice president Dan Boob, and secretary/treasurer Jay Grove.

John Ligo, dairy farmer and member of the Mercer County CMA, was named "Pennsylvania Young Farmer of the Year" in 1992 by the Jaycees. He replaces Wayne Kuhns, a member of the Franklin County CMA.

Vice President Dan Boob, dairy farmer and member of the Centre-

Clinton CMA, replaces Ed Snook of Lycoming County who is a member of the West Branch CMA. Secretary-treasurer Jay Grove is a dairy farmer from the Franklin County CMA. He replaces Charles Allen, SulBra CMA member from Bradford County.

The Pennsylvania Crop Management Association meets quarterly and determines crop management program activities and objectives. Organized in 1984, it is composed of elected representatives from local crop management associations.

Associations are local, non-profit organizations run by member farmers. The first CMA was founded in Centre County in 1979. Since then, 10 CMAs, dedicated to promoting sound crop management, have been organized in 34 counties across the state.

Association members generate revenue for employees' salaries by assessing themselves an acreage fee. Currently, 80,000 acres on 450 farms are under the watchful eyes of crop management professionals hired to scout fields, make recommendations, and develop integrated crop management systems.

At the June state board meeting, directors approved an insurance package for PCMA and local associations. They also discussed procedures for complying with nondiscrimination regulations and the monitoring of sludge applications by consultants.

An updated version of the Handbook for Establishing and Operating CMAs was also distributed to directors for their comments. Directors approved a schedule for staffing the PCMA exhib-

Field Days At Rodale

MAXATAWNY (Berks Co.) — Farmers interested in sustainable agriculture can see the latest innovations in operation during the Rodale Institute Research Center's 12th annual Field Demonstration Days on July 28 and 29.

Research Center staff members will lead a detailed, day-long tour (on tractor-drawn wagons) of the 333-acre, internationally recognized organic farm near Kutztown. Included in the tour are explanations of various field crop trials, legume experiments, apple management techniques, composting projects, vegetable and perennial grain trials, the Farming Systems Trial, Farm Management Study, and more. The tour is particularly suited to farmers, teachers, students, researchers, extension personnel, and master gardeners.

Each day's format is identical. The day's activities include a catered lunch and an information exchange with staff members following the tour. Every attendee will receive a packet containing detailed synopses of the Research Center's 1992 trials. Registration is at 8:30 a.m., with the tour beginning at 9 a.m.

Registration is limited to 200 people each day. A $12 perperson registration fee is required. To register, send a check or money order to: Field Days, RIRC, 611 Siegfriedale Rd., Kutztown, PA 19530. Checks may be made payable to Rodale Institute. Please indicare which day you will be attending.

For more information, call the Research Center at (215) 683-6383.

Suffolk Winners Announced

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Stacey Suffel of Carlisle, Pa. was a major winner at the annual National Junior Suffolk Sheep Show held at the county fairgrounds in Kalamazoo, Mich., July 3-4.

The show is open to National Junior Suffolk Sheep Association members age 21 or younger.

This year, 194 young Suffolk sheep breeders from 14 states and Canada exhibited more than 600 Suffolks at this special show.

States represented ranged from Massachusetts and Connecticut in the East to North Dakota, Nebraska and Oklahoma in the West.

Stacey exhibited the second place mediumweight wether. Some of the sheep shown will end up also winning in the National Suffolk Show (adult division) later on this fall.

Stacey is the daughter of John & Shirley Suffel, Carlisle. This 18-year old has 20 Suffolks in her flock and has been breeding Suffolks for five years.

This year's National Junior Suffolk Show was primarily sponsored by the Michigan Suffolk Sheep Breeders Association.

it at Ag Progress Days and consultant participation in the conservation education tours.

The PCMA exhibit will be located in the Crops and Soils Tent. The one-hour wagon tours will be offered daily at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and will depart from the conservation education tent. The topic is "Estimating Field Crop Yields and Managing Nutrients."

Finally, directors heard details of a summary identifying major improvements in nutrient management practices by farmers enrolled in CMAs through the ASCS special practice entitled integrated crop management. Forty-eight farmers enrolled in the special practice during 1990 and 1991 documented their cropping practices using the computer-based crop information management system. A summary of practices indicates that more than 40 percent of growers reduced total purchased nitrogen by 27 tons, reducing fertilizer bills by an average of $570 per farm in 1991.

The Pennsylvania Crop Management Association plans to hold its next board meeting in State College on September 23.

Local Teens Attend Ambassador Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Joshua Hercher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hercher of Harrisburg, and Jesse Romberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Romberger of Millersburg participated in the fourth annual Penn State

4-H Ambassador Conference at the Penn State campus.

The teens attended workshops on interviewing skills, public speaking, and marketing. They also learned how to answer commonly asked questions about 4-H.

The conference delegates also visited with a number of Penn State faculty and administrators during a reception sponsored by William Asbury, vice president for student services.

Conference participants have the opportunity to apply for the State 4-H Ambassador Team. State 4-H ambassadors promote the 4-H program and the land-grant university system and are available to speak to groups about the connection between Penn State Cooperative Extension and 4-H.

For more information about the program, contact Mae B. Hostetter, extension agent, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Dauphin County, 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Dauphin, PA 17018, (717) 921-8803.

Local 4-H'ers recently attended the 4-H Ambassador Conference. From left, Joshua Hercher, Harrisburg, and Jesse Romberger, Millersburg, join Dr. William Asbury, Penn State vice president and honorary chairman of the Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference, and Rhoda and Hans Hercher of Harrisburg.

Boar Test Program Progresses

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center wishes to announce that the summer boar testing program is progressing very rapidly.

Plans are being formulated for Pennsylvania's 16th Performance Tested Boar Sale, scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday, August 19, at the Ag Arena on the Penn State campus.

Twenty of the more progressive swine breeders in Pennsylvania have consigned a pen consisting of four boars from one sire and from either one or two litters. These boars are delivered when they weigh between 40 and 65 pounds. They are given a one or two week adjustment period depending on weight. They are then weighed on test. The boars are weighed every two weeks and their testing period concludes when the pen weighs an average of 230 pounds.

Average daily gain is calculated. The pen feed efficiencies are determined. The boars are evaluated for soundness, structural and breeding, by a committee made up of several swine breeders and university swine specialists. The boars are all scanned ultrasonically to determine backfat thickness and loin eye area.

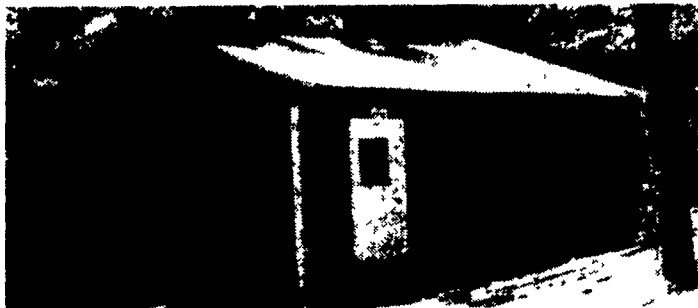

All boars must meet minimum requirements for soundness and underline and then the top 75 percent approximately, by index of the sound boars will be offered for sale.

Breeds represented in this test are Yorkshire, Duroc, Landrace, Poland China, and Hampshire.

To request a sale catalog or to request additional information about the boars, boar sale or the boar testing program, contact Glenn Eberly, director of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, (814) 238-2527.

Cook Returns To PFU

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Cheryl L. Cook, Esq., former assistant director of Legislative Services for the National Farmers Union's legislative office in Washington, D.C., has returned to Pennsylvania to serve as assistant to Farmers Union State President Robert Junk.

Cook spent the last five years on National Farmers Union's lobbying staff specializing in a variety of issue areas, including dairy and livestock, environment and sustainability, biotechnology, and agricultural credit. She worked for Pennsylvania Farmers Union during the mid-1980's as communications director.

Cook holds a Juris Doctor degree from The Dickinson School of Law and a Bachelor of Arts degree from Lebanon Valley College.

"The family farm system of food and fiber production is reaching a critical watershed," she said, "and I am eager to get back to the grass roots to help Pennsylvania farmers get involved in sustaining their livelihoods, their natural resources, and their rural communities."

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union is a general farm organization representing producers of a wide variety of agricultural commodities across the Commonwealth.

Contest Deadline

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn growers have a few weeks left to enter the National Corn Growers Association's (NCGA) 1992 National Corn Yield Contest (NCYC). Contest coordinators say the number of entries received so far suggests another record-breaking year.

"Some farmers wait until their corn crop has pollinated to send in entry forms, but judging from the number of entries we received by the July 1 early bird deadline, we are hoping for another record-breaking year," said Craig Guthrie, chairman of the NCYC Advisory Committee and a corn grower from Elkhorn, Wis.

All entries must be postmarked by the final deadline of August 1 to be included in the contest. Rules, entry, and harvest forms can be obtained by contacting NCGA at (314) 275-9915 seed company representatives.

The entry fee is $70 per hybrid. Participants must enter a field of at least 10 continuous acres in size.

"We encourage as many farmers to participate as possible," Guthrie said. "The NCYC provides an opportunity to compare your corn production capabilities with other farmers in your state and with corn producers across the country. The NCYC also provides the opportunity to try new, innovative production methods on a smaller plot before possibly adopting them on a large scale. Farmers can have fun and earn awards at the same time."

The contest includes seven classes: Class A Non-Irrigated, Class AA Non-Irrigated, No-Till Irrigated, No-Till Non-Irrigated, Ridge-Till Non-Irrigated, Ridge-Till Irrigated, and Irrigated.

Class AA is the conventional tillage division for corn growers entering fields in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, and Wisconsin. Class A includes the remaining 41 continental states. The Irrigated, No-Till Irrigated, No-Till Non-Irrigated, Ridge-Till Non-Irrigated, and Ridge-Till Irrigated classes cover the entire 48 continental states.

Winners in the contest will be announced January 15, 1993, and will be recognized at NCGA's Corn Classic, February 21-23, 1993, in San Antonio, Texas. Trophies will be awarded to the top three winners in each class by state and on the national level. Last year, a record number 476 trophies were awarded.

B W M Independence Power was named the reserve grand champion steer at the 1992 Atlantic National Junior Angus Show in Timonium, Maryland. Bryson Michael of Mt. Solon, Virginia, owns the reserve winner that is a May 1991 son of Premier Independence K N. The steer weighed in at 1,062 pounds for a weight per day of age of 2.89 pounds.

M K Design 1586 won reserve grand championship bred-and-owned bull honors at the 1992 Atlantic National Junior Angus Show in Timonium, Maryland. The bull is an April 1991 son of Dameron Challenge and is owned by Myron Kennedy of Brookeville, Maryland.

Daltons Starman 174 was named the grand champion steer at the 1992 Atlantic National Junior Angus Show in Timonium, Maryland. The entry is a March 1991 son of F F Starstruck and was exhibited by Bradley Lutz of Mt. Jackson, Virginia. The steer weighed in at 1,122 pounds with a weight per day of age of 2.62 pounds.

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

By Prolonging The Life Of Your Engine Transmission Etc.

Science brings a new dimension to Anti-Friction

An oil additive metal conditioner product ahead of its time, IXL will give your equipment priceless protection. IXL gives protection far superior to just oil or lubricants. IXL is specifically designed to be used in: (NEW) and (USED) gasoline & diesel engines, compressors, automatic & manual transmissions, hydraulics, gear boxes, bearings of all types, turbos, pumps, and much more. IXL is a metal conditioner which treats surface metals 3 to 5 microns deep, thereby making the metal surfaces harder, denser and smoother. These results are minimum metal wear, giving maximum engine and machine life. IXL reduces heat, friction, and wear, up to 60% without changing tolerances, reducing friction will release energy previously expended to overcome ordinary mechanical resistance. This energy is now available as a positive force, working to increase power, performance and fuel savings. IXL also helps maintain and recondition seals and gaskets, by keeping these items pliable, firm, and flexible. It will help prevent leaks, however IXL is not a lubricant or oil, such as PTFE, Moly, or graphite. IXL is biodegradable, NON-TOXIC and environmentally safe. IXL is one of the highest quality products on the market today. IXL is satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

Six-year-old Nathan Tice munches on his favorite popcorn at last year's Lebanon Fair. The son of Debbie and Tom Tice, Fredericksburg, said that he comes to the fair to see everything, but his very special event is watching the pig races.

Many Happy Memories Rekindle Lebanon's Fair

It's not an African safari — It's Mike Firestine riding an elephant at last year's Lebanon Area Fair. Firestine, vice president of ag lending for Lebanon Valley National Bank, said the ride was steadier than a horse but hard on the rump. The elephant cost $2 to ride, part of the exotic animal display at the fair.

From the left, holding the halter of her supreme cow of last year's Lebanon Fair Youth Dairy Cattle Show, Dianne Dice is presented with the trophy and the ribbon by the Lebanon County Milk Promotion Court — Karen Lentz, dairy princess; Allison Martin, dairy maid; and Bethanie Heagy, Little Miss.

FAIR DAYS Contests Set

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — What do George Washington, Winston Churchill, and thousands of people in the United States and Canada have in common? They love Arabian Horses.

The Pennsylvania Arabian Horse Association is pleased to announce that the 33rd annual Eastern Arabian Horse Show and East Coast Championships will be held on July 31 and August 1-2 at the Quentin Riding Club, three miles south of Lebanon.

With free admission and free parking, the show will feature more than 600 horses taking part in more than 140 classes in everything from English, Western, hunter to dressage, driving, trail, and the audience-favorite mounted native costume.

In addition, there will be a fair area with exhibits, food booths, crafts, clothing, gifts, equine-related supplies, and much more.

The oldest known breed of horse, the Arabian has a romantic history from the desert sheikhs and Bedouin warriors to the winningest breed of long-distance competitive rides.

In order to qualify for the East Coast Championships, a horse must have been a champion or reserve at a show in the Eastern time zone (21 states and two Canadian provinces).

Soybean Board To Conduct Contractor Audit

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The United Soybean Board (USB), upon request by the USDA, will conduct a compliance audit of their primary contractors.

The audit is to ensure that all expenditures billed to USB by their primary contractors are in compliance with the act establishing the national soybean checkoff.

To be in compliance, expenditures must be authorized and approved, appropriate to the task to be performed, allowable, and reasonable under the marketing order.

"We view the audit requested by USDA as a part of our ongoing efforts to ensure accountability of every checkoff dollar to each of the over 450,000 soybean farmers who contribute," said Sandy Ludeman, USB chairman and soybean farmer from Tracy, Minn.

"The process has been moving forward since late January, when, at USB's direction, the auditing firm of Peat Marwick conducted their first analysis of billing procedures by the American Soybean Association, who holds primary 1992 contracts for the five program areas," said Ludeman. "Throughout this analysis, we have strived to be fair, open, and cooperative."

At the USB board meeting in March, the full board adopted a resolution establishing a special subcommittee to pursue resolution of issues raised by the auditors, and authorized a special outside consultant to assist the subcommittee.

The USB Executive Committee received the subcommittee's recommendations and presented the USB position to the ASA officers in mid May.

"We've had several meetings with ASA farmer leaders during the past four months. USB, after identifying possible areas of concern, has diligently attempted to resolve issues revealed by the consultant's report and by our own analysis," said Jerry Slocum, chairman of the USB Audit and Evaluation Committee and a soybean farmer from Coldwater, Miss.

Implementing these changes will bring ASA's cost allocation system in line with provisions of the order and with good business management practices.

Ag Maintains Positive Role In Environment

ATLANTA, Ga. — Efficient crop production is effective stewardship of soil, water, and air resources, according to agronomists at the Potash and Phosphate Institute.

Critics of conventional agriculture challenge this statement. However, science is continually proving the point that best management practices—or BMPs—exert a powerful and positive effect on sustaining environmental quality. That is not to say that agriculture doesn't change or influence the native environment. Rather, good farming helps preserve these resources.

Consider what science has shown:

- Soil quality can be improved in intensive, continuous corn production systems by increasing soil organic matter content. Integrating BMPs for tillage system, hybrid selection, plant population, water and fertilizer management, and pest management produce higher yields and greater quantities of crop residue to make more soil organic matter.

• Balanced and adequate fertilizer applications, according to soil tests, significantly minimize or eliminate nitrogen leaching losses compared to unfertilized or unbalanced fertility programs. Well-fertilized crops grow rapidly, absorbing large quantities of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. If nutrients are in the plant, they aren't at risk in the environment.

• Early season erosion is reduced by planting adapted hybrids or varieties at the right population, the right time, and with adequate nutrients.

Good crop production is an effective environmental substitute for native vegetation. Plants, whether improved or wild, are nature's anti pollution devices. They remove carbon dioxide, the major greenhouse gas, from the atmosphere and replenish it with oxygen. They absorb nutrients from the soil. Well-managed soils filter percolating water and trap nutrients, holding them for plants to absorb.

An acre of corn yielding 150 bushels per acre of grain produces approximately eight and a half tons of total biomass.

PDPP Directors Meet With Producers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has scheduled a meeting with dairy producers in western Pennsylvania, on Tuesday, July 28, at 6:30 p.m., at the Rynd Home Farm, near Cochranton.

The meeting has been organized to give dairy producers an opportunity to learn more about promotion activities conducted by the PDPP.

"We feel that it is important for producers to have an opportunity to see first hand how their promotion dollars are being used," said Karl Kroeck, PDPP Board Chairman, in announcing the meeting. "At the meeting, we also want to offer time for producers to ask questions about our programming decisions, to gain a greater understanding of our promotion objectives."

At the meeting, PDPP board members and staff will prepare a brief synopsis of program activities, including the recent summer ice cream promotion, fall cheese campaigns, and fluid milk advertising programs. Producers will also have the opportunity to offer program suggestions and gain first hand knowledge about the purposes of promotional campaigns.

The meeting will begin with a potluck supper. The PDPP board will provide meat, salad and beverage for the supper. Families are encouraged to attend the meeting and are asked to bring along a casserole, vegetable dish, or dessert for the meal.

The PDPP board will hold an official meeting the next day, July 29, at the Days Inn, Meadville. Further details about the meeting are available by calling (717) 787-6903.

ROV Angus Show Sees 199 Cattle

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders from throughout the country gathered on the East Coast for the 1992 Atlantic National Roll of Victory (ROV) Angus Show held recently at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium.

Show judge Bill Marsden of Highmore, South Dakota, evaluated the entries and selected the champions.

Parading both the grand champion bull and grand champion female entries, Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Nebraska, was the show's big winner. Grand bull honors were presented to WK Future, the junior division winner. The March 1990 son of R&J Extraordinary 1345 is jointly owned with WK Future Associates, also of Gordon.

Whitestone Krebs' grand female was Honey Bears Sophie, a May 1990 daughter of Fairfield Dark Star P57. First named the intermediate division winner, the heifer is co-owned with Gretchen Hilmes of Flora, Illinois.

The reserve grand champion heifer was WK Queen of Diamonds, an April 1991 daughter of R&J Extraordinary 1345. The heifer is owned by Elizabeth Hauke, Sardinia, Ohio, and first won late spring heifer calf championship honors.

Oneills Exon won reserve grand champion bull honors for owners Forsythe Cattle Company, Marshall, Illinois, and O'Neill Angus Farm, Logan, Iowa. The bull first topped the intermediate division and is a May 1990 son of R&J Extra 893.

USDA Accepts 1 Million More Acres In Conservation Reserve

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has accepted an additional 998,211 acres of highly erodible and other environmentally sensitive cropland into the Conservation Reserve Program, according to a recent announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan.

"After 11 sign-up periods, we now have enrolled 35,395,951 acres into the program. This acreage provides substantial environmental benefits by reducing soil erosion, improving wildlife habitat, and enhancing water quality," Madigan said. "The Conservation Reserve Program is one of the largest federal commitments to environmental quality and clearly shows how effective voluntary farm stewardship programs can be."

The additional acreage, which was bid during the eleventh sign-up period from July 8-19, 1991, was concentrated in Iowa with 100,490 acres; Texas with 86,574 acres; and Missouri with 87,992 acres. Per acre rental payment rates for the 10-15 year contracts averaged $52.35. Most participants are also eligible to receive a cost-share payment to establish permanent vegetative cover on their enrolled acreage.

The twelfth CRP sign-up ended June 26. Pennsylvania County ASCS offices received 276 bids. Bids are evaluated by the National ASCS office for acceptance in the program based on environmental benefits compared to federal dollars expended. Producers whose bids provide the highest level of benefits per CRP dollar will be accepted and notified at a later

There were 93 contracts signed in Pennsylvania amounting to 3,772 acres as a result of the eleventh sign-up. More than 98,000 acres in the state are currently enrolled in the conservation Reserve Program.

"Most of the enrolled acres are

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!
This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.
Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

ROCK PICKERS

Hi-Lift
The Hi-Lift makes field piling and the removal of rocks
by truck simple and effortless

Semi-Hi

A hardworking reel type picker ideal for field piling. Picks gravel-size stones to boulders in continuous picking action, then dumps them conveniently and easily.

Prong Type

Man handles rocks from 4 to 36 inches, even on the roughest terrain

ROCK RAKE

The Degelman Rock Rake is designed to windrow small to medium sized rocks and other ground debris for easy picking. Rock-free fields mean less down-time, greater profits.

TIME IS MONEY

Degelman

Call 717-626-4705 OR 1-800-IT PAYS U

and when your equipment is down, it costs you plenty. That's why Degelman engineered farm implements are a wise investment.

Berg Barn Cleaners

Berg matches power to need for greatest economy! Whether your barn is large, medium or small, Berg has the barn cleaner that's just right for your operation. Call us for a free estimate. We'll handle the whole job, from planning thru installation.

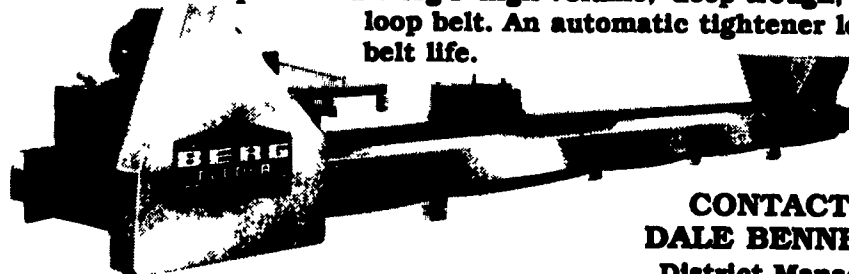

Load Wet Manure Fast...

...with a Berg Auger Manure Conveyor! Used in tandem with our barn cleaner, the continuous spiralling action of its big, 12" revolving auger minimizes roll-back and keeps the manure flowing steadily into your spreader. We install and service!

Berg Belt Feeders

Berg's unique plow design delivers equal rations, quickly and quietly, to all animals at feed bunks in single or multiple lots or in straight-line stanchion barn set-ups. An economical, non-reversing, electric motor powers both the plow and Berg's high-volume, deep-trough, continuous-loop belt. An automatic tightener lengthens belt life.

Axial-Flow Combines SIMPLY MORE PRODUCTIVE IN THE FIELD

Over the past 14 years the Case IH axial-flow combines have proven themselves to be more productive than the combines previously owned by our customers. In tall crops, short crops or down crops; bumper crops or drought crops the axial-flow combines put more crop in the bin and, therefore, return more market dollars to you. The Case IH axial-flow is simply more productive in the field where the bragging stops.

HOOBER: Axial-Flow production specialists

1. Every combine Hooper sells is started in the field by a professional combine mechanic; experienced in setting and adjusting for all common crops.
2. Hooper's professional combine mechanics drive fully equipped combine service trucks, stocked with commonly used wearing parts. When called to service or repair an axial-flow combine, they carry with them the tools and equipment to do the job and get you back to the field fast.
3. Hooper's Parts Department has the largest combine parts inventory in the East. Daily pickups at the Case IH Parts depot help to provide fast emergency parts availability. Hooper's expert combine PARTS service provides you minimum downtime and maximum productivity.

ELS Manure Pumps & Spreaders Check Ours Before You Buy!

We have a new design manure pump that we feel will chop & pump more solids for the money (and HP). Bearings run in oil. Knives make over 3000 cuts per min. Stationary or portable, manual or hydraulic lift. Rent one or buy one, but be sure to try one! We also have our standard model, works well for less bedding with less HP.

We also have semi & liquid spreaders ground drive in 3 standard sizes, also PTO drive & special orders.

We make expanded metal tractor wheels w or w/o shocks, the wheel with more grip & less slip. Check our prices!

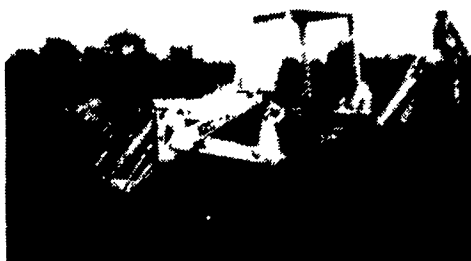

Use our forms to make your own poured walls, round or square pits, retaining walls, basement or barn walls. 2x8 panels up to 190' in one pour. Cheaper & much stronger than block walls filled with concrete. We sometimes have used equipment.

LANDSCAPING

When you're comparing tractors... FORD OFFERS THE LANDSCAPER MORE

Top link sensing on Ford 32- to 55-PTO-hp tractors offers the ultimate in 3-point control for implement or blade work. Two-lever control allows precise adjustment for proper depth and pull requirements.

Check out these other performance features:

- Deluxe closed-center hydraulics let you adjust the flow rate for each remote
- Hydraulic and draft/position controls are within easy, natural reach to the right
- Optional 8x8 synchronized transmission allows easy shifting on-the-go
- Standard telescoping stabilizer and flexible link ends allow fast, easy hook up.

When it comes to landscaping, no other utility tractor compares to Ford. Let us demonstrate.

Total performance for big crop harvesting

You get total performance when you harvest your crops with a Model 900 forage harvester. Total performance begins at the cutterhead. The 12 knives of the 21-inch cutterhead give you uniformly cut, high-quality forage. Other features on the "900" include:

- Metalert II® electronic metal detector (optional)—protects cutterhead and your valuable animals.
- Electromagnetic clutches—give instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Easy-adjust shearbar—makes adjustment fast and precise.

OPERATOR FRIENDLY

The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

• Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise. The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class.

• Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds, a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds. All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.

• PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/1 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.

• Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear® radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Try Our Poly
Silo Liners

THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER:
• Spoilage is reduced around doors.
• Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
• Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.

• Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
• Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life.
• Quick installation.
• Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos.

Fiberdome SILO CHUTE

made with fiberglass, the material of the future — and proven in the past —

The Fiberdome chute is designed and engineered to be installed on most types of silos. Its structure allows it to withstand the toughest beating the weather elements or silo unloading systems can possibly dish out.

The chute is constructed in full 7 1/2' sections to minimize the number of joints. Connecting joints have a 2 1/2" tongue and groove design to keep feed in and water out. The large ribbed construction adds stability and strength.

Fiberglass is durable, corrosion-proof, attractive and translucent, allowing sunlight to pass through. Sunlight quickly dries interior moisture in the chute. The hard gleaming gelcote surface will remain for many years.

FLYING DUTCHMAN UNLOADER WITH HOPPER FLOOR

A Sollenberger Bottom-Unloading Storage System may well be one of the best investments you'll ever make. It gives you the ability to manage a total feed processing system to your own special feeding requirements.

Main Features of a Sollenberger Bottom Unloader:

- 6" Solid Concrete Wall - Reflects Heat
- No Drying Expense
- Reduced Shrinkage and Spoilage
- Continuous Filling and Feeding
- Lower Field Losses
- Lower Feed Cost
- Increased Palatability
- Lower Storage Losses Due To Heating
- Lower Maintenance Costs On Structure & Unloader

LET US INSTALL THE FLYING DUTCHMAN UNLOADER
IN OUR POURED CONCRETE SILO. THE RESULTS WILL BE:

- LOW INITIAL COST
- HIGH VOLUME DELIVERY
- LOWER MAINTENANCE COSTS

Purina Distinguished Dairyman Profile

The herd is fed a one group TMR utilizing their homegrown feedstuffs and Purina's Hi-Energy 35%. Higher Producers are toppedressed with the New Ultimate EXT from Purina.

Feeding Purina from Umbergers of Fontana since September 1988, John sees real value in the nutritional service and research proven products they provide. He shares these results with using Ultimate EXT in his herd.

- "The first-calf heifers are peaking higher and persisting longer."
- "The cows have been breeding back earlier."
- "Overall peak milk has improved."
